OUT TO CHART WEDDELL SEA

But Glaciers Barred Way and Men Had to Await Leader's Trip to Montevideo for a Ship.

LONDON, June 19.—Two young Englishmen, T. Bagshawe of Cambridge University and M. C. Lester, an officer in the Mercantile Marine, landed yesterday at Newcastle after being marooned for twelve months on the Antarctic Continent and passing a dreary Winter in a hut made from the wreck of a boat. They told their story to The Central News.

In September, 1920, the British Imperial Antarctic expedition left London intending to chart the western shores of Weddell Sea, the vast ice stronghold where the late Sir Ernest Shackleton's ship Endurance was crushed and sunk, and to carry out other scientific work. The party, who were to undertake this great task, involving as it did, even if all went well, a march of considerably over 1,000 miles in an absolutely unknown territory, consisted of but four members and of these Bagshawe acted as geologist and Lester as navigator.

The party was conveyed to Weddell Sea in Norwegian whalers, intending to land at Hope Bay, but the ice made it too dangerous for the whalers. The four men were landed in December, 1920, on the coast of Graham Land at Andvord Bay. There at the foot of a huge glacier a base was established and efforts were made to cross the ice mountains which barred the way to Weddell Sea. But the intense cold [illegible] a party with sufficient food for the expedition.

Efforts then were made to find a crossing at another spot and this necessitated voyages in a lifeboat given to the explorers by the Norwegians. Still success eluded them and it became apparent that without a suitable vessel in which to reach Hope Bay the expedition would be a failure, so in February, 1921, the leader decided to go to Montevideo to charter a small vessel, while G. H. Wilkins, his second in command, who is aboard the Quest with the Wills party, announced his intention of leaving the expedition.

Bagshawe and Lester, anxious that their work should be accomplished, volunteered to remain at Andvord Bay until their leader returned in the following November, their duties being to carry out scientific work and attend to the dogs. To effect this change of plan the leader of the expedition and Wilkins had to sail in a lifeboat to their base, whence the Norwegian whalers left for Montevideo. Lester went with them to bring the boat back, and for a week Bagshawe was left alone with his dogs.

Alone in the Antarctic.

"For a week," he said to The Central News, "I was absolutely alone, and I have never felt so miserable in my life. I didn't know whether the party would reach the whalers' base safely or not, and when the fogs and blizzards came up I was very anxious concerning them. Lester had promised to come back, but at times I was haunted by the dread that disaster had overtaken him and that I was left stranded there.

"My home was on a tiny island not thirty feet above the water level at the highest point, and my habitation an old abandoned boat which we had rigged up as a hut with the sides taken from the packing cases. For companions I had a few dogs and some thousands of penguins, while occasionally a huge sea elephant would flounder ashore and stare at me. You can imagine my relief a week later to see a little catcher steaming up towing the lifeboat. Lester was aboard the catcher, which departed as soon as he had landed.

"Our first job was to make ourselves as comfortable as we could. Winter was rapidly approaching, and we had no suitable place in which to live during the intense cold. There was an abandoned boat lying on a narrow, sloping neck of land and resting at an angle of nine degrees, and at the after end the sea came up sometimes under the boat, while at the other end the water was only a few feet away. To move the boat was out of the question, so we decided to make the best of her as she lay.

"We gathered together all the timber we could find, packing cases and such like, and after covering her deck with canvas we built a hut over her which we named 'The Lounge.' To prevent the boat from slipping into the sea we wedged an old spar at the stern. The walls of our hut were covered with canvas on the inside and we then set to work to build a second hut out of the provision cases which we brought in a boat from another island where they had been landed. The roof of this hut consisted of the sail of the lifeboat and to strengthen the building we piled coal and stones against the outer walls.

Everything But Windows.

"The whalers had warned us to make our habitation as strong as possible so as to resist the winds and heavy snowfalls, and in this respect our work was successful. Our one source of trouble was that we could not put windows in

Northcliffe Reaches London To Be Treated for Weak Heart

LONDON, June 19.—Lord Northcliffe returned to England from Switzerland today. He authorized a statement to be issued to the effect that he had been advised to undergo a course of treatment on account of heart weakness, accentuated by an attack of ptomaine poisoning.

The return of Lord Northcliffe comes at a time when great interest has been aroused over the libel suits brought against him by Sir Andrew Caird and Walter G. Fish, his associates on the Associated Newspapers, Ltd.

LIKELY TO POSTPONE SUBSIDY TO AUGUST

ADVOCATES SEE DANGER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—With the return of Speaker Gillett and Chairman Lasker from their week-end trip on the Mayflower with President Harding, House members who are urging a postponement of action of the Ship Subsidy bill are convinced that the President will approve the plan submitted to him Saturday by Chairman Campbell of the Rules Committee. This contemplates delay on the measure until the tariff bill goes to conference, probably in August. The House would meanwhile proceed with its program for three-day recesses to begin next month.

President Harding declined again today to approve postponement when Representative W. S. Greene, Chairman of the Merchant Marine Committee, conferred with him. He said, however, that he did not want to appear as dictating to the House and therefore hoped to work out a satisfactory program in conference which he will hold with Republican leaders of the House tomorrow.

Until the President makes known his final decision, which he is expected to do at tomorrow's conference, the legislative program is in doubt. The general impression is that the President will not attempt to compel immediate action in the face of the protest of Western leaders.

The President personally is for immediate action. He can see no reason why the House should want to go aw for a month or six weeks without acting upon the subsidy bill. The President has informed some opponents of the bill that the party cannot avoid the issue, and that the only way is to face it squarely and without further delay.

Such is the view of Speaker Gillett and Representative Mann. Mr. Gillett in the talks he had with the President on the Mayflower strongly urged that quick action be taken on the bill. It is known that he told the President that there was no occasion for House members leaving Washington for a month or six weeks while the subsidy bill was pending.

"I think we ought to pass the subsidy now and have it settled," the Speaker said in effect. "The country, I think, approves giving subsidy to our ships built during the war as the only way of maintaining a merchant marine capable of competing with the ships of other nations."

Mr. Gillett and Chairman Lasker were told what the President had in mind regarding the bill, but both declined to express an opinion that would reflect the President's intention. They said the President would let the leaders know tomorrow.

Representative Mondell, the Republican floor leader, told the House today that at present he was unable to assure the members whether the three-day recess plan would begin next month. He said he thought that in a day or two the legislative program would be settled. Both he and Representative Campbell, who are against the subsidy bill, think he will agree to postponement of action by the House.

If the President agrees with this program, which puts off the passage of the subsidy bill until August, or after the Senate has passed the tariff bill, the advocates of subsidies think the Senate will adjourn without action on the bill. Under the Campbell plan the House would not send the subsidy bill to the Senate until perhaps the middle of August. By that time the Senate would have acted upon bonus and would be waiting for the conference report on the tariff bill. When that was disposed of even the command of the President, the subsidy leaders say, would not keep the Senate together long enough to debate and pass the subsidy bill.

Anti-subsidy members assert that there will be no chance of passing the bill if the country has an opportunity to discuss it. They say that the Middle West and the dry sections will arouse a strong sentiment against the bill in the next few weeks and when the members return there will be no hope of passing it.

The President still feels that immediate action is most desirable, but he may prefer to get along with the House without a struggle and consent to the postponement.

SUBPOENA DEFIED BY WARD'S FATHER; HEARING POSTPONED

Baking Company President Says He Won't Return Till Business Trip Is Finished.

MRS. CURTIS NOW SOUGHT

GRAND JURY HEARS LAWYERS

Slayer's Sister, Heralded as Important Witness, Testifies That She Knows Nothing of Case.

Ralph D. Ward told Justice Morschauser at White Plains yesterday that his father, George S. Ward, knew he was wanted in the Peters's death mystery, but did not intend to return to New York until he had completed a trip that has now taken him to Cleveland. After hearing Ralph Ward and four other witnesses in 25 minutes, Justice Morschauser indefinitely postponed his hearings on the charge that the elder Ward was guilty of conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice in staying out of New York State during the investigation of the killing.

It is not expected that another conspiracy hearing will be held until Mrs. N. Willard Curtis of 151 Arlington Avenue, Brooklyn, can be served with a subpoena. Deputy Sheriffs have been looking for her for two weeks, but have been unable to find her. She is Walter Ward's mother-in-law, and is believed to have important information bearing upon the double blackmail plot that Walter Ward says ended in his shooting Peters. Mrs. Curtis is said to have preceded Mr. and Mrs. George S. Ward home from a European trip about the time of the killing, and is said to have helped here daughter entertain "the Sutton Manor set" at a poker party in the Ward home at New Rochelle on May 15, the night before Peters's body was found.

Grand Jury Still Is Held.

A certified copy of the record of the proceedings before Justice Morschauser, which have been held in camera, may be presented for the information of the May Grand Jury when it convenes tomorrow. The Grand Jury, which was held over specially to consider the Ward case, is still being held after indicting Walter Ward for murder in the first degree.

Allan R. Campbell of Rabenold & Scribner, 61 Broadway, was the first witness when Justice Morschauser resumed the conspiracy hearings in his chambers in the County Court House at 4:35 o'clock. After seven minutes in the judge's chambers, the lawyer came out and told newspaper reporters in the corridor what had happened:

"The Judge asked me whether I knew of any arrangement whereby George S. Ward would leave this State on this jurisdiction. My answer was 'No!' He then asked me why George S. Ward was out of the jurisdiction. I said that the only thing I knew about it was exactly like the information stated to the judge by Ralph D. Ward—that is, that George S. Ward was out of the State on business. I asked Justice Morschauser for leave to appear for Walter S. Ward at these conspiracy hearings. This was denied me. That's all there was to it."

Ward's Attorney Testifies.

"The newspaper men seem to be about a day behind George S. Ward," said a reporter in reference to the father's skips from Williamsport to Pittsburgh to Cleveland.

"Well," Campbell replied, "the newspaper men seem to be about a full lap ahead of the District Attorney."

Ellwood M. Rabenold, of Rabenold & Scribner, who also lives in Bronxville, was the next witness. After three minutes on the stand, he came out, refusing to tell what he had been questioned about. Rabenold went to another room, and escorted Leland Stanford Wood into Justice Morschauser's chambers, as the third witness.

Leland Stanford Wood is the husband of a sister of Walter and Ralph Ward. He lives at 3 West Seventy-fifth Street, is a member of the Leland Stanford family of California, and is connected with the Chevrolet Motor Company. In his two or three minutes on the stand, Mr. Wood gave his name and address and denied any knowledge of the shoot-

Senator Hale Runs Ahead in Maine Primary; Kellogg and Mrs. Olesen Lead in Minnesota

PORTLAND, Me., Tuesday, June 19.—Returns from yesterday's State-wide primary received up to an early hour this morning, put Frederick Hale far ahead in the race for the seat in the Senate which he holds. His two Republican rivals were Frank Guernsey and Howard Davies.

Governor Percival P. Baxter, Republican, seeking renomination, has as his opponents John P. Deering of Saco and Leon F. Higgins of Brewer and is leading them by a good majority.

For Governor—Baxter, 15,197; Deering, 6,106; Higgins, 5,021.

Guernsey, for Senator, showed considerable strength in the eastern part of the State, but Hale carried the larger towns represented in these returns. Davies ran far behind Guernsey. Hale carried Knox, Lincoln and Sagadahoc Counties by large majorities.

Returns from 147 election precincts out of 635 in the State gave for Senator—Davies, 930; Guernsey, 2,874; Hale, 5,477.

Uncontested nominations on the Democratic ticket were: For Senator, former Governor Oakley C. Curtis; Governor, William R. Pattangall; Congressman, First District, Louis A. Donahue; Second, Bertrand G. McIntire; Third, Leon O. Tebbetts; Fourth, James W. Sewall.

Women candidates appeared for the first time in a State primary, twenty-one seeking nominations for the State, Senate, House and county offices.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 19 (Associated Press).—Reports available early tonight on the State-wide primary today indicated that a light vote had been cast.

Foremost interest in the contests centered in the Democratic nomination for United States Senator with Mrs. Annie Olesen as a leading contestant, and in the Republican struggle for the Congressional nomination in the Third District. Secondary interest was felt in Republican Senatorial contest in which Senator Kellogg seeks renomination.

The first scattering returns showed Senator Kellogg leading his two rivals by a 2 to 1 ratio on the Republican ticket and Mrs. Olesen having a slight advantage over her two opponents on the Democratic ballot.

HARVEY'S SON-IN-LAW HELD IN ARMS PLOT

SEVEN OTHERS ARE ACCUSED

Thompson Guns Were Found in Bunkers of Steamship About to Sail for Dublin.

Lieut. Col. Marcellus H. Thompson, son-in-law of Ambassador Harvey and Vice President of the Auto Ordnance Company of New York, appeared yesterday in the Federal Court in Newark to plead not guilty to a Federal indictment charging him with conspiracy to ship arms to Ireland in violation of the neutrality laws. The indictment naming Colonel Thompson was voted by the Federal Grand Jury in Trenton more than two months ago, but was kept secret while Federal Agents sought two of the seven other persons who were indicted with him.

The charges against Colonel Thompson grew out of the seizure of 495 Thompson machine guns a year ago on the Cosmopolitan Line freighter East Side while she was tied up at her pier in Hoboken. It was alleged that the guns were destined for the use of the Irish Republican Army, and an investigation was begun by the Department of Justice, the United States Shipping Board and the customs officials.

"I do not wish to discuss the East Side matter except to say that we do not know how the guns got aboard the ship," said Colonel Thompson in commenting on the case before he appeared in Newark. "Of course, we would not think of selling guns to persons we might even suspect of reselling them into the hands of enemies of constituted governments."

Released in $2,500 Bail.

Colonel Thompson and the other defendants who appeared to plead not guilty to the charge were released in $2,500 bail each. No statement was issued from the offices of the ordnance company at 302 Broadway, and at Colonel Thompson's home at Great Neck it was said that he was not at home.

"Conspiracy to set on foot and provide the means for military enterprise to be carried on against the territory of a foreign prince with whom the United States was at peace."

The indictment is based on Section 37 of the United States Criminal Code, which is:

"If two or more persons conspire either to commit in any manner or for any purpose, and one or more such parties do any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each of the parties in such a conspiracy shall be fined not more than $10,000 and imprisoned not more than two years, or both."

The Auto Ordnance Company also is indicted as a corporation, and Frank J. Merkling, the Secretary, is made a defendant with Colonel Thompson.

Co-defendants With Thompson.

The others indicted are Frank Williams, alias Lawrence Delacy and Lawrence Pierce, who is alleged to have paid for the shipment of guns and who is now believed to be in Ireland.

Fred Williams, alias Edward Delacy, brother of Frank Williams, who is alleged to have been implicated and who is now believed to be in Ireland.

George Gordon Rorke, a salesman of Washington and this city, who is charged with placing an order for the guns with the ordnance company. He was arrested in this city last September on an indictment charging him and two unnamed persons with violation of the neutrality law and the conspiracy act, and released in $3,000 bail.

Frank B. Ochsenriter, who is also charged with placing an order for guns with the Auto Ordnance Company.

John Calnane, a truckman, who, it is alleged, carted the guns from a station of the American Railway Express Company to a Bronx storehouse, at the order of Frank Williams.

A man named Brophy, first name not given in the indictment, who, it is alleged, carted the shipment from the Bronx warehouse to the Hoboken pier, where they were piled into the ship's coal bunkers.

Of these defendants only two appeared in the Federal Court at Newark, besides the officials of the corporation. They were Rorke and Ochsenriter, who were also released in $3,000 bail. Judge Bellstab heard the pleas of not guilty in a

KEEN BUSINESS MEN GO FOR JUNGLE GOLD

LAWYER GOES WITH PARTY

A party of nine men, organized at Katonah, N. Y., and including substantial citizens regarded as hard-headed business men, sailed on the Majestic on Saturday in the hope of reaching in the jungles of the Belgian Congo, 600 miles from civilization, a stream from whose bed nuggets of gold are to be picked up by handfuls.

The existence of this El Dorado in darkest Africa is vouched for by the supposed discoverer who is the guide of the party. He is Julius J. Dolgos, a chemical engineer, who has lived at Golden's Bridge, near Katonah, since the war. Serving in Africa in mounted forces during the war, his horse tumbled with him down a deep ravine, landing him by the side of a gold-paved brook. He picked up several handfuls of the precious metal, kept the secret after rejoining his fellow troopers and sold the nuggets after the war to a jeweler for $1,600, according to his story.

The expedition of nine members, backed by their own money and that of small capitalists in New York State, New York City and Connecticut, was arranged for after many long conferences in the office of Supervisor Edward P. Barrett of the Town of Bedford, near Katonah. Mr. Barrett is a lawyer and a man of substance. He investigated and pinned entire faith in the story of Dolgos. He interested neighbors and they interested friends.

Many Conferences Held.

The plan to send a party of Argonauts deep into Africa on a pioneering mission far more dangerous and difficult than that of crossing the plains or rounding the Cape in '49 has been seething for months in conferences in Katonah, in this city and in Connecticut. Capital of unknown amount has been raised and on Saturday off went the gold-seekers.

The secret has passed by whispers under the seal of confidence to scores, if not hundreds. It has been well kept, as such things go, but some one "sprang a leak" at Katonah after the expedition had departed on Saturday. Almost the whole countryside in that part of New York State has been admitted to some part or all of the secret. Relatives of the adventurous men and their bankers expressed great indignation yesterday when they learned that the plans of the gold-seeking expedition had become public.

Those who sailed in the Majestic include Supervisor Barrett, Mr. Dolgos, A. C. Brower, Raymond Brower, Charles F. Ganung and Robert Eiseman, all of Katonah; Albert Pumberton of New York, William H. Odell Jr. of South Norwalk, and Captain Carlos de Montanha of Brooklyn.

Will Seek Belgian Concession.

Mr. Barrett is going to Brussels to seek a concession from the Belgian Government for the right to mine, if they find gold. The others, it is supposed, are going to the Belgian Congo at once to equip their expedition into the interior, where Dolgos believes he will be able to lead them to the mountain torrent whose bottom was a mosaic of nuggets. How their plans will be affected by publicity is not known. News of a gold strike has generally brought adventurers in swarms on the track of those believed to hold the secret of the place where the treasure was to be found.

Nathaniel Voris, an auctioneer at Golden's Bridge, N. Y., who was said to be a friend of Dolgos, was highly indignant when he was asked about the matter by telephone.

"Who told you?" he asked. "It is our business and nobody else's."

Mrs. Edward P. Barrett, wife of the organizer of the expedition, said at Katonah that she knew nothing of the plans of her husband.

"It is a business trip," she said. "That is all that I can say about it."

At the office of Mr. Barrett, his secretary, a young woman, said:

"We know nothing about it. There can't be any truth in the story that they are going to Africa to hunt for gold. We don't know what it is about. All the 'meeting' have been held here and nothing has been said about it, so

Ex-President Tells London Pilgrims We Are Acquiring Consciousness of Partnership.

WINS GENERAL WELCOME

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—A very distinguished company gathered at the Hotel Victoria tonight to welcome Chief Justice William Howard Taft, who was principal guest at the dinner given by the Pilgrims' Society. The Earl of Balfour made the speech introducing Mr. Taft to the company, and messages from the King, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught were read by Lord Desborough, who presided.

Mr. Taft, in the course of his reply, said that Americans were acquiring a consciousness of their partnership with the nations of the world and their share of responsibility for what the world did in the war. Its lessons, he said, had not been lost on them, but the conditions prevailing with them were such that their progress must be slower than some among them would wish. He said the treaties signed in Washington last Winter were most significant, not only because of the importance of what they really achieved, but also because of their moral effect upon his countrymen. He added:

"We have suffered from the war, but less than our European Allies. Our wealth and prosperity have been much less affected. While that increases our comparative powers, it also increases our responsibility. Our people know this. They know, too, that the united action of Great Britain and the United States in world matters is sure to make for peace. They know, therefore, that it is of the utmost importance that the friendly relations between the two great countries which have been maintained, some times under the most trying conditions, for a century or more should be made closer, not only for the benefit of both, but for the welfare of the world.

"As a citizen with no official mandate I beg the Britons whom I am addressing not to be misled by temporary ebullitions of one faction or another, but to count on the fundamental public opinion of the United States in respect to our foreign relations, which will always prevail in a real exigency and which regards the maintenance of friendship with Great Britain as the most necessary security for the peace of the world."

Five Members of the Cabinet Present.

LONDON, June 19 (Associated Press).—Great Britain's foremost statesmen, jurists and lawyers and a great body of American friends joined in an impressive reception to William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the United States, on his first public appearance in England tonight. He was the guest of honor at the Pilgrims' banquet, at which five members of the Cabinet, many former Cabinet Ministers and the greatest representatives of the profession of legal minds in the country lent their presence.

Rarely before has a visiting American received such a spontaneous welcome. The King, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught sent messages of greeting, and the Earl of Balfour and the Very Rev. William Ralph Inge, Dean of St. Paul's, testified to the affection and admiration in which Mr. Taft is held by the English people.

Mr. Taft was introduced by the Earl of Balfour, who expressed the hope that the guest of the evening would not measure the warmth of Great Britain's greeting by the prevailing chilly weather.

"Our climate may be changeable, but our hearts are constant and true," he said. "The high esteem in which we hold the former President is not one that will change with the winds."

Mr. Taft, said Lord Balfour, occupied a unique position in the world. Elevated to the highest executive office and the highest judicial position, he had discharged the duties of both in a way to command the approval not only of America, but the world. He himself and the members of the British delegation at the Washington Conference were under deep and lasting obligations to Mr. Taft for his kindly aid and helpful counsel in approaching one of the most difficult problems England had ever faced.

At the outset of his speech Mr. Taft occasioned much laughter by saying that to a man of his avoirdupois the present climate of England was especially commendable. He provoked renewed merriment by the declaration that he had retired from the Presidency of the United States with "the full and unmis-

Kronen by Carload, Rubles Hot Off the Plate, And Marks 'In Kind' for Genoa Hotel Bill

BERLIN, June 19.—The latest story about the rate of exchange comes from Prague. The Prager Tagblatt tells it thus:

The Genoa conference is over and the chief guests are paying their hotel bills. Mr. Lloyd George pays in gold, Signor Schanzer in silver and lire notes, M. Barthou by means of a check on the Credit Lyonnais.

When his bill is presented to Herr Schober, Austria's principal representative, he takes out of his portfolio two vast sheets of paper and presents them to the maitre d'hotel. There are stamps on them—round, oblong and triangular revenue stamps—there are rubber stamp markings in black, red and green and blue ink; there are signatures legible and illegible; there is much writing and typewriting; there are long columns of figures.

"Excuse me, your Excellency," ventures the maitre d'hotel, "but are those orders on your bank?"

"Oh, no, no," replies Herr Schober. "These are two bills of lading. Two wagon loads of Austrian notes are at the Piazza Principe Station. You can obtain the delivery of them at once."

Tchitcherin, in a cloud of cigarette smoke, is presented with his bill. From his pocket he takes a packet and throws it on the table. The sound suggests that something metallic is in the packet. Is it wonders the maitre d'hotel, some of the gold which the Soviet Government has been taking from the Russian Churches?

"Is it gold or silver, sir?" he asks.

"Oh, dear no; the packet only contains a couple of plates from which we print our banknotes," replies Tchitcherin. "Take them away, and print as many as you like."

Herr Wirth, chief German delegate, approaches and has private conversation with the maitre d'hotel. As a result, the matter of the hotel bill is satisfactorily settled on a basis of a moratorium and subsequent payment in kind.

The weather conditions are reported to have been terrible and the climbers suffered greatly.

SMITH IN CONVENTION TO OPPOSE HEARST

CONNERS VISITS CITY HALL

Finds Hylan "Heart and Soul" in Favor of Publisher as Governor of the State.

Alfred E. Smith will be a delegate to the Democratic State Convention. This has been definitely decided, according to friends of the former Governor, who said he probably would go on the convention floor as the Tammany spokesman opposed to William R. Hearst.

Whether "Al" Smith would bolt the party in event of Hearst's nomination is a matter which neither the former Governor nor his friends were willing to discuss.

William J. Conners, the Buffalo publisher, who has made himself the political sponsor for Mr. Hearst, took a trip to City Hall yesterday and had a long talk with Mayor Hylan.

"We discussed Mr. Hearst and the coming campaign," said Mr. Conners. "Hylan is heart and soul for Hearst and will under no circumstances become a candidate for Governor."

There is every reason to believe that the conversation between Mr. Conners and Mayor Hylan had to do with one of the major strategic moves of the Hearst campaign.

The men to whom the supporters of Mr. Hearst took in connection with this project are F. H. La Guardia, former Aldermanic President, who is regarded as being more or less under the thumb of Mayor Hylan, and George F. Thompson, former State Senator, of Niagara, who some years ago headed a special legislative committee that investigated the Public Service Commissions and the traction tangle in this city.

Mr. Thompson's views on how the traction problem should be solved run much along the lines suggested by Hearst and Hylan. Both LaGuardia and Thompson are looked upon as Hearst-Hylan Republicans.

Mr. Conners would not discuss the danger to Mr. Hearst involved in the presence of "Al" Smith as a delegate at the coming convention. Nor would he say anything regarding the possibility of Smith's fight on Hearst resulting in a stampede of the convention for himself.

The women of the State have so far been the most outspoken opponents of Mr. Hearst. Mr. Conners is believed to be having a hard time building up a woman's organization. He said yesterday he was not ready to announce who would have charge of the proposed organization of Hearst women.

Miss Harriet May Mills, Chairman-Coadjutor of the Democratic State Committee, will address a gathering of Democratic women today at a breakfast to be given in her honor and in honor of Mrs. Daniel O'Day at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club at Rye.

Herbert C. Pell Jr., Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, said up-State Democrats opposed to the nomination of Mr. Hearst were lining up behind Representative Peter G. Ten Eyck of the Albany district.

"Has Mr. Conners called upon you on behalf of Mr. Hearst?" Chairman Pell was asked.

"He has not been near me on any such errand," was the reply.

"Have you seen Mr. Conners at all?"

"Yes," he said. "I saw him recently at Buffalo."

In connection with the talk of Mayor Hylan as a possible substitute for Mr. Hearst at the head of the Democratic State ticket and the attitude of Tammany toward his nomination it was stated yesterday that, while the departure of Mayor Hylan from the City Hall in itself would result in no shedding of tears in Tammany circles, neither Murphy nor any of the Democratic leaders within the city would be likely to do anything to bring on the prospect of a new mayoralty election next year, which inevitably would follow Mayor Hylan's retirement to become Governor.

Canadian House Ratifies Treaties.

OTTAWA, June 19.—The House of Commons today unanimously approved the treaties passed at the Washington armament conference. The importance of the treaties was voiced by leaders of all three parties in the House, who likewise expressed Canada's appreciation of President Harding's action in calling the conference.

Red Coats and Safes for Brokers' Boys To Scare Off Wall Street Freebooters

A new plan to defeat the schemes of robbers who prey on Wall Street messengers carrying great sums in securities to and fro throughout the financial district will be inaugurated today.

Abandoning the old theory that a messenger should look as inconspicuous as possible, several brokerage houses have decided to test the antithesis, by arraying their messengers in bright red coats and hitching five-pound portable safes around their waists. The idea is to let the whole world know a messenger when it sees one. The brokers figure he would be a bold highwayman who would hold up one of these mobile safe-deposit vaults.

The safe is a trick affair. A steel chain encircling the messenger's waist under the coat is padlocked inside the safe. The messenger doesn't know the combination of the safe and besides has to come back to get free, as the key to the padlock is kept in the office.

RUSH HOUR TIE-UP OF ALL I.R.T. TRAINS DUE TO COAL STRIKE

BREAKDOWN IN POWER PLANT

CAUSED BY POOR COAL

Unable to Generate Sufficient Steam to Run Reserve Equipment With Emergency Fuel.

Hundreds of thousands of home-going passengers felt the coal strike for the first time when they were delayed for an hour or more last evening by a tie-up of the elevated and subway lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the surface lines of the New York Railways Company, which caused an almost complete paralysis of traffic in Manhattan at the peak of the evening rush hour.

The tie-up was caused by the breakdown of two 20,000 kilowatt generators in the Interborough's power plant at Seventy-fourth Street and the East River. It would probably have been comparatively trifling but for the fact that the coal strike had interrupted the Interborough's regular contract coal supply and the coal purchased by the company in the open market proved of comparatively poor quality.

As soon as the two generators went out of service the employes at the Seventy-fourth Street power house promptly coupled on the Reserve equipment of older type, power for which is supplied by reciprocating engines instead of turbines. The poor quality of the coal prevented the generation of enough steam to feed these reciprocating engines and keep what was left of the regular equipment going. It was found necessary to shut off power from the Second and Third Avenue elevated lines completely, and to run the east and west side subways on half time.

The New York Railways Company buys its power from the Interborough, and power from most of its lines was cut off. The effect of the accident attended to Queens, the power being cut off from the companies there which get power from the Interborough.

Generators "Blew Out."

The difficulty started when one 20,000 kilowatt generator at the Seventy-fourth Street plant failed because of mechanical difficulties, shortly before four o'clock. This was followed by the failure of a second generator of the same capacity, which, according to engineers at the plant, "blew out." As the load increased, the emergency power equipment, largely because of the poor coal, was unable to furnish sufficient power, and orders were issued at 6:07 P. M. to cut off the power on the surface and elevated lines to keep the subways going.

In the meantime, hundreds of thousands of passengers were prevented from returning home by their usual routes. As the surface cars stopped, thousands sought taxicabs. On the elevated lines, those who were fortunate enough to be on trains which stopped at stations got out and sought to resume their journeys by any method available. As the surface cars on Second and Third Avenues, operated by other companies, were still running, these cars were jammed almost at once, the congestion having almost the effect of a tie-up. The cars on the Third Avenue Railway Company, including its line across Forty-second Street, were kept running, although more slowly than usual.

Although the trains in the Interborough subways were kept running with half the usual rush hour speed and efficiency, the schedule was altogether too slow to carry away the crowds which gathered on the station platforms. Special points of congestion were Times Square and Grand Central station, the hot, muggy weather adding to the discomfort. Although the actual tie-up in no case lasted more than an hour, the effect of it continued long after the trains and cars were again moving, and it was after 8 o'clock before traffic movements approached anything like normal conditions at that hour.

The report of the Operating Department of the Interborough showed that power was cut off completely from the Second and Third Avenue elevated lines at 6:07 and turned on again at 6:42. Power was shut off on lines of the New York Railways Company as follows:

Tie-up on Surface Lines.

The effect of the tie-up on the surface lines extended much further than the sections on which the power was cut off. Long lines of cars formed on the parts of the lines on which power was available and within a quarter of an hour after the power was shut off the greater part of the New York Railways system was stalled.

Operation of the Interborough power plants has been criticised recently by Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, who brought forward witnesses at a recent hearing before the Board of Estimate to sustain his contention that the Interborough wasted $1,500,000 a year by inefficient power plants which required the use of an excessive amount of coal. Mr. O'Brien also contended that the reserve equipment of the company was greatly in excess of its power requirements if the best use was made of its facilities.

part of the trouble had been caused by the poor quality of the coal which failed to produce a sufficient quantity of steam to generate the power necessary for the reciprocating engines of an old type which were put in use after the more modern generators failed.

Mr. Bedley explained that the Berwind-White Coal Company and the Consolidation Coal Company, from which the Interborough gets its regular supply on contract, had been unable to make deliveries of all the coal necessary because their mines had been closed by the coal strike. The company had been obliged to buy coal in the open market, he said, and to get coal where it could. Much of this coal was of poor quality.

E. J. Berwind, an Interborough Director, is one of the principal owners of the Berwind-White Coal Company, and the company's contract with the Interborough has been the subject of frequent investigation and attack without showing that the company had charged an excessive price or had failed to supply a good quality of coal. One of the main points in defense of this contract has been that it has assured the Interborough an adequate supply at all times.

George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, said that investigators of the commission had been in touch with the situation and would make a report to the commission today. Mr. McAneny said that, according to his information, the tie-up was due to an emergency, and that he had understood that the Interborough had been having difficulty in getting coal of as good quality as usual.

FRENCH PRESIDENT RECEIVES ENRIGHT

PARIS, June 19.—Police Commissioner Enright of New York City was presented to President Millerand today by Sheldon Whitehouse, Counselor of the American Embassy.

Commissioner Enright delivered to the President an invitation by Mayor Hylan for France to attend the international congress of police officials. M. Millerand gave his approval for French participation in the congress.

The President turned the formal audience into a kind of cross-examination of Commissioner Enright on traffic and the solution of this problem in New York City.

Mr. Enright told M. Millerand that the traffic towers in use in New York were not adapted to Paris, where the traffic problem was altogether different from that in New York. The Commissioner explained that the success in handling traffic in New York was due largely to the great power exercised by the traffic policeman and the obedience given his orders.

SPANISH REPORT SUCCESSES

But Last Few Days' Operations Entailed Many Casualties.

MADRID, June 19.—All the operations planned in Morocco in recent days have been executed, and all the positions which were the objective of these operations have been occupied, says an official communiqué from Tetuan, dated June 18. The El Araish column established a position at Chantuff and a blockhouse on the Zaula-Menzora road, overcoming severe enemy resistance. One European officer was killed and another wounded; four European soldiers were wounded, five native soldiers were killed and twenty natives wounded.

A column commanded by Colonel Saliquet, which left Drasiasse, occupied its objectives and established blockhouses in the vicinity of the River Laquen. The column suffered twenty-two casualties. Later the column sustained a strong enemy attack in which seventy-eight men were killed or wounded, including two captains killed and six other officers wounded.

The troops, adds the communiqué, fought brilliantly, causing heavy enemy losses. Forty bodies were found on the field, and seven prisoners were taken.

The column of Colonel Serrano made a demonstration, but was not obliged to fight.

Another official communiqué from Melilla reports that the Moors attacked the position at Kudia, but were repulsed by artillery and machine guns and were pursued by a Moorish contingent which is loyal to the Spaniards.

TABLET FOR AIX-LES-BAINS.

Y. M. C. A. Presents Memorial of Hospitality to A. E. F. Men.

AIX-LES-BAINS, France, June 19.—A bronze tablet similar to the ones presented to Chambéry and Challes-les-Eaux, in appreciation of the hospitality of the townspeople to American soldiers on leave, was presented to this town today by a delegation of Y. M. C. A. workers from the American forces in Germany. The Chambéry and Challes-les-Eaux tablets were presented Saturday.

Entwined American and French flags formed the principal decorations of the town. A public holiday was proclaimed. The Americans were received officially at the City Hall, where they were welcomed by the Mayor. Franklin Spencer Edmunds, of the Y. M. C. A. delegation, replied to the speech of welcome. Then the school children sang the national anthems of France and the United States. The tablet reads:

"This tablet is placed by the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States in appreciation of the hospitality of the citizens of this town during the great war, when American soldiers were permitted to use this building for rest and recreation."

FIGHTING IN UPPER SILESIA.

Four Killed in Conflict Between Plebiscite Police and French.

BERLIN, June 19.—A sanguinary affray is reported to have occurred at Biskupitz, Upper Silesia, between a small detachment of French troops and a force of plebiscite police (a mixed body of Poles and Germans) which had been ordered to relieve the communal guards. Large numbers of civilians aided with the relieving force, and in the trouble which followed a fusillade was fired, killing four civilians.

One hundred and twenty persons were injured, some seriously, in a flight between members of a patriotic association and a party of communists at Chemnitz on Saturday, according to newspaper reports.

WOUND FRENCH SOLDIERS.

Unknown Germans Assault Two in Town Evacuated by Americans.

COBLENZ, June 19.—Two French soldiers attached to a unit which recently took over Bendorf from the Americans were found seriously wounded and unconscious and are now in a hospital, where their condition is pronounced grave. The assault upon them is attributed to resentment of the inhabitants over the arrival of the French troops. Thus far there is no clue to the men's assailants.

POLAND HONORS VAN WERT.

Awards American Highest Military Decoration for Red Cross Work.

WARSAW, June 19.—J. W. Van Wert, of Fenton, Mich., will receive the "Virtuti Militari," the highest military decoration in the gift of the Polish Republic, in recognition of his services during the Bolshevist invasion of 1920, while a member of the American Red Cross.

Mr. Van Wert is at present seriously ill in the American Hospital in Constantinople, and the decoration is being sent him by a special courier.

CLUBS DAUGHTERS, THEN TRIES SUICIDE

Mrs. Rosina Edson, Insanely Despondent, Uses Hammer, Then Cuts Own Wrists.

ALL THREE WILL RECOVER

Estranged Wife of Sugar Corporation Director to Face Felonious Assault Charge.

Just before dawn yesterday Mrs. Rosina Edson, wife of Hubert Edson, director in the West India Sugar Finance Corporation, battered her two little daughters nearly to death with a hammer and attempted to commit suicide by slashing her own wrists with a paring knife in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boardman Wright of 26 St. Luke's Place, Montclair, N. J. Despondency over lack of money and separation from her husband, the police think, deranged Mrs. Edson's mind.

She was taken to the Mountainside Hospital together with the children. Last night it was said that all three would recover. Only the fact that the head of the hammer flew off before the demented woman could deal either child a death blow prevented a double murder, say the police. Mrs. Edson will be arraigned on a charge of felonious assault as soon as she is able to appear in court.

How Mrs. Edson came to be living in the home of the Wrights is a story of the strength of family and friendship ties in the old South. Mrs. Wright is the daughter of George W. Cable, author of "The Cavalier," "Old Creole Days," "The Grandissimes" and other stories dealing with Civil War and reconstruction days in Louisiana. Mrs. Edson comes from New Orleans, her father and mother having been great friends of the Cables.

About a year ago she and her husband separated. He went to Santo Domingo on business for his company. It is said he urged her to go but she refused. He wrote from there begging that she at least send the children, Katherine, 13, and Marguerite, 8, to visit him. She again refused. Early this year, according to Mrs. Wright, Mr. Edson stopped sending money to his wife.

For a while Mrs. Edson lived at a boarding house near the Wright home. Then, unable to pay her bills, she was threatened with ejection. That was last April. Mrs. Wright, who had never seen Mrs. Edson before, but who knew of the relationship between their families, offered the distracted woman a home.

"While we have a roof over our heads," Mrs. Wright said, "neither you nor the children shall lack a home."

At first Mrs. Edson was supremely happy. She and Mrs. Wright discussed bygone days in New Orleans by the hour. Katherine and Marguerite played contentedly with the three Wright children. As time went on, however, Mrs. Edson became more and more morose. Her condition was aggravated by the serious illness of one of Mrs. Wright's children recently and the consequent tenseness of the whole household.

About 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. and Mrs. Wright were awakened by the shrill screaming of the Edson children. When they hurried in they were horrified to see Mrs. Edson beating little Marguerite with what looked like a wooden club. Katherine lay still across the bed.

Mrs. Edson tried to shut the door. While Mr. Wright attempted to break in Mrs. Wright summoned the police.

At the police station, Mrs. Edson broke down.

"Why didn't you let me finish the job?" she said. "It would have been better all around."

New Yorkers Plead Guilty to Robbery in Bridgeport.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 19.—Edward Y. Kiviat, Max Becker and Herman Kraut of New York were sentenced in the Superior Court here today to nine to ten years in State prison for the robbery of the Connecticut Company payroll on May 24. They changed their pleas to guilty to the charge of robbery with violence. The original charge was highway robbery.

Judge William M. Maltbie pronounced sentence. He said before doing so, in part:

"There is need of increased severity in crimes in which automobiles figure. They are so increasing that now is the time for the severity of the penalty to be raised accordingly. This was a premeditated crime and was not the outcome of an accident, no matter what counsel may say. The men played for high stakes and they should not complain if they get the limit."

OLD ATHLETE GETS DIVORCE

Dr. Alvin O. Kraenzlein Receives Decree in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Dr. Alvin O. Kraenzlein, former Captain of the University of Pennsylvania track team, was granted a divorce today from Mrs. Claudine Gilman Kraenzlein. No details of the case were made public.

Kraenzlein was a hurdler and broad jumper and at one time held three world's records. His marks in the 220-yard low hurdles and in the broad jump still stand as intercollegiate records. His record of three first places and a second in the intercollegiates in 1901, scoring eighteen points, has never been equaled. With him, Pennsylvania won the intercollegiate title three successive years.

SAYS HIS WIFE BEAT HIM.

Chicago Ex-Banker Seeks Divorce, Alleging Cruelty.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Raymond L. Redheffer, former Vice President of the Second Security Bank and more recently a broker, today filed suit for divorce from Mrs. Elisabeth Moos Redheffer, daughter of J. S. Moos, millionaire cigar manufacturer of Lake Forest.

Redheffer bases his plea for freedom upon the alleged cruelty of Mrs. Redheffer, who, he asserts, on numerous occasions struck and threatened him. The couple, married on April 6, 1915, have three children.

SLASHED BY UNKNOWN.

Binkowitz, the Victim, Had Been Seeking Slayers of His Brother.

Meyer Binkowitz, brother of Benjamin Binkowitz, a financial messenger, who fled with $173,000 of Liberty bonds on Aug. 11, 1919, and who was killed and robbed of the bonds a few days afterward on the Milford Road, near Bridgeport, Conn., was slashed with a knife last night at Stanton and Attorney Streets under circumstances the police said, that seemed to connect the mystery of the unsolved murder of his brother. Meyer Binkowitz has continued the search for the slayers, and some of the bonds, reputedly, stored were taken on information he had supplied to the police.

With Samuel Solomon, who gives the same address, 169 Eldridge Street, Binkowitz was passing the corner of Stanton and Attorney Street when a group of men began to fight. Binkowitz and Solomon turned to avoid the row and were instantly attacked from behind. The knife thrust felled Binkowitz and Solomon was knocked down, and their assailants quickly disappeared. Binkowitz, with a wound six inches long in his back, was taken to Dr. Schachter, at 151 Stanton Street, who found that the cut was not deep.

SAILOR ASKS $10,000 FOR ARREST IN RIO

Says He Was Thrown Into Dungeon and Accused of Being Bolshevist.

A jury before City Court Justice Valente began taking testimony yesterday in a suit arising out of the arrest as Bolshevist agitators of members of the crew of the United States Shipping Board steamship City of Alton at Rio de Janeiro in October, 1920. The suit is brought by Philip Bender, one of the men arrested, against the Shipping Board and the Northern Steamship Company, which operated the City of Alton, for $10,000 damages for false arrest and imprisonment. The City Court is the old Marine Court.

Silas B. Axtell, attorney for Bender, told the jury that when the vessel reached Buenos Aires there was no cold drinking water because the ice cooler had broken. He said the captain promised to have the cooler fixed, but when he failed to do so the men struck. When the vessel arrived at Rio the ringleaders were arrested, after the captain had consulted with the American Consul, and the prisoners were charged not only with being mutineers but were accused of spreading Bolshevist doctrines.

Attorney Axtell said that his client and six others were thrown into an underground dungeon for thirteen days, after which they were taken to New Orleans, where the charges were dismissed and they were released. The attorney denied that his client had done anything for which he should have been punished.

James A. Hatch, attorney for the steamship company, denied that his company was responsible for any of the acts complained of by the American Consul at Rio. He said the icewater tank went out of commission a few days before the ship reached Rio and had to be shut down for repairs. He said that Bender and his associates incited other members of the crew to mutiny.

Mr. Hatch said that at the hearing before the American Consul the latter told Bender and his six associates that their conduct smacked of Bolshevism, whereupon Bender retorted that he "was a Bolshevist and was proud of it." The men were ordered back to the vessel upon their promise to return to work, but when the Consul visited the ship later he found them still on strike. The Consul then consulted the Brazilian authorities and the men were locked up at Rio. The City of Alton went on her way without them.

The trial will continue today.

CROOKS SEEK POLICE JOBS.

Chief Tells of Plot to Undermine Chicago Force.

CHICAGO, June 19.—A criminal plot to undermine the Police Department by putting crooks on the force was carried in the flood of applications for 1,000 new police jobs recently authorized by the City Council, according to Charles Fitzmorris, General Superintendent of Police.

Investigation of applicants has led to the solution of robberies amounting to $50,000, the Chief said today.

One man who had received his star was arrested while attending a police school of instruction and confessed to the recent $12,000 robbery of a dairy company.

"Of the first 200 applicants forty-two had police records," Chief Fitzmorris said, "twenty-five of which were for serious charges. Of these forty-two we held eighteen for investigation after they had passed through the bureau of identification." Twelve were booked for charges."

1,200 LEPERS ARE AT LARGE.

Federal Expert Urges Need of Isolation to Prevent Spread of Disease.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A recent survey by the United States Public Health Service showed there were 1,200 lepers at large in twenty-five States, Dr. C. H. Lavinder, Assistant Surgeon General, announced in a statement today. There is only one means of preventing further increase in the number of cases, Dr. Lavinder said, and that is by providing isolation facilities large enough to take care of the present cases.

The only leprosarium maintained by the Federal Government, located at Carville, La., is limited to 300 patients and is now filled to capacity, Dr. Lavinder said. He added that the impracticability of States or cities having their own institutions results in hundreds of lepers being at large in the country, with the risk of communicating the disease to others with whom they come in daily contact.

SING SING FUGITIVE SEEN IN NEW YORK

POLICE HERE JOIN SEARCH

Slayer Believed to Have Had Aid in Escaping From Prison in Civilian Clothes.

Charles Greer, the murderer who escaped from Sing Sing on Sunday night, was seen in New York within thirty minutes after he was missed from the Ossining institution and long before the elaborate hunt for him had been organized.

A man who knew Greer well saw him at 126th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, five blocks from his old home. The convict was wearing a blue suit and a straw hat. The police were notified and joined Sing Sing guards, who hurried to the home of Mrs. Schweitzer, Greer's sister, with whom he formerly lived, in Amsterdam Avenue, between 133d and 134th Street. Mrs. Schweitzer had gone to Midland Beach and no one in the neighborhood admitted having seen Greer.

The police, knowing that Greer was wanted for robberies here at the time he was in jail at his home town, Greenwich, Conn., for a killing in connection with a robbery at Port Chester, believe that he may try to conceal himself in the neighborhood of some of his old haunts. They are confident that he did not have money enough to go far and do not believe that his criminal associates were of a type well supplied with funds. In consequence of their theory, they kept a close watch on every part of the city in which the young fellow had loafed.

Meantime Sing Sing guards and State police, though they saw no reason to doubt that Greer had been seen here, maintained their watch on the roads and their hunt through the woods and fields in the vicinity of Ossining. Thickly wooded sections of the estates of William Rockefeller, James Speyer and Frank Vanderlip, all near the prison, and all before now the hiding places of escaped convicts, were searched minutely, without results. No trace of the man has been found between the time he was missed and the moment he was seen in New York.

Greer, whose friends called him "Chink" because of characteristic narrow, slant eyes and high cheek bones, left Sing Sing in civilian clothes. That much was established when a more careful search of the cell block from which he escaped by breaking a hole through the tile roof, revealed his prison gray cap and suit. Warden Lewis E. Lawes was satisfied then that Greer had planned carefully since he evidently had got possession of a suit of civilian clothes, an undertaking surrounded in the prison with exceeding difficulty. Further evidence that it was no hap-hazard jailbreak lay in the tools with which Greer smashed the lock of a trap door leading to the garret and broke through the roof.

If the prison authorities obtained evidence that other convicts had assisted him, they did not say so, and the information that had worked alone, or at least without the connivance of any one within, was drawn because no other convict tried to escape, and it appeared unlikely that any who was not to have benefited, would have helped him.

The possibility that an outside confederate managed to smuggle the clothes and the tool or tools to Greer and that the same confederate waited near the prison for him to emerge is under consideration. Greer's appearance in New York so soon after he got away seemed to lend weight to such a theory of the escape, yet the searchers were mindful that even if he did get down to the city in an automobile it well might have been in the car of some person from whom he had begged a ride and who would have been out of sound of the prison siren long before it sounded the alarm.

Policemen were rushed to the 242d Street subway station so soon after the escape was discovered at 8:30 in the evening that prison officials are confident Greer did not go down that way.

Queensland's Former Premier Dies.

BRISBANE, Queensland, June 19.—The death is announced of Sir Robert Philip, twice Premier of Queensland. He was born in Glasgow in 1851.

POLICEMAN KICKED BY FELLOW-OFFICER

BLUECOAT MAKES ESCAPE

Other Four, Who Were Making Disturbance, Are Captured in Rough-and-Tumble Fight.

When Policeman Harvey Sanders of the Parkville station undertook to arrest a uniformed policeman and five companions who were creating a disturbance shortly before dawn yesterday in a taxicab on the Ocean Parkway, near Church Avenue, the policeman stepped out on the running board and kicked him on the chin. Sanders fell to the ground and then three occupants of the machine jumped on him, kicked and punched him and fought him off while the policeman and the chauffeur of the taxicab escaped.

Sanders managed to arrest his four assailants after they had ruined his uniform. They refused to reveal the name of the policeman, but Sanders later stated he believed he could identify the policeman who kicked him by a few pumerals on his assailant's shield which he remembered.

Later, when the four prisoners were arraigned before Magistrate Reynolds in the Coney Island Court, Sanders said that when he first attempted to stop the taxicab he heard one of the occupants say, "Fill the cop full of lead." He drew his pistol to halt the chauffeur, but the machine flew on. He signaled to another policeman three blocks down the boulevard, and when the taxicab driver saw the second policeman he turned around and started back toward Sanders. While there he halted the chauffeur by threatening to shoot into the machine.

The four prisoners told the Magistrate they were Michael Salter, 2,021 West Thirty-first Street; Conger Island, 1,224 Thomas Jullion, 50 Madison Street, Manhattan, which is the headquarters of the Downtown Tammany Club; Frank Antonio, 85 Forty-third Street, and Gennaro Zerrillo, 133 Thirty-first Street, both of Brooklyn.

"One thousand dollars bail for examination," said the Magistrate when the policeman finished his story.

"Oh, that's easy," remarked one of the prisoners, as he and his companions laughed.

"Well, we'll make it $2,000 bail each if it's such a laughing matter," interjected the lawyer for the instructed Policeman Sanders to file an additional charge of felonious assault against each of the men. Later they were released on bail.

SAY HE POISONED WIFE AND MAN TO WED AGAIN

Georgia Jury Accuses Doctor of Killing Husband of His Present Wife—Insurance Collected.

WASHINGTON, Ga., June 19.—Dr. J. G. Saggus, of Harlem, was charged with murder in connection with the death of his first wife, and Charles W. Willbanks, husband of his present wife, by a coroner's jury here today.

Warrants for Dr. Saggus were issued soon after the jury returned this verdict:

"We, the jury, find that Mrs. Saggus and Mr. Willbanks came to their deaths by poison administered by Dr. Saggus."

The first Mrs. Saggus died on November 23. Witnesses at the coroner's hearing today testified that on the day of her death she was apparently in good health. She was stricken suddenly and lived a few minutes afterward. According to these witnesses Dr. Saggus said his wife died of heart disease.

Mr. Willbanks died on February 3. Dr. Saggus had been treating him for a chronic disease.

Dr. Saggus and Mrs. Willbanks were married in April.

It was testified that Dr. Saggus carried $5,000 insurance on his first wife, and that Mr. Willbanks carried policies, approximating $1,000, payable to Mrs. Willbanks. It was stated that Dr. Saggus also collected $3,500 insurance when his home was burned soon after the death of his wife.

DENIES SHE WOOED NEPHEW OF M'ADOO

Mrs. Thelma Helms Foster Submits Letters to Show Young Foster Was in Love.

Mrs. Thelma Helms Foster, who is suing Mrs. Nona McAdoo Foster, sister of William G. McAdoo, for alienating the affections of her husband, Angelo Scarpio Foster, the adopted son of Mrs. Nona Foster, said yesterday that she had been grossly misrepresented as a "vamp" and engaged in a conspiracy to obtain Mrs. Nona Foster's fortune.

Angelo Foster, who is 23 years old, said in his affidavit answering the suit that his wife had dared him to marry her in January, 1921. His wife denies this, saying that they were engaged for a period before their secret marriage and that he gave her an antique ring for an engagement ring so that it would not be noticed as an engagement ring. She also showed a letter written in December, 1920, by Foster to her, to refute the charge that she had asked him to marry her.

"My Sweet: I read your darling letter over and over," the letter shown by Mrs. Foster said. "How can I destroy anything so beautiful as that, therefore I am going to send it to you and keep it for me. I must have it till tomorrow so that I can read it over at least half a dozen times more. How I wish I could express myself that way * * * Something that never happened before in my life, to have my thoughts away from my darling mother. I cannot write any more. I must close my eyes and see you before me, Thelma. What makes me love you as I do. What is your soul to mine."

Mr. Foster had previously told his fiancée that he would have to destroy all of her letters for fear that his foster-mother might see them and become suspicious of his great love for his fiancée, said Norman Schloss, the younger Mrs. Foster's attorney, "and this reference to 'destroying something so beautiful' is in reference to the letter written by Miss Helms which he was compelled to destroy because of fear of his foster-mother."

Mrs. Foster, the younger, said that her husband had told her that if they got married and kept it secret he might be able to make money in the Whitney-Forster Corporation, of which he was Treasurer, and which Mrs. Nona Foster charges was used to cause her to sell other stocks and invest the money in the company. Her foster-son's wife said that her husband hoped that when he became financially independent of his foster-mother he might be able to disclose the marriage without fear of being disinherited.

GIFT TO JEWISH BLIND GUILD

Ephraim B. Levy Presents 8 Lots and Will Erect New Building.

Announcement was made yesterday that Ephraim B. Levy, President of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind, had presented eight city lots in Yonkers to the home for the blind which is maintained there by the guild. These lots adjoin the property on which the guild's home is situated, at Old Jerome Avenue and Fairfield Street.

In giving the property, Mr. Levy announced it was his intention to erect a new building in addition to the present home. It was also announced that his sister, Mrs. R. L. Zeimer, would furnish the building.

The guild now cares for teachers and furnishes remunerative work to several hundred blind. One of the most successful enterprises is the manufacture of fine hair goods, which are sold in the open market.

Mr. Levy is a capitalist and builder. He has made large gifts to charity in this city.

SENATOR KATLIN PAROLED.

Hearing Friday to Air Alleged Assault—Policeman Summoned.

State Senator Abraham L. Katlin, arrested Sunday night on a charge of assaulting a policeman at Coney Island, pleaded not guilty before Magistrate Reynolds in the Coney Island Court yesterday afternoon and was paroled for examination on Friday.

Senator Katlin was indignant. He demanded the arrest of Policeman Charles Kerrigan of the Coney Island Precinct, charging that the officer treated him roughly. Magistrate Reynolds issued a summons against Kerrigan, charging assault.

Policeman Kerrigan charged that the Senator failed to obey orders to remove his automobile from in front of the Henderson Building in Surf Avenue. The Senator pushed him off his car, the policeman said.

CITY CAN NOW BUILD STATEN ISLAND TUBE

CITIZENS' UNION LOSES

Proposed Tunnel Generally Regarded as Antagonistic to Transit Board's Plans.

The temporary injunction obtained by the Citizens' Union to restrain the city from proceeding with the construction of the proposed Staten Island freight and passenger tunnel was dismissed yesterday by Justice Lewis L. Fawcett in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn. The city can now go ahead with the work and Justice Fawcett's decision makes it possible for the Board of Aldermen to concur in the appropriation of $350,000 for preliminary expenses, which has already been passed by the Board of Estimate and for which it is proposed to raise the money by the sale of corporate stock.

The matter came before Justice Fawcett upon the application of Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel for the Citizens' Union, to continue the temporary injunction issued on May 19. Mr. Wallstein attacked the act of the Legislature authorizing the city to build the tunnel as unconstitutional, and contended that the law creating the Port of New York Authority, which has plans for a tunnel under New York Bay, had the effect of repealing the Staten Island act.

Mr. Wallstein also asserted that the project would entail an expense of $100,000,000 and would be a waste of the city's money. Justice Fawcett ruled against him on all points, and held that the Board of Estimate had full power to select the sites for the tunnel and its terminals, which answered another point raised by Mr. Wallstein that the tunnels would be so far inland as to constitute a street railroad which he held the city had no right to build.

The city administration's proposed Staten Island tunnel is generally considered antagonistic, not only to the proposed tunnel of the Port Authority, but to the plans of the Transit Commission for a rapid transit tunnel to Staten Island. It has been said both by supporters and opponents of the city administration that construction of the city's tunnel would be likely to prevent the construction of either of the other tunnels, and that the Board of Estimate's action in making a preliminary appropriation has been in part to forestall the commission and give the Authority to both of which Mayor Hylan and his colleagues on the board are antagonistic.

WHITE FOR PARIS WAITERS?

Change From Black Held Necessary to Identify Them Among Guests.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—Are the familiar black tail coats, which are the pride of the magnificent headwaiters in Paris restaurants, to disappear and be replaced by short snow-white jackets? A weighty discussion is going on concerning this highly important question touching the elegance of Paris. So far the partisans of leaving things unchanged have been able to resist the onslaught of the advocates of the white coats. The headwaiters themselves, in arms against any idea of changing their uniform, say they cannot expect to receive the guest with duly ceremonious gestures when garbed like a bar man. But the innovators—who include several big restaurant proprietors—say the white coat would look decidedly neater and cleaner. To which comes the ready reply that white coats would look neither neat nor clean for long.

Cynical Parisians say the whole question has nothing to do really with the waiters' appearance, the real explanation being that numerous complaints have been received by managers from one or two prominent post-war millionaires concerning the frequence with which they have been mistaken by other guests for waiters.

Here's a Clue to Neil Wanderwell.

TAFT ASKS BRITONS NOT TO BE MISLED

takable consent of the American people."

His auditors listened with rapt attention to Mr. Taft's description of the American Republic and his explanations of America's policy of foreign aloofness and some of the reasons for divergencies between the two peoples. They vigorously applauded when he declared that the sinister activities of hyphenated groups in the United States were overwhelmed by public opinion, and that among naturalized Americans none were more loyal than British and Canadians.

Mr. Taft opened his speech with a graceful tribute to the Earl of Balfour and a compliment to Great Britain for possessing such a statesman. He voiced his gratitude to the Pilgrims for this expression of their good-will and apologized for his avoidance of certain subjects, the discussion of which might have been possible were he a simple private citizen, but was precluded because, as he described it, "the monastic order I have joined and the vows I have taken prevent such discussion."

He proceeded briefly to review the history of the relations between Great Britain and America, in the course of which he said:

"No trouble arises between the two countries that we of America do not all of us look forward to its settlement either by negotiation or by arbitration. Any other event is not considered for a moment. This American state of mind is a constant factor in our relations; it sometimes produces an apparent indifference or lack of sroltement on the part of our people over irritating issues that is misleading to the British observer."

Mr. Taft's Reference to "Hyphenates."

Mr. Taft alluded to another source of misunderstanding—the gigantic experiment in which America was engaged of trying to Americanize masses of immigrants congregated in large cities where they retained the same environment as in their own countries and did not feel the Americanizing influences to which earlier immigrants were subjected, and whose home and racial prejudices had not been mitigated, as had been hoped, by living under the American flag.

"It was hard for a British subject living in his own country, filled with homogeneous people, he said, to understand the occasional and temporary political power of hyphenated groups in America, constituting a small minority but sometimes holding the balance of power between the great political parties, and how this factor delayed America in entering the World War.

Mr. Taft then referred to the reaction following the overwhelming strain of the war and the interval of complacence, which was not a period of good nature or common sense, and which all the allied peoples were now experiencing.

"We must regard bickerings and unreasonable sensitiveness," he added, "not as a discouragement, but as a symptom of recovery."

He said he was unable to touch upon the question of why America did not enter the League of Nations, but could only say, looking back over the controversy, that American membership in the League would have had to overcome a deep-seated popular conviction, confirmed by a century and a quarter's experience, of the wisdom of America's keeping out of European entanglements.

"Of course the World War itself shook this conviction," said he, "but the reaction from that supreme effort restored some of its strength."

The Chief Justice spoke of the peculiar functions of the American Senate, which was a factor in every international situation in which America was concerned and "strengthens the hand of those rightfully standing for the Monroe Doctrine and its supposed corollary, the doctrine of hands off European questions."

"But," Mr. Taft continued, "we are making progress, we are acquiring consciousness of our partnership with the nations of the world and our share in the responsibility for what the world does. The war and its lessons have not been lost on us, but the conditions prevailing with us are such that our progress must be slower than some among us would wish."

Mr. Taft was followed by Dean Inge, who pleaded for greater solidarity between the two nations.

"The United States and the allied powers should make it their sacred duty," he said, "to keep up the comradeship of the trenches, no longer against Germany or any other power, but in the service of the great principles for which millions gave their lives."

He declared that Providence had reserved for the United States a preponderating part in human affairs.

Those who sat at the princial table with Lord Desborough, Chief Justice Taft and Ambassador Harvey were the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Earl of Balfour, the Earl of Derby, the Earl of Devonshire, Viscount Cave, Lord Lee of Fareham, Lord Carson, Lord Buckmaster, Lord Sumner and James M. Beck, Solicitor General of the United States.

Among the guests were Viscount Astor, the American Consul General, Robert P. Skinner, and the staff of the American Embassy.

In his message to Lord Desborough, the King said:

"I warmly thank you and the Pilgrims assembled tonight to do honor to your distinguished guest, Chief Justice Taft, for your kind message. It gives me great satisfaction to know that my son's message in starting the movement has been followed with grateful appreciation by his brother Pilgrims."

The Prince of Wales sent this message from the battleship Renown:

"I am delighted to hear that my brother Pilgrims are entertaining Mr. Taft, whom I had the pleasure of meeting for the first time during my visit to New York in 1919. I only wish I could be with you all this evening to renew my acquaintance with your distinguished guest."

Chief Justice Taft kept five stenographers busy throughout the morning answering invitations and requests to speak. In the afternoon he walked through Kensington Gardens.

Mr. Taft said to the Associated Press today:

"I wish you would tell the people at home about the wealth and warmth of the greeting I received from England; for, after all, the greeting is intended quite as much for them as for me.

"I have only three weeks to spend here, and if I were to accept all the invitations to speak and if I ate all the banquets offered me I should burst. It is the first qualification of a statesman or jurist to have good digestion, but, after all, there is a point of saturation in eating, as in all other things.

Outlines His Program of Work.

"I have really more serious things to do. I want to make a comprehensive study of the English judicial system with a view to applying its best features to our own courts of administration. I am especially anxious to observe the English method of expediting cases in the courts of the first instance.

"The English courts have abolished the distinction between law and equity and now have only one form of action. I am hopeful we will take a similar step in our own Federal courts.

"I first came to London during Cleveland's Administration. It makes me feel like an old man now to find that all the English Judges of those days whom I admired so greatly have passed away. Many of my old-time friends also have gone; but, while her public men come and go, England goes on forever. She is immutable.

"The only changes I have noticed in London are increased traffic and numerous monuments to the country's soldier dead and illustrious public servants."

The English newspaper men tried hard to get the former President to discuss prohibition, the American merchant marine and the economic situation in the United States, but he pointed out that his judicial office made it indelicate for him to speak on those subjects.

Mr. Taft has won the hearts of Londoners by his irresistible good humor and affability. Passing along the streets he pats children on the head and smilingly greets policemen. His broad, expansive smile identifies him immediately, and everywhere he is receiving a spontaneous welcome.

Some of the old-time friends of the former Chief Executive of the United States are surprised at his splendid physical appearance, commenting that while he has lost some weight, he has lost none of his geniality.

Walking along Piccadilly, he remarked that the town had remained much the same, but there was a marked difference in the amount of traffic.

"When I was here in 1906," he said, "London had only horse-drawn vehicles and conductors on buses used to shout, 'To the Bank!' Who wants to go to the Bank? A penny all the way.' Now they are carried along on fast vehicles and are too busy to shout."

PREMIERS IN LONDON REACH AGREEMENT

TO MEET AGAIN IN JULY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—Prime Minister Lloyd George entertained Premier Poincaré and Marshal Pétain to luncheon at 10 Downing Street today and afterward the two premiers withdrew to the Cabinet room for a friendly exchange of views. Also present at the conversation were Earl Balfour, the French Ambassador and experts from the Treasury and Foreign Office, as they were wanted.

This exchange of views was held rather to ascertain where each country stood in regard to certain important questions than to come to definite conclusions, but the meeting proved to be of great importance. It was a full and frank discussion which lasted from 3 to 5:30 P. M., and resulted in agreements of a significant character.

Accord on Reparations.

The question of reparations was first discussed in view of the situation created by the failure of an international loan. Sir Robert Horne attended specially for this subject. The British view was that it was in any case a bad moment to endeavor to establish definitely the amount of the German liability, because the economic situation was so depressed and so uncertain that any decision arrived at now might provoke great controversy later on. This is particularly the case with a country like Germany, which is so dependent on the progress made in her foreign trade.

It was decided that the next step should be for the Reparation Commission to investigate the real state of German finances and to endeavor to arrive at conclusions as to whether without the assistance of a foreign loan the German Government could do anything to balance its budget and establish its currency by curtailing expenditure, increasing taxation or by internal borrowing.

When the report of the Reparation Commission on this is received further conversations will be held between the French and British Governments, and M. Poincaré has agreed to come over here again, probably towards the end of July, when the French Parliament will have adjourned, while the British Parliament will still be in session. Meanwhile, pending the report of the Reparation Commission and the further meeting of the Prime Ministers, no coercive measures are in contemplation against Germany.

Agreement on Hague.

The next subject to be discussed was The Hague commissions and their function. M. Poincaré entirely agreed with the view held by the British Government that the function of the experts at The Hague was to examine in conjunction with the Russians any practical means which might be suggested for solving the difficulties that arose at Genoa over the three questions of debts, private property and credits.

The experts were to make recommendations to their respective Governments with regard to the possibility of arriving at satisfactory arrangements with Russia on these points and the Governments would then be free to take what action they pleased individually. There was complete agreement between the British Ministers and M. Poincaré to co-operate on these lines in the work of The Hague commissions.

On the question of Tangier the details were not discussed. But both M. Poincaré and the British Government agreed to act on a proposal made by the Spanish Government that the subject should be taken up in a conference a trois—British, French and Spaniards. This meeting will probably also be held toward the end of July in England when M. Poincaré comes here.

Finally the conversations turned to the question of the Near East. It was agreed that both the British and French Governments should expedite the appointment of a commission proposed by the British Government to inquire into statements made by American eyewitnesses that Greeks are being marched into the interior of Anatolia to perish by the way or be killed by oppressive labor when they get there.

The commission is also to inquire into the accusations and counter-accusations which the Turks and Greeks both make against each other of massacres in the war areas. It is proposed to discuss the Near Eastern question again when the two Premiers meet in July.

It is hoped the report of the commission to be appointed will be available by then, but this is in doubt, as the time is short and the commission, it would seem, is to investigate both sides of the case and will adopt its own methods of inquiry to get trustworthy information.

It should be mentioned that it is hoped Señor Schanzer will be in London next week when these questions can be discussed, but it is obviously desirable that Italians should also be here in July when the Near Eastern question is being dealt with by the British and French Governments.

Interallied Debts Broached.

LONDON, June 19 (Associated Press).—According to a report of the conference from a French source, the question of interallied debts was broached, but the two Premiers were compelled to recognize the impossibility of dealing with this problem without the United States, and it was agreed that nothing could be done during the present year respecting this matter.

It is understood that M. Poincaré will propose that the Sultan of Morocco shall send a representative to the Tangier conference.

The view taken in authoritative French quarters is that today's conference happily marks the resumption of direct contact between the two Premiers, who have agreed to take no decisions in the future without having previously consulted each other.

The utmost cordiality is said to have been displayed on both sides. The Prime Minister and his daughter, together with the Earl of Derby and a brilliant company, went to the railway station to bid the President and Mme. Poincaré farewell.

French See Relations Improved.

PARIS, June 19.—The Hague Conference, reparations, Tangier and the Near East were, according to French special correspondents who have accompanied M. Poincaré to London, the subjects discussed in a two-hour conversation which the French Premier had today with Mr. Lloyd George after luncheon at Downing Street. As was forecast, however, nothing new in the way of policy on any of these vexed questions seems to have been evolved between the two statesmen, unless it be, as is hoped, better understanding of the Soviet's viewpoint and intentions.

The reception given to M. Poincaré in London has been warmly appreciated by France and there is no doubt of the truth which has been repeatedly stated during the last three days, that whatever political differences there may be between them, France and England are inalienably joined in friendship by their common past and their common suffering.

"We are far closer bound today to the British Commonwealth," says the semi-official Temps tonight, "than we were in 1906, when the Entente cordiale was framed and the task which our statesmen have now to undertake is not to create friendship—that exists—but to reconcile those interests of our nations which are conflicting."

At today's luncheon party it seems that at least a little progress was made in that direction. M. Poincaré was in the happy position of being able to announce to his host that the French experts would remain at The Hague to discuss with the other nations and with the Russians, on the 26, the joint plans concerning Russia's debts, the treatment of private property of foreigners in Russia and credits for which the conference has been called.

Mr. Lloyd George, says Saurwein in The Matin, expressed himself as delighted with the French decision, which was taken late last evening, and the two Premiers found The Hague an easy subject for discussion. Their agreement is believed to be much closer than it was at the time the Genoa conference came to an end and each has the satisfaction of believing that events have to a large extent justified his policy.

Common Front on Reparations.

Reparations was the second subject for discussion, and there, too, there was agreement, in this at least, that the two Premiers decided they must meet some time soon with the Belgian and Italian Ministers to discuss the whole situation which has arisen as a result of the recent actions of the Reparation Commission and the reaction of Germany. For the present there is no particularly imminent crisis on the horizon, but M. Poincaré is believed to have conceded this point—that the Allies must be prepared with a common and agreed policy against the day when this year's moratorium comes to an end, and that for that purpose they would do well to meet their allies and frame a common program at the earliest possible date after adjournment of the Chamber on July 15.

Time will be necessary to shew to what extent this after-luncheon conversation is likely to affect the destinies of Europe, but so far as the signs have been read by the Frenchmen in attendance there seems ground for hope that to some extent at least the acrimony which has characterized the relations of the two allied Ministers has been lessened and there is more understanding between them than was formerly the case.

FRENCH WILL MEET RUSSIANS AT HAGUE

But Delegates Are Instructed to Quit if Soviet's Attitude Renders Step Advisable.

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

Word to Be Wired to Moscow That All Is Ready for Conference Next Monday.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 19.—The French delegation announced at the meeting of The Hague conference this afternoon that it had received instructions from its Government to take part in the negotiations with the Russians under the reservation that the French would quit the conference any time they thought the attitude of the Russians justified that action.

The French Government has no expectation that the conference will lead to any satisfactory or worth while agreements with the Russians, but for reasons of a general political nature cannot afford to have a big European meeting held without being present.

The conference today named four committees—one general commission with representatives of all the twenty-five nations, and three sub-commissions of eleven members each to deal respectively with Russian debts, Russian credits and foreign-owned private property in Russia. England, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium and Holland are on all three sub-commissions, with the remaining places parceled out among the smaller nations.

The French in their agreement to remain at The Hague emphasized their understanding that the conference is to be non-political and to discuss no principles, but only facts. But strange to say, although all have agreed to this formula I have found no delegate who knows what it means, who can explain how there can be useful discussion of the facts of the Russian debt until there has been a settlement of the principle whether the Russians recognize it, or discussion of the facts relating to private property in Russia until it is settled whether the Russians are going to give it back.

It seems scarcely probable that the experts can get the Soviet delegates into a discussion of ways and means of paying the Russian debt until it has been decided whether it is to be paid, or a discussion of the value of private property confiscated until it has been decided whether there is to be restitution. At Genoa the Russians refused to accept these principles unless a billion-dollar loan were granted, and I have not heard of any delegate at The Hague who is toting around a billion dollars to hand to Krassin on his arrival to prevent "discussion of principles."

Of course what it all means is that there will be discussion of so-called principles if anything is to be done. The present proclamation is all camouflage to prevent a public exhibition of the differences among the powers with regard to Russian policy. It is the French point of view that it is better to let these differences be aired in the absence of the Russians, but the majority of powers have shunned that debate, which means it is postponed until the Russians can hear and benefit by the divergences of those they regard as their adversaries.

The French proposal to agree on a common front being thrown aside, the conference has nothing to do now but wait for the Russians. The idea was expressed by Premier Poincaré that the ten days between June 20 and 26 was too short a time in which to do the preliminary work, but since it is decided to do no preliminary work, ten days is twice too long.

A telegram will be sent off to Moscow tomorrow morning notifying the Russians that the stage is all set and asking them to be present on the 26th. There will be a meeting of the heads of the commissions Wednesday to arrange the details of the meetings with the Russians, but in reality nothing more is to be done, according to present plans, until a week from today.

All in all, the work of the preliminary meeting of The Hague conference adds nothing to the small prospects for great accomplishments.

Preparations to Raise Sunken Brazilian Ship Made in Hamburg.

HAMBURG, June 19. — Preparations were made today to raise the Brazilian liner Avare, which capsized as she was being taken out of drydock last Friday. It is believed that a week's work will be necessary before the vessel is sufficiently righted to make it possible to pump the water from the hold.

The exposed section of the Avare bears seventeen holes, each about twenty-four inches square, which the rescue squads cut in the plates in an effort to reach the imprisoned men.

Total casualties are still undetermined, as some of the crew who were on shore leave have not yet reported, but sixty-five men are missing.

BECK DEFENDS CHECK ON TREATY MAKING

HOLDS IT PROMOTES UNITY

Otherwise, He Declares, a President Might Antagonize a Big Race Element Here.

LONDON, June 19.—James M. Beck, Solicitor General of the United States, concluded this afternoon the three addresses which he has made at the invitation of the University of London upon the Constitution of the United States.

The subject of his last address was the fundamental philosophy of the Constitution. Mr. Beck said that the six fundamental principles of the Constitution were representative government, a dual sovereignty, constitutional limitations, the balance wheel of the judiciary, the system of checks and balances, and the joint control of the Legislative and Executive over foreign relations.

Referring to the joint power of the Senate with the Executive in regard to foreign relations, Mr. Beck said:

"I suppose that since that conference (Versailles) no part of our constitutional system has caused more adverse comment in Europe than this system. It often handicaps the United States from taking a speedy and effectual part in international negotiations, although if the President and Senate be in harmony and collaborate in this joint responsibility there is no necessary reason why this should be so.

Unwilling to Give Full Power.

"I share the view of many Americans that this provision of the Constitution was wise and salutary, especially at this time, when the United States has taken such an important position in the councils of civilization. The President is a very powerful Executive, but his tenure is short. Generally, he is elected by little more than a majority of the people, and sometimes, through the curious workings of the electoral college system, he has been the choice of only a minority of the electorate.

"For these reasons the framers of the Constitution were unwilling to vest in the President exclusively the immeasurable power of pledging the faith, man-power and resources of the nation and of declaring war.

"The heterogeneous character of our population especially emphasizes the wisdom of this course, for it would be difficult, if not impossible, for an American President to make an offensive and defensive alliance with any nation or declare war against another nation without running counter to the racial instincts and passions of a substantial part of the American nation. For better or worse, the United States has limited its freedom to antagonize powerful nations from whose people it has drawn large numbers of its own citizenship.

Bearing on Domestic Harmony.

"The domestic harmony of the nation requires that before the United States assumes treaty obligations or makes war such policy shall represent the largely preponderating sentiment of its people, and nothing could more effectually secure this end than to require the President, before making a treaty, to secure the assent of two-thirds of the Senate and a majority of both houses of Congress before making war.

"While this may lead, as it has in recent years, to temporary and regrettable embarrassments, yet in the long run it is not only better for the United States, but it is even to the best interests of other nations; for in this way they are safeguarded against the possible action of an Executive with whom racial instincts might still be very influential.

"In your country, where the Government is of the day is subject to immediate dismissal for want of confidence, such power over foreign relations can be safely entrusted to a few men, but in the United States, with its fixed tenures of office, a President could pledge the faith and involve his nation in war against the interests and will of the people. Hence the provision for the concurrence of the legislative representatives of the nation.

Sees Unwillingness to Change.

"At all events, it constitutes a system which, as the last Presidential election showed, the American people will not willingly forego.

"It is true that this system makes it difficult, if not impossible, for the United States to participate effectively in the League of Nations; but to ask the United States to surrender a vital part of its constitutional system, upon which its domestic peace so largely depends, in order to promote the League, seems to me as unreasonable as it would be to ask your country to abolish the Crown, to which it is sincerely attached as a vital part of its system, as a contribution toward international co-operation. You would not surrender such an integral part of your system, and therefore it is not reasonable to expect a similar sacrifice on our part, even though the meritorious purposes of the League be freely recognized."

Mr. Beck also dwelt in his address on the unique power of the United States Supreme Court.

POINCARE TO OPPOSE TREATY RESERVATIONS

PARIS, June 19 (Associated Press).—Premier Poincaré, it is understood, has decided to press Parliament for immediate ratification of the treaties negotiated at the Washington conference, without reservations of any character.

Rear Admiral Lacaze, former Minister of Marine, who was charged with the task of studying the treaties, especially the naval limitation agreement, has reported to the Premier that in his judgment there will not be any pronounced opposition.

One consideration that seems to have weighed strongly with the Government in reaching its decision is that it would be well for France to ratify these treaties before Great Britain, with a view to modifying the unfavorable impression produced in America by the French delegation's position on some aspects of the naval question.

While the French Government, it is declared, has determined to decline to accept amendments or reservations, it seems probable that some will be proposed in the Chamber of Deputies.

DUTCH REDS GET READY.

Make Fiery Speeches Preparatory to Welcoming Russians.

THE HAGUE, June 19 (Associated Press).—Holland's communists are few in number, but they are striving to advance the Bolshevist cause and a world-wide revolution. They are preparing to welcome the Soviet delegation, and as a preliminary held a mass meeting here yesterday at which violent speeches were made by the leaders. The speakers condemned The Hague conference as an attempt to restore capitalism in Russia.

The President of the Communists, Van Dissel, declared that it was a last desperate attempt to bolster up the regime of private property, which is shaking.

Wynkoop, a member of Parliament, said that The Hague conference was trying to wring the neck of the Soviet Government, but the Soviet would never pay the debts of the Czarist regime, despite Europe's intentions. Russia needed either a supporting international revolution or credits from capitalism, which capitalism, the speaker declared, "should be forced to give without humiliating compromises from the Soviets."

Every Communist returning to a town or village, he urged, should proclaim that revolutionary Holland will fight to the utmost any attempt to restore capitalism in Russia, and fight also for the extension of credits to starving comrades in Russia.

RUSSIAN WORKERS CAST A STATUE OF BLANDY

MOSCOW, June 19.—The workers in the Government iron foundry at the town of Slatoustovsk in the Ural Mountains have cast a statue in memory of Harold P. Blandy, the American relief worker who died in that region from typhus.

A replica of the statue which is to be presented to Blandy's mother has just reached the Moscow headquarters of the Relief Administration. It is about six and a half high and represents a smith with a lifted hammer, beating out a spade on an anvil. The vigorous design is the work of an illiterate hand in the factory.

On the pedestal there is the inscription "dedicated to the mother of Blandy, in memory of her son, who met an untimely death on the field of combat against famine in the granite-gray Urals, this tribute of the workers and the local Government."

LOCATES TREASURE IN RIVER

Captain Carson Says Chest Lost 300 Years Ago Will Be Recovered Today

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont., June 19.—The treasure lost by the Jesuits 300 years ago has been located, according to Captain Robert Carson, in charge of the hunt in the Wye River for the iron chest. The box, lost when missionaries fled down the Wye, rests on the edge of the great hole dredged in the bottom of the river, Captain Carson said, was found during the second of his descents into the river yesterday.

He said he believes the chest, with its golden altar vessels and manuscripts telling of the early history of Canada, will be brought to the surface early tomorrow morning.

MANCHU PROVINCES FOR REUNITED CHINA

WU PEI-FU DOMINATES ALL

Much, However, Depends on Wu Ting-Fang, Who Has Not Yet Accepted Premiership.

PEKING, June 19 (Associated Press).—Two significant developments today pointed to a reunited China in the near future. One was found in official advices from Canton that Sun Yat-sen's downfall was complete. The other came in a telegram from the three provinces of Manchuria, where Chang Tso-lin has attempted to establish a separate empire, that the three provinces were ready to join the united China movement.

The telegram from the Manchurian Assemblies stated that, while Manchuria enjoys self-government, it nevertheless was willing to join in the program for unification.

Anyoxe from Canton, made public by the Peking Government, declared that Sun Yat-sen, although still unconvinced of his defeat, had been entirely eliminated from the field of Chinese politics, and that General Chen Chiung-ming, ardent proponent of the unification movement, was in complete control of the former South China capital.

The Canton dispatches said that Sun's gunboats had opened fire on the city in a desperate effort to retrieve their Commander's lost control, but that the attack had been refused.

Early reunion of China under a Constitutional Government is forecast by the Chinese Press as a result of the elimination of Sun Yat-sen and of the overthrow of Chan Tso-ling.

It is understood here that President Li Yuan-hung before accepting the Presidency had received the pledge of General Chiung-ming that the latter would attempt to abolish the Canton Government and that Chen's coup of last week was carried out in furtherance of this pledge.

In the north the leaders of Wu's army on the Southern Manchurian front and the forces of Europe's friend Chang Tso-lin in that region have concluded a definite armistice, according to advices from Chinwang-tao, and already Chang's Fengtien troops are withdrawing toward Mukden, much as Chang agreed they should under the former armistice he signed with Wu and later broke. The armistice, according to all available information here, resulted from a meeting of the two commanders aboard a British vessel at Chinwang-tao last Friday. There is nothing at hand to indicate that it is entered into in anything but good faith on Chang's part.

Foreigners at Canton were forced to flee for safety from the indiscriminate firing of Sun Yat-sen's gunboats Sunday, according to a Canton dispatch to foreign legations here. Two thousand persons, including many foreigners, boarded a vessel when hostilities opened and went to Hongkong.

A dispatch from American sources at Canton said that during the bombardment the American Consul, accompanied by the senior American naval officer there, boarded the Chinese flagship Saichi and protested against firing upon the undefended city.

Sun Yat-sen, commanding the naval forces in the river, the dispatch said, promised to confine his bombardment to barracks and gun emplacements outside the city.

LONDON, June 19.—Sun Yat-sen, former head of the Chinese Government, who fled from Canton upon the occupation of the city by the forces of Chen Chiung-ming, was on one of the warships which shelled Canton Saturday, says a Hongkong dispatch to The London Times.

The warships continued their bombardment for half an hour at midday, using six-pound and three-pound shot, and firing was renewed at 4 o'clock, the gunners being apparently reckless of the lives of civilians.

After the firing ceased, Chen's troops robbed the people in the streets on the pretext of searching for arms and ammunition. The streets shortly became practically deserted, whereupon the soldiers took to looting the shops.

A later Hongkong dispatch to The London Times says there is a lull in the fighting, and that many battalions of Sun Yat Sen's northern expeditions are returning to Canton and that Chen Chiung Ming is also bringing up more troops. Trustworthy figures of the casualties from Saturday's bombardments are lacking, but it is popularly estimated that they reached more than 1,000.

Mrs. Zinsser Indictment Dismissed.

Judge Koenig yesterday, in General Sessions, dismissed an indictment returned against Mrs. Gertrude B. Zinsser of 164 Pennington Street, Passaic, N. J., charging her with contempt of court in January, 1921, in failing to comply with an order of Justice Ford, in the Supreme Court, for the production of her twelve-year-old daughter in court. The order was issued in connection with habeas corpus proceedings instituted by her husband, Rudolph Zinsser, for possession of the child, who has since died.

MAROONED A YEAR IN ANTARCTIC ICE

the hut, so that save for a doorway it was impossible for daylight to penetrate. Always we had to keep candles burning, and when we were rescued our stock of these amounted to but twenty.

"Having finished our huts—tiny places at best, for 'the lounge' measured 8 by 6½ feet and was 5 feet 9 inches in height—we decided to exercise our inventiveness in making such necessary articles as forks, candlesticks, shovels, tables, seats, ladders, shelves, bookcases, &c. By oversight we had not a single fork or candlestick on the island. We soon made a fairly useful set of forks out of a piece of packing case cut to shape with a penknife and the empty cigarette tins were turned into primitive candlesticks with the aid of a pair of nail scissors. Our one treasure, hence our desire for candlesticks which would keep the lighted candle rigid and firm. Out of the empty kerosene tins Lester and I made a useful Dutch oven for roasting seal and penguin flesh, while hand shovels and posers were also fashioned from tins.

"We worked from dawn until dark for weeks on end preparing ourselves for Winter and when the moon was shining we continued our work out of doors until dead tired, we were compelled to rest. There was much to do and little time in which to do it. Tons of stores had to be moved to the cover which the huts provided. Seals and penguins had to be caught and killed. We slew 200 penguins and thirty seals, leaving their bodies stacked near the huts to freeze.

"Our bedroom was in the bottom of the old boat and the roof, which the deck formed, was three feet two inches above the floor. There, side by side, we had our sleeping bags resting on a soft bed formed of eiderdown rugs, skins and penne grass which we had brought from Norway. All this was stored in the fore part of the boat, which measured 27½ feet by 10½ feet broad. The remaining space in the boat was used for stores and as a kitchen, so that we now possessed a two-storied house.

"Really, when we had finished our task, we had quite a comfortable home, for the floor of our sitting room or lounge was covered with skins and the walls with eiderdown. Our library occupied one wall and a large cabinet gramophone took up the whole corner. We had no room for tables or chairs, but we made ourselves comfortable on the floor or the skins. In the centre of the floor was a hole leading to our kitchen and bedroom in the bottom of the boat. Here we did all our cooking on a primus stove and later on a coal grate was made.

"Our other hut, which we used as a workshop, was a constant source of worry for the roof leaked badly when the thaw came, but the leaks even served a good purpose as we were able to get a good supply of water for washing without having to tramp through the quagmire outside.

Conducted Scientific Work.

"The work of preparing the quarters for Winter did not prevent our continuing the scientific work we had started on landing. Every two hours during the day we took meteorological observations for forty days. Hourly we took tide readings and as our quarters were finished we devoted ourselves more and more to scientific duties. We carried out a survey of the locality and have been able to add much important information regarding the region of Andvord Bay and have proved existing charts to be wrong in many respects.

"In my own particular branch of science, geology, I succeeded in collecting a considerable number of specimens from Andvord Bay and Deception Island, but so far as I was able to ascertain from those there do not appear to be any indications of important mineral discoveries which could be put to economic advantage.

"Both Lester and I made a very careful study of the penguins and collected a mass of data regarding their ways and habits, while we obtained numerous photos of these strange and interesting birds. In the Summer months when the little island was an absolute quagmire of guano and the whole place smelt fearfully of ammonia, almost choking us at first, the penguins nested there in thousands. Some appeared to think our presence an intrusion and were distinctly hostile to us. They insisted on nesting close to our huts, but after a while they seemed to adopt an attitude of frigid toleration. Some, however, were quite friendly and affable.

"Lester and I caught many pairs and marked them with ink so we could readily recognize them in the rookery. These marked birds we kept under observation the whole time they were on the island. Each bird we marked was given a name, so we had Mr. and Mrs. Sarah, who built their nest on the step of our meteorological screen and who used to peck our feet when we took readings, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, who nested next door to Mr. and Mrs. Harriet and Mr. Harrison, an unattached bachelor much in love with Mrs. Harriet, greatly to the annoyance of the lady's husband.

"Then there was a whole colony of birds living on the rubbish dump some distance away who were regular outsiders, the criminals of the piece, the direst and most unkempt of the lot. They were ostracized by others on account of their continual brawling, thieving and general low habits. The members of this colony made a regular habit of stealing stones from the other birds' nests and were always being chastised. We named them 'the east end colony.'

"Strange to say the colony had two rulers, female birds, unmated, but ready to indulge in a love episode with any of the fraternity. These two female rulers appeared to insist on the whole colony living a life of implicit obedience. We named the two Ash Dump Ann and Dirt Dump Dolly. They were certainly the direst pair of penguins I have ever seen, but they controlled their subjects when thieving raids were undertaken. Too lazy to collect stones for their own nests, the east enders made periodical raids on the nests of other birds in the vicinity and even upon their own companions' nests.

A Sample of Penguin Thievery.

"During a love episode which we were watching between two members of the more aristocratic community, a member of the east end colony appeared on the scene. The lovers had built a nest little nest and were flirting close by when the east ender appeared. He looked around craftily, and saw the lovers and the deserted nest. There was his chance. One by one he took the stones away in his beak and carried them to the east end colony, where 'Ash Dump Ann' was waiting to receive them. The love episode ended, the foolish penguins returned for the home in vain. The last stone was vanishing in the bill of the east ender, who was making for his part of the rookery with all possible speed. Overtaken by the irate lover who had lost his home, a bitter struggle ensued, which soon became a public fight, but the lovers had to build a new nest.

"The old Nestle's milk cans were an endless source of amusement to some of the birds, particularly a pair who nested on the roof of our bedroom, Lionel and Lame Lizzie. These two would get the others to join them in the sport of rolling the empty milk tins down the sloping parts of the island, while in turn the birds hopped over them and danced with glee. Lionel and Lame Lizzie were a very inquisitive pair and would pay us regular visits to look round our hut if the door was open.

"Penguins are strangely human in many respects. There are married couples living together. Some of the couples are models of domestic happiness, others the reverse, just as human beings. There are single penguins of both sexes, flappers and gladeyes. While some husbands remain faithful to their wives and some wives to their husbands, others do not. Mrs. Harriett was a glaring example of this, and Mr. Harrison suffered much from the scandalous babbling when caught by the irate husband of Mrs. Harriett too near the domestic hearth. I came to the conclusion that Mrs. Harriett was guilty of encouraging Mr. Harrison, and that a good thrashing would not do her any harm. Mr. Harriett seemed to hold the same view, and one afternoon he administered a sound thrashing to both the lady and her lover. But it did not seem to cure her, although Mr. Harrison did not come around for several days after that incident.

"Then there was the case where the woman wore the breeches. A female bird was seated on a nest, and the husband strutted about preening himself. A dashing young lady bird happened to pass that way and the cunning old husband, after a cautious glance in the direction of his wife, followed in the wake of the flapper who had passed the glad-eye to him. Picking his way along carefully with an occasional glance behind to make sure his wife was still safe in the nest, the male bird came up with the female, and there was a brief conversation and much bowing to each other.

"But the wife at home had seen her spouse and his outrageous flirtation. Hubby was bowing in a most courtly manner when she came along. With her flipper she gave him a nasty smack, overbalancing him, and then turned her attention to the fair charmer, but the young lady had seen enough and made off as fast as her legs could carry her. Hubby, ruffled and soiled, gathered himself up and marched off home, his wife close on his heels keeping up a lively chatter and plainly telling him what she thought of him. Back home, hubby was made to sit on the nest covering the eggs while his wife went off to discuss the situation with her neighbors and tell them what a bad husband she had.

Terrors of an Antarctic Winter.

"Winter came down upon us rapidly. But fortunately we had practically completed our preparations for the cold, dark days when the raging blizzards and roaring winds swept the locality. The days grew shorter and shorter and the cold more and more intense. Behind our hut on the shore the sea was frozen and huge chunks of ice and small bergs rose from what a few days before had been blue water. A little further away, across the narrow stretch of ice, huge mountains always covered with the glacier cone till their crests were hidden in clouds as black as night.

"Every day we had to dig our way out of the hut. Often we were completely buried in the snow. The dogs had to be continually excavated from beneath the snow. Often we found them lying half frozen beneath five and six feet of frozen snow, but when the snow held off our slight troubles and worries were amusements.

"Few people in England can imagine the terrific force of an Antarctic gale. The icy wind comes roaring down from the mountains direct from the South Pole and sweeps all before it. Our hut would shake and tremble, threatening every moment to fall before the gathering force of the storm. Happily the little structure stood firm. Seated in the hut during the blizzards we were compelled to shout at the top of our voices in order that we might carry on conversation in the road of the wind. If our hut collapsed we should have been frozen to death.

"Life in the hut was by no means a picnic during that long Winter when everything was frozen solid. The worst trouble was experienced in our bedroom. Our breath striking the low ceiling just above our heads as we lay in the sleeping bags would freeze, forming a hoary frost which clung to the ceiling in great patches until finally the whole would be covered. Then as the temperature in the hut rose the hoar frost would thaw and in thawing water in great splashes would fall on our faces just as we were dozing. Our fur-lined sleeping bags, damp with perspiration from our bodies, would quickly freeze once we left them in the morning, with the result that when we sought them at night all the fur would be matted and frozen in sharp, pricking spikes, and after a few nights we discovered masses of ice in the bags which had to be melted.

"Both Lester and I enjoyed an unbroken record of good health, if headaches and an occasional toothache be excepted. This we are both convinced can be attributed to the very simple food we ate—an abundance of fresh meat provided by seal and penguins and more important than all, total abstinence. During the whole time we were alone neither of us touched a drop of liquor. Tea was our principal drink.

"Our daily menu for the eleven months that we were alone on the island was: 'When penguins' eggs were plentiful, was as follows: 8 A. M., breakfast, pemmican with strips biscuits and tea; 2 P. M., tea, antartic biscuits and very occasionally a little jam; 8 P. M., supper, minced seal meat mixed with pemmican and dried vegetables, tea and antartic biscuits. On alternate nights in place of seal we had penguin breasts cut into cubes and boiled in pemmican. Toward the end of the winter the penguin meat became so foul that we could not eat it and we replaced it by sardines, of which we possessed a few tins, and baked beans. We always fried our sardines in seal oil before eating them. The salt meat also went bad toward the end of the Winter, but we continued to eat it, camouflaging it as much as possible with pemmican.

"When the thaw came early in November we witnessed some wonderful sights. The sea ice, breaking up into wide leads, showed us the blue water in canals cut in the ice. At times the whole pack was on the move, grinding past our little island. Then thousands of tons of ice would come roaring down the high mountainsides and fall into the sea or onto the sea ice. At times the "One morning during December, away in the distance I saw what I at first took to be a small iceberg. It drew nearer and I distinguished her as one of the whalers making for the island. She was the Norwegian whale catcher Grahame and on board were Captains O. Anderson, V. Hansen and Skedsmo, with the British Government whaling magistrate from Port Stanley, A. G. Bennett. At first they did not see us on the island, and then only one of us was seen through glasses. Captain Skedsmo, who by the way was the whaling captain to whom the late Sir Ernest Shackleton applied for aid at South Georgia and who went to rescue the members of that expedition, told me they approached the island with fear and trembling.

"'We had all given you up for dead,' he said. 'We were sure you would never survive the Winter. When we could not see the flag flying and there was no sign of life on the island our suspicions seemed confirmed.'

"At this point Mr. Bennett spoke.

"'Yes,' he said, pulling a Church of England prayer-book from his pocket, 'we were so sure we should find you both dead that I brought this with me to read the burial service. No one at Port Stanley thinks you to be alive.'

"The Graham was the first catcher to penetrate the ice and she had been pushed at top speed, regardless of dangers and the real purpose of the voyage to the Antarctic. We could not thank our rescuers sufficiently. They were anxious that we should leave the island immediately, but this we could not do. The stores of the expedition had to be made safe and our belongings packed, so the captains agreed to allow us another fourteen days on the island and during our last days there we worked like slaves sorting and packing the gear. When the Graham returned to take us off we had made everything secure and had nailed up the huts and posted a notice forbidding any but shipwrecked mariners to touch any of the stores or gear. Bennett duly placed a British Government seal on the doors and we boarded the catcher and from her decks saw our home fading away in the distance.

"Of the kindness and consideration shown us by the Norwegian whalers I cannot speak too highly. I need quote but one example. When the Graham came to the island the first question we were asked was, 'What food have you?' We told them we had not tasted potatoes for over twelve months and immediately every potato in the little ship was given to us. We learned afterward that the little vessel had been practically stripped of food to ensure that we had a plenty and until she returned to her base the captains and crew of the steamer went on short rations.

"For months we remained with the catchers, making a careful study of whaling conditions and charting the localities visited, including the harbors used by whalers of which little is known. Five months from the day we left Andvord Bay to the catcher we reached England.

"In conclusion Bagshawe declared his readiness to take part in another expedition.

"My one regret is," he said, "that I have not been able to see Hope Bay and explore that unknown territory where there remains untold work to be accomplished.

The Butcher—The Baker —The Home-Maker

The Home-maker chooses a butcher, a baker, a grocery man for three reasons. First—because of the dependability of the Quality of the foods they sell. Second—because she can rely upon them to make deliveries promptly. Third—because their service is courteous. And for these three reasons thousands of home-makers choose Knickerbocker as the Ice Man. Knickerbocker Ice is absolutely pure ice—made from 4 times filtered water. This means Quality. Knickerbocker delivery is so regular you can almost set your clock by the deliveryman's arrival. This means Reliability.

Knickerbocker encourages all employes to become stockholders—most of them are. This makes for courteous service.

IRISH TREATY GAINS MORE SEATS IN DAIL

INDEPENDENTS LEAD POLLS

Fate of Coalition Is in Doubt—De Valera Delays Statement on Constitution.

DUBLIN, June 19 (Associated Press).—Only fragmentary election returns were available at a late hour tonight, but the results thus far known show unexpectedly heavy voting for the Independent candidates, and as between the treatyites and the anti-treatyites on the panel a predominance of support for the former.

Generally the results confirm the Cork conclusion that the Laborites' second preferences overwhelmingly favored the treaty, and that the anti-treaty poll was less than one-fourth that given for the treaty. Nevertheless at the headquarters of the Republicans it was declared that the Republicans did not count on a diminution in their strength by more than fifteen members of Parliament. The most pessimistic estimate there was forty Republican members in the Dail.

Noteworthy defeats as at present estimated include Mrs. Tom Clark, whose husband was executed Easter week, 1916, who was at the bottom of the poll in Mid-Dublin, Alderman Murphy, Republican Dail member, South Dublin, and Joseph McGrath, Minister of Labor in the Provisional Government northwest Dublin.

Notable successes on the first count are Lord Mayor O'Neill and Alderman Byrne, Daniel McCarthy, chief Election Agent for the treatyites, Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defense, and Philip Cosgrove, pro-treaty member of the Dail and brother of the local Government minister.

Alderman McGarry, pro-Treaty panel, was also elected in Mid-Dublin. He received 6,495 votes on the second count by the transfer of surplus votes from O'Neill and Byrne. The first count of the votes cast in Mid-Dublin for Parliament showed: Lord Mayor O'Neill, Independent pro-Treaty, 9,407 votes; Alderman Byrne, pro-Treaty, 7,899 votes; both elected. Northwest Dublin: R. J. Mulcahy, pro-Treaty panel candidate, 2,352; Philip Cosgrove, pro-Treaty, 6,118; both elected. There are four seats to be filled in each case.

Among those elected to the Dail are Mr. O'Connell, Labor candidate, and the sole Independent candidate in Galway; Mr. Gaffney, Labor, and William Cosgrove, Minister of Local Government in the Dail Cabinet, respectively in Carlow and Kilkenny; Mr. Dineen, farmers' candidate, and Mr. Kent, Coalition Republicans respectively in North and Northeast Cork.

Several results on the first preference lists have been announced, but they are unreliable until the full results have been published, as much depends upon the distribution of the second preferences.

Every precaution was taken to prevent a seizure of the ballots such as occurred at the National University after the closing of the polls there on election day. Large forces of Free State troops are on guard.

It is now considered doubtful whether a coalition can be formed. The difficulties of army unification have not been overcome, and all prospects for peace are said to depend on an arrangement with the regular forces.

Eamon de Valera announced this afternoon that he would not issue his expected statement concerning the new Irish constitution today. He said he had only received the full official text of the document this afternoon. He is believed to be waiting for the complete election results.

Girl Is Killed in Ulster.

BELFAST, June 19.—A twelve-year-old girl, Margaret Livingstone, was shot dead yesterday in her father's house at Ardlougher, County Cavan, by armed men. The raiders asked for the child's father, James Livingstone, local postmaster, demanding arms. Dissatisfied because he gave them only a shotgun and a revolver, they lined up in front of the house and fired a volley through the windows.

A party of armed men this morning kidnapped James Blaney from the Downpatrick infirmary, where he was being treated for a wound received in an encounter with the military on May 22.

STRANGLED BY FALSE TEETH

New Yorker Found Dead in Chicago First Thought to Have Been Slain.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The body of a man believed to be James E. Stroud of 506 West 147th Street, New York, found behind a west side residence early today, presented an unusual mystery to the police, for, after a preliminary investigation, they were unable to determine whether the man had been murdered or had accidentally strangled to death on his false teeth while asleep.

The neck was discolored, indicating strangulation, and a stained hatchet handle near by led at first to a theory of murder. Further examination showed that a set of false teeth had lodged in the man's throat, leading the police to believe he might have fallen asleep and strangled when the teeth fell back.

A baggage check on the body led to discovery of a suitcase at a railroad station in which were numerous books, taken by the police to indicate that the man had been a teacher or a student. A telegram in it was addressed to James E. Stroud at the New York address.

A class schedule also was found in the suitcase, and other documents indicated that the man was on his way from New York to Des Moines, Iowa.

The shoes had been taken off the body and all papers removed. No money was found, and the police expressed a belief that robbery was the motive for the murder. If it was a murder.

The body was found by a 16-year-old girl, who stumbled over it as she stepped out of the rear door of her home.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 19.—James E. Stroud, 30, an electrician, who was found dead in Chicago, lived in Des Moines with his wife and child and mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Wolgamot, until last December, when he went to New York, his former home, in search of employment.

According to Mrs. Wolgamot, Stroud became ill soon after his arrival in New York and had been unable to go to work because of his weakened condition.

James E. Stroud, found dead yesterday in Chicago, was an electrician who had been here since the first of the year. He left Saturday for Des Moines to see his wife and child.

At the house where he lived here it was said that he apparently never carried large sums of money with him, and his neighbors knew of no possible motive for his murder.

Woman Takes Poison in Ferryhouse

Mrs. Hivert D. Hodgman, 19 years old, of 325 West 139th Street, was taken to Bellevue Hospital yesterday afternoon from South Ferry suffering from iodine poisoning. Her condition is said not to be serious. Persons waiting in the Ferry House who saw the young woman fall summoned an ambulance. Mrs. Margaret Wood, a tenant at the 139th Street address, told the police that Mrs. Hodgman had been ill for the last week, and left her home yesterday morning to take a walk. Mrs. Wood said the young woman was the wife of James Hodgman, a lieutenant colonel employed in the United States Naval Communications Office, 44 Whitehall Street.

PARIS ENVOYS HAIL ARGENTINA'S CHIEF

MAKES FOR WORLD PEACE

Herrick Recalls Prestige of Our Earlier Presidents Through Diplomatic Experience.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—Something very like a plea for a return by the United States to the practice of choosing its Presidents from among its foreign diplomatic agents was advanced today by Ambassador Myron T. Herrick at a luncheon given in honor of Senor Marcelo de Alvear, President-elect of the Argentine Republic, who during recent years has been the Argentine Minister to France.

Ambassador Herrick was the spokesman of the occasion, and warming to his subject of the happy choice for Argentina of a President who knew something about European affairs, he stated that such another choice by the United States of America would be no bad thing. The choice of the people of Argentina, he declared, had given the New World a "very precious lesson in returning to the example set by the early fathers of my own country."

For the first thirty years of American independence, he recalled, the United States Presidents were all men who had represented their country abroad, either as Ministers or on missions of high importance. They brought to the difficult problems which confronted them not merely a first-hand comprehension of European politics, but personal knowledge, often sympathetic knowledge, of the European peoples, and to that the Ambassador ascribed not a few of their successes in steering a wise course through the rocky channels of foreign diplomacy.

As an example the Ambassador cited the Monroe Doctrine, which was due in large part to immediate knowledge of European affairs of the man whose name it bears. Then Mr. Herrick summed up:

"We now live in a period when relations between all nations are more complicated, more critical and more pregnant with great consequences than ever before in the world's history. To resolve these difficulties and shape the course of any country through these danger needs first hand and highly exact knowledge of other lands and other peoples. Such knowledge regarding his own country any President can obtain in abundance from those about him, but how profoundly useful must it be for any chief of state to know by intimate personal contact the sentiments, necessities and instinctive fears which must be reckoned with in his dealings with other governments."

Then once more the United States ambassador congratulated the South American republic on having elected as its President a man who knew more of the world than he could ever have learned from the newspapers of his native country or any expert observers.

PARIS, June 19.—President-elect de Alvear of Argentina was honored at a luncheon at the Inter-Allied Club today, attended by the diplomatic representatives of virtually all the South and Central American countries. Myron T. Herrick, the American Ambassador, was the chief speaker.

The luncheon was one of the largest gatherings of Latin-American diplomats held on the Continent this year. All joined in paying tribute to Señor de Alvear, who up to the time of his election as President was Argentine Minister to France, wishing him the greatest success in his new office.

Mr. Herrick greeted the President-elect in the name of his colleagues to what he termed a "distinctly family party."

"While Señor de Alvear's departure is a source of regret to all his colleagues," he declared, "his going is so brightened by the great distinction attached to the high post which he is to assume that all can be happy.

"The wise people of Argentina wanted a good President if they had to send 10,000 miles across the ocean for him," said the Ambassador."

Señor de Alvear, replying to the speech of Mr. Herrick, said:

"Nothing could be dearer to me than an expression of sentiments from the most eminent representative of American nations. I am particularly happy that the interpreter of these sentiments today is an illustrious Ambassador whose great gifts make him such a worthy representative of the great republic whose progress, wealth and civilization exercise such influence on all humanity."

The President-elect referred to the praise in Mr. Herrick's speech as homage to the Argentine nation rather than to his own personality, and as proof of the sympathy and affection of the United States for his country.

"I am fervently devoted," he declared, "to the support of closer relations between the younger nations whose short and glorious histories are identical in ideals of liberty and democracy, where men from all parts of the world find under the protection of free, tolerant institutions a home where they may labor in happiness.

"One of my constant preoccupations in the new functions to which my country calls me will be to render, if possible, more effective and more intense the solidarity which traditionally has joined our countries. I am certain to find the cooperation of your Governments in the realization of this noble aspiration, which is to enhance daily the most important rôle which our countries are called upon to play in the concert of nations."

To Visit King of Spain.

According to present plans, President-elect de Alvear will make only one official visit to a European country before he leaves for Buenos Aires on the steamer Massilia on Aug. 1. He will meet the King of Spain some time in July. Count Quinones de Leon, Spanish Ambassador at Paris, will leave for Madrid to make arrangements for the visit.

It is not yet settled whether the meeting between King Alfonso and Señor de Alvear will take place at Madrid or Santander.

BOY FALLS OFF PALISADES.

After Forty-Foot Descent He Is Found to Be Only Lacerated.

Slight lacerations on the hands and face were all that Vernon Nohlindstrom, 12 years old, of Woodcliff, N. J., suffered last night when he fell forty feet over the rocks of the Palisades at the foot of Thirty-first Street, Woodcliff. After being examined at the hospital he was allowed to go home.

With several companions, the boy started to walk along the top of the rocks. Sighting a steamer which arrived yesterday Vernon called to his companion. As he did so, he lost his balance and toppled over the edge of the cliff. The cries of his companions brought a score of men, who rushed down and picked him up. Taken to the hospital, the surgeons made a thorough examination, but found nothing wrong except the lacerations.

WIFE KIDNAPPER GIVES UP.

Marshall Explains He Wanted to Affect a Reconciliation.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 19.—Albert H. Marshall, who seized his wife, Clara Marshall, on the golf links of an exclusive club here and carried her into Indiana in an automobile last Friday, surrendered to the police today.

He is charged with kidnapping by the father of his wife, from whom he is separated and who is suing for divorce. Marshall said he carried his wife away so that he could make an effort to effect a reconciliation.

CAUCUS VOTES, 29-11 TO POSTPONE BONUS

But Republicans Pledge Action on It by the Senate After Tariff Is Passed.

TO RENEW FIGHT ON FLOOR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The Senate Republican caucus voted 27 to 11 today to postpone consideration of the bonus bill until after the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill has been disposed of, after which it was agreed that the bonus should be made the unfinished business of the Senate and kept continually before the chamber until passed.

A motion by Senator McCumber that the tariff be immediately displaced and the bonus receive the right of way was voted down 30 to 9, the nine Senators who voted for the motion being McCumber, Lenroot, Kellogg, Capper, Jones of Washington, Townsend, Nicholson, Sutherland and Norbeck.

As the vote shows, twenty-one of the Republican Senators did not attend the caucus. This does not mean, however, that the absentees were all for the bonus, for among those who were not there were Messrs. Borah, Pepper, Frelinghuysen, France and Nelson, all of whom are against the bonus plan now on the Senate calendar.

With the exception of Senator Frelinghuysen, these Senators oppose a bonus of any kind. The New Jersey Senator is a member of the group which favors the issuance of paid-up insurance policies to the soldiers. These Senators are known as "Smoothes," Senator Smoot being the author of the bill which would work out the bonus problem by the insurance method.

To Renew Fight in the Senate.

It is the intention of a minority of the Republicans and a majority of the Democratic Senators to move to take up the Bonus bill probably tomorrow afternoon. The motion will be made by Senator La Follette and it is understood that in the event the La Follette motion is defeated it will be submitted in a different form from the Democratic side by either Mr. Walsh of Massachusetts or Mr. Ashurst of Arizona.

The motion, in the opinion of some Senators, may lead to a discussion of the whole bonus problem that may last several days.

The first motion put before the caucus was that of Senator McCumber. With this defeated, Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip, proposed that the caucus go on record in favor of making the bonus the unfinished business of the Senate following the passage of the Tariff bill. Senator McCumber insisted that the resolution did not go far enough. He then offered a resolution of his own, which was accepted by Senator Curtis. This resolution, which was adopted, read:

Resolution Passed by Caucus.

"Whereas, at a conference of the Republican members of the Senate, held on the 18th day of April, 1922, it was moved and carried 'that it is the sense of the conference that the Senate proceed without further delay with the consideration of the Tariff bill, and that it is the sense of this conference that the Senate should at this session pass a soldier's compensation bill and that the Finance Committee be required to report such a bill within a reasonable time,' and

"Whereas, the amended Soldiers' Compensation bill was reported to the Senate by the Finance Committee on the 8th day of June, 1922, and is now on the Senate calendar for the action of the Senate, and

"Whereas, reports have been made and circulated to the effect that the Soldiers' Compensation bill might be abandoned at this session, and

"Whereas, such reports are without any foundation whatever, and the position taken by the Republican conference on the 18th day of April, 1922, has been in no respect modified or changed;

"Now, therefore, for the purpose of correcting such reports and to reassure the country and the American soldier that there has been no change of purpose on the part of the Republican members of the Senate, be it resolved by this conference that as soon as the vote is taken on the passage of the Tariff bill the Soldiers' Compensation bill shall be immediately taken up and made the unfinished business and its consideration proceeded with to the exclusion of any other business, except when temporarily laid aside for matters of immediate exigency, and continued as the unfinished business until it is finally disposed of.

"And be it further resolved, that both the said bills shall be pressed to their final disposition as expeditiously as possible and that there shall be no adjournment of Congress or no recess until both these proposed measures are finally disposed of."

Opposition Ranks Growing.

The eleven who voted "No" on the resolution were Messrs Edge, Ernst, Dillingham, Brandegee, Phipps, Nelson, Fernald, Wadsworth, Calder, Newberry and Warren. This would appear to indicate that at least three Republicans, Dillingham, Fernald and Brandegee, have been won over to oppose the bonus.

It is said that the opponents of the bonus will also win a few recruits from the Democratic ranks. One of these is Senator Swanson of Virginia, hitherto for the bill. Three other Democrats, it is said, may also be against it when the time to vote comes. Rumor has it that these Senators are Fletcher of Florida, Broussard of Louisiana, and Overman of North Carolina.

Bonus Senators from both sides of the chamber were in conference all the afternoon mapping out their plan of campaign. They met in several places and every time the newspaper correspondents found them they dispersed to meet somewhere else. A Senator who participated in the conference said that it was the intention of those who wanted action now to "smoke out" those who had been shouting for a bonus and who were said to be ready to vote for a postponement.

"We do not propose," said Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, "to see the bonus shunted aside without a record vote. We are going to find out how the Senate stands on this proposition. The action of the Republican caucus this morning means nothing. It will not fool the country for a moment. There is no telling when this Tariff bill will pass. The way things are going it may not pass at all."

Despite the statement made in the Senate on Saturday by Senator McCumber that he was certain the President would sign the Bonus bill, it is asserted by friends of Mr. Harding that his position is unchanged and that he will sign no bill that does not provide for the financing of the plan by means that will meet his approval.

Sustains Maryland Soldier Bonus.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 19.—The constitutionality of the Maryland Soldiers' Bonus act, passed by the last Legislature with a referendum attached, was upheld today by Judge Charles F. Stein, in the City Court. Judge Stein dismissed a petition for a mandamus to compel the Supervisors of Election to keep the measure off the ballots at the election next November. The case will be taken to the State Court of Appeals at once.

HARVEY SON-IN-LAW HELD IN ARMS PLOT

When the guns were uncovered in the coal bunkers of the East Side at Hoboken they were claimed by Frank Williams, who had also told investigators that his name was Frank Kernan. He said then that he could not understand how the guns had disappeared from the Bronx warehouse where they had been stored by him. It was learned also at that time that 500 guns had been stored in the Bronx, but that only 495 had been found in the bunkers of the East Side. Three months later Berke was arrested and indicted.

Colonel Thompson said a year ago that it was a mystery to him now the guns reached Williams. His company had a contract for the manufacture of 15,000 of the guns by the Colt Patent Firearms Manufacturing Company of Hartford, Conn., and delivery of the arms to the ordnance company was begun about April, 1921. The contract had been signed about a year previously.

During the war Colonel Thompson, who was graduated from the Military Academy at West Point in 1906, served in the Fifty-first Coast Artillery in France, one of the regiments handling the heavy guns behind the lines. In his seventeen years in the army he had served also in the infantry and the cavalry.

Gun Designed by General Thompson.

After the war he resigned his commission to become Vice President and General Manager for the Auto Ordnance Company, which makes small arms. The Thompson gun is made on the design drawn up by Colonel Thompson's father, Brig. Gen. John T. Thompson, who during the war was Chief of the Small Arms Division of the Ordnance Department. General Thompson also took an active interest in the company. The officers of the company, as listed in the latest directories, are John Lavrin, President; Marcellus H. Thompson, Vice President; Frank J. Merkling, Secretary; Adolphus F. Long, Treasurer, and Clendenin J. Ryan, John Larkin, Marcellus H. Thompson, Frank J. Merkling and Adolphus F. Long, Directors.

Smuggled on Board in Bags.

Discovery of the contraband guns aboard the East Side came about in a peculiar manner. A few days before the ship was to sail the chief engineer and his entire force quit, saying that they had been informed that they would be beaten up by the strikers who were attempting to terrorize ship crews in the port at that time. But an Irish chief engineer told the ship's officers that he would take the vessel out and furnish his own engine room crew.

When these new men appeared the ship's officers noticed that they talked with an Irish brogue and hauled up large bags from a launch. They told inquirers that the bags contained "engine room supplies." One by one the bags disappeared into the hold.

An inquisitive member of the crew stuck open one of the bags and discovered the outside of a gun. He reported his find and the Federal authorities trooped to the ship to investigate. The ship was searched, and all the bags carried in by the new engine room crew were carried away to the Appraisers's Stores. The ship sailed for Dublin with its regular crew.

A few days later it was learned that the British Secret Service in this country had had information about the attempts of Irishmen to smuggle arms out of this country to Ireland, and was willing to give the American Government its information. It was learned also that a few months previously the British Government had learned of the Thompson invention, and had considered buying some of the arms for its own military use.

THOMPSON GUNS IN IRELAND.

Official Says They Were Used Against Ulster Constabulary.

LONDON, June 19 (Associated Press).—Colonel Harvey, the American Ambassador, stated today through his Secretary that he had nothing to say in regard to dispatches to the London papers announcing that Colonel Marcellus H. Thompson, a son-in-law of the Ambassador, had been indicted at Trenton, N. J., on the charge of conspiracy to ship arms to Ireland.

When the attention of a high Ulster Special Constabulary official in Belfast was drawn to the report from New York of the indictment of Colonel Thompson, he declared that Thompson guns had not been employed by the Ulster constabulary, but that they had been used against the constabulary on several occasions. He added that at Cranagh the constabulary had captured a magazine. It had been reported, the official said, that Thompson guns had been employed in the Belfast riot zone, but the fact had not been clearly established, and also that the Thompson gun played a big part in the Clones Station fight last February, when four special constables were killed.

COLTS ARE THE MAKERS.

Disclaim Responsibility for Guns After Their Delivery.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 19.—President Samuel Stone of the Colt Company, when informed of the indictment of Colonel Harvey's son-in-law, said today that he was greatly surprised. He was aware, he said, that an investigation had been made months ago, but he thought that the trouble had been cleared up. President Stone made it clear that the Colt Company was not interested in what disposition the Auto-Ordnance Company made of the guns manufactured for it by the Colt Company. For two years now the Colt Company has been manufacturing the Thompson sub-machine gun as it is called, which is described as a cross between a rifle and a machine gun.

The Auto-Ordnance Company has its headquarters in a separate building at the Colt plant where the guns are delivered by the Colt Company, accepted after inspection and shipped to the Auto-Ordnance Company. The work of the Colt Company is confined to delivery of the guns to the representative of the Auto-Ordnance Committee.

SOVIET TO EXPLOIT GEORGIAN OIL FIELDS

TALKING OF TRADE WITH US

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 18.—Russia is going to make a big effort to restore the productivity of the Transcaucasian oil fields without awaiting the aid of foreign capitalists. Representatives of the Georgian Republic have just left Moscow after having received from the State Bank large sums—stated as approaching $1,000,000—for the purchase abroad of the machinery, &c., needed to develop the industry.

The project became known as the result of a sudden flurry in the foreign exchange market early last week, caused by the conversion into gold and foreign currency of the three or four trillion rubles given the Georgians by the bank. The ten-ruble gold piece, that was steady around 17,000,000 paper rubles—which put the dollar at 3,400,000—jumped to 23,000,000 and the dollar to 4,500,000 in consequence of the Georgian demand. The market showed surprising power of resistance, which is a tribute to the success of the "bread loan" described in a previous dispatch and the favorable crop prospects.

On Thursday when the Georgian transaction was completed, the dollar closed at 4,000,000 and the ten-ruble piece at 20,000,000. Yesterday's figures were 3,600,000 and 17,500,000, respectively, and it is expected that the dollar will fall to 3,000,000 before the end of the week. Significance is given to the Georgian oil plans by an evidently inspired article in today's Pravda, which is the official organ of the Communist Party, entitled "Commerce With America." The writer says that America has virtually reached the limit of oil production from her own resources, but that the demand is increasing. Russia's production, it continues, could easily be developed to double the pre-war figure, for less than one-tenth of Russia's resources have been tapped. If Americans would send technicians, engineers, &c., to the Russian oil fields, the editorial says, Russia would be glad to export oil to America in return for a credit of $500,000,000 with which to buy the agricultural and other machinery she needs. The writer concludes:

"That is why we stood off European attempts to get control of our oil fields, whether couched in the diplomatic language of Lloyd George or put forward in Barthou's bullying tones. We quite understand the hungry business men of Europe trying to secure our oil to resell at a profit in America. But we should prefer to do without such 'honest brokers' and deal directly with America ourselves."

MOSCOW, June 19.—(By Associated Press)—Leonid Krassin, addressing a conference of the Russian Foreign Trade Department, of which he is the head, voiced the belief that the resumption of official relations between Russia and the United States was not far off.

Mr. Krassin in his address reiterated the statement that the Government would not surrender its monopoly on foreign trade. The conference was called, he said, to simplify trading through the Government.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(Associated Press)—Suggestions in Moscow that the resumption at an early date of official relations of any character between the United States and Russia is a possibility find no support in Washington. The last word of the Washington Administration on that subject was said very plainly when Secretary Hughes wrote his note declining an invitation extended by the Genoa Conference to participate in the present economic discussion of Russian conditions at The Hague. Nothing has happened since that time to change the situation, so far as the American Government is concerned, in any way. Mr. Hughes in his note said that the suggestion that the United States join in a purely economic and non-political study of Russia could be considered only if the Russian Soviet representatives' memorandum to the Genoa Conference of May 11 was withdrawn. That memorandum set forth the Russian proposal to continue to operate under principles of Sovietism and yet to obtain financial aid from other Governments hostile to Soviet doctrines.

Behind the American note was the plain intimation that the United States Government regarded Sovietism itself as the compelling reason for the economic collapse of Russia and believed that no study by economic experts could arrive at any other conclusion. Coupled with this was the equally plain declaration, by inference at least, that the American Government would not recognize for any purpose a Government founded on Soviet theories and would advise all American commercial or other interests that sought to deal with the Soviet authorities or with business interests under the jurisdiction of such authorities that they did so at their own risk and could not expect protection from their own Government.

SOVIET LEASEHOLD PLAN.

Terms of 33 and 49 Years Contemplated, With Inheritance Rights.

MOSCOW, June 19.—New decrees presented to the Council of Commissars propose the granting of individual rights to build on leased plots, with thirty-year leases for wooden buildings and forty-nine for stone. The property, if the decrees become operative, will be tax free for the first three years, with the right of direct line inheritance.

Another decree provides for the free exploitation of all mining properties, excepting only those "already exploited before Nov. 7, 1917."

RUSSIAN RUBLE PARADOX.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—According to a copy of the Russian journal Ekonomitso-Heskala Eizu, which has just been received here by a French Socialist, the editors offer a month's subscription for 1,200,000 rubles. For a two months' subscription the price is 3,000,000 rubles. The apparent paradox is explained by a note saying that the difference in price for the first and second months' subscription is due to the estimated depreciation of the ruble in the next four weeks. The amount of this depreciation is so uncertain, however, that subscription prices cannot be quoted more than two months in advance.

Says Natives Overcharged.

Dr. Henry H. Rusby, Dean of the College of Pharmacy of Columbia University, who described his South American expedition to a group of botanists at the Commodore recently, has written a letter to THE TIMES stating that in his absence of missionaries who made excessive charges for transporting the party he did not refer to them as "foreign," as he was quoted. He says they were the native missionaries of Covendo.

BAKHMETEFF LEAVES WITH MANY HONORS

BUSINESS MEN LAUD HIM

Give a Luncheon in His Honor—Church Bestows Its Special Blessing—Russian Workers Join In.

Boris Bakhmeteff, Russian Ambassador to the United States, who will retire to private life at the end of this month, after five years' service here, sails today on the Berengaria for several months' rest in London and Paris before returning here to live as a private citizen. Mr. Bakhmeteff has spent the last few days at the Hotel St. Regis, where his stay has been notable for an almost unending series of calls from friends and associates who wished to compliment him on the success with which he has carried out his duties under exceptionally difficult circumstances and to wish him well in his future career.

Yesterday the Russian-American Chamber of Commerce gave a luncheon at the Lawyers' Club in the Ambassador's honor and at the close the members and guests gathered about him to wish him bon voyage and a safe return to this country. S. R. Bertron presided at the luncheon, with Ambassador Bakhmeteff on his right and ex-Secretary of State Frank Polk on his left. Among others present were Norman H. Davies, former Assistant Secretary of State; Oscar S. Straus, former Ambassador to Turkey; Frederic R. Coudert, H. H. Westinghouse, William H. Woodin, President of the American Car and Foundry Company; Roland H. Morris, former Ambassador to Japan; R. Fellowes Morgan, Serge Ughet, Financial Attaché of the Russian Embassy, who will now be in charge of Russian affairs in this country; Henry W. Taft, Charles H. Boynton, E. R. Thomas of the United States Steel Corporation; Charles H. Muchnic, Vice President of the American Locomotive Company; Franklin Remington, John Spargo, C. P. Coleman, Jerome Landfield and C. F. Ahlstrom.

After the luncheon Mr. Bertron, Mr. Polk and Mr. Coudert spoke in turn, warmly praising Mr. Bakhmeteff's tact, skill and sincerity during his five difficult years in Washington and the Ambassador briefly replied. Mr. Polk eulogized him as a patriot to whom Russia, when her people realized all he had done in defending her national patrimony and discouraging interference in her internal affairs should "raise the tallest monument in the land."

Robert Lansing, first Secretary of State in President Wilson's second Cabinet, wrote expressing his regret that illness of a near relative prevented his attendance at the luncheon, and adding:

"You personally know the very high regard I have for Mr. Bakhmeteff, who has, under the most embarrassing circumstances, conducted the affairs of the Russian Embassy with tact and ability. The public service which he has rendered will be, one of these days, fully recognized and he will receive generally the commendation which he so richly deserves. My personal relations with Mr. Bakhmeteff make the necessity of declination of the invitation all the more regrettable to me. For him as a man, as well as a diplomat, I have the highest regard, as I am sure have those who understand and appreciate his five years in this country as the representative of the Russian people."

Before his departure the Ambassador received the solemn blessing of the Russian Church at a special service in the Cathedral of St. Nicholas, the Metropolitan. Dr. Platon, with Archbishop Alexander, Bishop Stephan and other clergy descending from the altar with the sacred ikon of St. Boris to confer the blessing, and the Metropolitan reading a eulogy of the Ambassador's work in saving the property and investments of the church in North America in the Bolshevist crisis.

Afterward, a group of Russian workers, representing the Christian Brotherhood of Russian Working Men, presented to the Ambassador on a wooden platter the traditional Russian good-will offering of bread and salt in token of their appreciation of him.

FRENCH DEBT MISSION NOT TO NEGOTIATE

Parmentier Will Be Authorized to Present Budget Information Only.

PARIS, June 19 (Associated Press).—Jean V. Parmentier, head of the French financial mission, which will confer with the War Debt Commission in the United States relative to the French debt, will be prepared to supply information only, without submitting any proposals in behalf of the French Government as to terms of payment.

His function, it would appear from what has been given out concerning his approaching visit to the United States, will be limited to spreading before the commission the present balance sheet of France, from which, it is assumed here, the French Government will attempt to convince the commission that it cannot really engage to pay definite sums at definite terms.

M. Parmentier has changed his sailing date from June 24 to July 1. He will be accompanied by a junior representative of the Foreign Office. He is analyzing numerous documents relating to budgetary conditions in France, various forms of indebtedness and the liabilities still resting upon the country for reconstruction, so that he may be able readily to answer any questions asked by the Debt Commission without cabling to Paris.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (Associated Press).—A French financial mission, authorized only to present statements of the financial condition of France in relation to its war debt to this country, will be received by the Debt Funding Commission, officials said today.

Although the mission, which is to leave France July 1, will not, according to reports from Paris, be empowered to discuss the terms of funding the debt nor the time when France could be expected to begin payments, the presentation of data, it was said, can be regarded as the first step toward funding negotiations. Discussion of the French situation, it is believed, will be helpful to the American commission in preparing for the actual funding negotiations.

COURT DISBARS TUFTS.

Removed District Attorney Failed to Contest Proceedings.

BOSTON, June 19.—Supreme Court Justice Crosby today ordered the disbarment of Nathan A. Tufts, former District Attorney of Middlesex County. The proceedings were uncontested.

Tufts was removed from the District Attorneyship last Fall by order of the Court after an extended hearing on charges of misconduct in office preferred by Attorney General J. Weston Allen.

At a hearing before Justice Crosby two weeks ago, counsel for Mr. Tufts and for the Middlesex Bar Association, the petitioner for his disbarment, agreed that the evidence in Tufts's trial before the Supreme Court should apply in the disbarment proceedings.

SURVEY NAVY YARDS TO REDUCE THEM

SENATE INQUIRY SOUGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A thoroughgoing resurvey of all navy yards and land stations of the navy is being conducted under the direction of Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Acting Secretary of the Navy, with a view to ascertaining whether all existing stations are necessary in the interest of economy and efficiency.

The survey has reached the point where, it is understood, an announcement will be made by Lieut. Col. Roosevelt within the next fortnight. It is probable that one navy yard will be abolished.

Whatever the decision resulting from the survey, there is no likelihood that any of the major yards, like those at New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Mare Island or Puget Sound, will be abolished. These are considered so necessary to the maintenance of the fleet that it would suffer severely if any of them should be eliminated.

The announcement of the resurvey was made by the Acting Secretary in reply to a request for comment on the move to abolish "useless" navy yards and stations made in the Senate earlier in the day by Senator Medill McCormick, Republican, of Illinois, who introduced a resolution calling for investigation by a special joint Congressional committee on the "Economy and Efficiency of the Administration of the United States Navy."

Senator McCormick said that Acting Secretary Roosevelt believed many naval stations could be closed without impairing the navy's efficiency. At the Navy Department it was asserted that Mr. Roosevelt had not authorized Senator McCormick to make such a statement, but it was admitted that recently, when Senator McCormick asked Mr. Roosevelt whether all "these navy yards are necessary," the Acting Secretary had replied, "Good Lord, no. We have closed some already."

Acting Secretary Roosevelt pointed out today that as a result of the survey begun more than a year ago the Navy Department had closed the navy yard at New Orleans. No other yard has been abolished, though the Navy Department has done away with a number of air and other stations.

"The undertaking of a resurvey," said Mr. Roosevelt, "is no new matter with the Navy Department. The matter was first taken up by the department more than a year ago, and has been under constant consideration ever since. We have authority to close down any navy yard or station that is not needed, but cannot sell any station without Congressional authority."

Regardless of whether yards or stations are closed, the reduction in the appropriations carried in this year's naval bill will force heavy cuts in the civilian personnel and workmen at yards and stations. Mr. Roosevelt announced last week that this cut would approximate about 20 per cent., which means that something like 10,000 workmen will be removed from the payrolls of yards and stations, beginning July 1.

The investigation called for in the resolution introduced in the Senate by Senator McCormick, if ordered, will be made a joint committee of the Senate and House and will inquire particularly into the administration of navy yards, bases and stations. An amendment proposed by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts would include aviation and the alleged failure of the navy to give proper attention to this phase of the naval problem.

"Talk about rivers and harbors and other pork barrels," said Senator McCormick, "there is a naval pork barrel that stretches from Cape Hatteras, Me., to Key West, Fla., and Key West along the coast of the Gulf and to the Pacific all the way to Puget Sound. One-third of the existing naval establishments should be closed. They are not necessary, and if they are abolished the efficiency of the navy will in nowise be impaired."

Senator Borah said he was in complete sympathy with the purposes of the resolution, and Senator King of Utah, also supporting it, declared that in his opinion no less than 150 of the 400 naval establishments should be abolished.

The naval race between the nations is still in progress, said Senator Borah, and this despite the treaties negotiated, but so far ratified only by this country, by the Conference for the Limitation of Armament that met in Washington last Winter. The conference, added Senator King, appeared to have been futile.

"The United States Navy," said Senator Walsh, "alone of all the great navies is ignoring the development of aviation. The time has come to realize that as a means of national defense battleships and craft of that kind are becoming more or less obsolete anad that the day of aviation is at hand. There is no question as to the importance of this aviation problem."

Senator McCormick asked for immediate consideration of the resolution, but on the objection of Senator Dial of South Carolina consideration was postponed until a later day. The resolution probably will be called up before the end of the week.

British Drifter and Crew Given Up.

Wreckage of the Blue Sky has been washed ashore. The vessel carried a lieutenant, two midshipmen and eleven sailors.

DEMOCRATS FOR END OF SENIORITY RULE

Leaders Are Expected to Issue a Declaration for Change in Congress System.

LIMIT ON SOUTH'S SHARE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Democratic leaders have under consideration the advisability of making a declaration of party principles and policies with reference to Congressional Government. Their discussion of the matter has developed an atmosphere favorable to the proposal and it is expected that the declaration will be forthcoming soon.

To a considerable extent the proposed declaration will be based on the present chaotic condition with which the Republican Party in Congress is confronted through the lack of effective leadership in the Senate and the House. Those behind the Democratic Party movement to issue a declaration contend that the delays and tangles which have prevented the enactment of important legislation are the outcome largely of placing the legislative administration in the hands of elder statesmen instead of giving preference in leadership to those who are qualified to be leaders.

Another purpose of the proposed declaration is to assure the country that if the Democratic Party is returned to power in Congress through the elections this year committee chairmanships will not be confined mainly to Senators and Representatives from one particular part of the United States. This intention is based on a lively memory of the criticism leveled at the party when it was in control of all branches of the Government concerning the dominance of Southerners among the chairmen of committees. The party leaders who advocate the issue of the declaration are concerned over the fact that under present conditions nearly every chairman of a House committee and the generality of chairmen of Senate committees would be from the South if the Democrats carry the November elections and the seniority rule is followed in arranging committee chairmanships.

There is a hopeful feeling among Democratic politicians that many former members of Congress who were defeated for re-election in the Republican landslide of 1920 will be returned in this year's elections. The desire is expressed by those behind the movement to hold out to these former members the opportunity of being recognized on their merits in the distribution of committee chairmanships, and that they shall not be made to feel that their absence from Congress for two years will put them at the bottom of the lists of Democratic members of committees.

Some opposition to the proposal of a declaration existed when the movement was initiated, but there is now a more favorable feeling for the idea, and it was said today that there was a good chance of making the declaration with the sanction of a large number of influential Democrats in both houses of Congress. The program of the supporters of the plan contemplates not only a geographical distribution of committee chairmanships, but offering the opportunity to every Senator and Representative of proved ability to be judged in committee preference on his merits, and not solely on the length of his service in Congress.

It is believed by those engaged in furthering the movement that such a declaration will appeal strongly to the country.

$295,450,000 NAVY BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The annual Naval Appropriation bill, carrying approximately $295,450,000 and providing for an enlisted personnel of 86,000 men, was passed late today by the Senate and sent to conference with the House.

Action on the enlisted personnel, now about 115,000, is final as the Senate accepted the House decision and the question will not come before the conferees, who will deal principally with the Senate increases of about $44,000,000 over the House bill. There was no record vote of final passage and no effort was made to reduce the enlisted personnel.

Unsuccessful efforts to end American occupation of Haiti, the Dominican Republic and Nicaragua and to launch a congressional investigation of navy administration marked the final day's debate. An amendment by Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, providing for withdrawal of American marines from the two republics and Nicaragua, Dec. 31, next, was rejected, 42 to 9, after nearly an all day debate, in which the American policy of intervention was both attacked and defended.

Controversy on the Haitian and Dominican intervention policy divided both parties. Five Republicans, Senators Borah, Idaho; Johnson, California; Ladd, North Dakota; La Follette, Wisconsin, and Norris, Nebraska, supported Senator King's withdrawal amendment, and four Democrats, Senators King, Overman, North Carolina; Walsh, Massachusetts, and Walsh, Montana, voted in its behalf. Another amendment by Senator King to cut the marine corps from 19,500 men to 17,500 men was rejected without a record vote.

Supporters of the King withdrawal amendment declared that American intervention in Haiti, Santo Domingo and Nicaragua was causing feeling in Latin-America and also in Europe against the United States. Senator McCormick, Republican, of Illinois; Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio, and Oddie, Republican, of Nevada, of the Senate Committee investigating Haitian affairs on the other hand said intervention was necessary to aid the Haitians in establishing an orderly government of their own and denied statements of opponents that a permanent policy of occupation was involved.

that the story about the gold cannot be true."

The discovery by Dolgos is said to have been made in 1917. Operating with cavalrymen in the Belgian Congo, he became lost in a jungle, according to the story told at Katonah. The vegetation was so thick as to conceal the ground from both horse and man, and the horse stepped out into space and tumbled with the rider, rolling over and over again down the sides of a slope, their fall being broken by the thick growth, so that both escaped serious injury.

After readjusting his saddle and looking around, Dolgos walked his horse along the ravine. At first the ravine was dry, but he came upon a spring of water rising from a small basin. It flowed a short distance and then disappeared into another basin.

The thirsty trooper lay prone and drank. He noticed, as he told the story to people at Katonah, that the bottom of the basin was paved with yellow pebbles. Picking one up, he found it heavy and metallic. On being scratched it shone like gold. Dolgos filled his pockets.

Being lost in a wilderness and in danger of starvation, his wealth was of little immediate benefit to the soldier. He took his bearings carefully, however, and studied the landmarks, having the purpose then in mind of returning to make his fortune sometime after the war.

Dolgos wandered for days, husbanding scant rations. Finally he got on the trail of the cavalry and rejoined them. He said nothing to his companions about the find. He kept the nuggets concealed until after the war, when he had them assayed and sold them to the jeweler.

Dolgos, it was said, has lived at Golden's Bridge for two or three years. Whether he made previous attempts to interest capitalists before taking up the matter with Mr. Barrett is not known.

Checked Up Soldier's Story.

It is understood that Mr. Barrett thoroughly checked up the story of Dolgos's service in the Belgian Congo, of his becoming lost, of his return to his column and of the sale of the nuggets to the jeweler. In what country the sale was made to the jeweler has not been disclosed.

The apparently complete proof that Dolgos picked up $1,000 worth of nuggets which lay in plain view in a spring was considered evidence sufficient to warrant the belief that millions more were to be picked up from the streambeds in the vicinity and possibly millions more by mining the rock from which the gold was washed.

The reported discovery by Dolgos is far greater than the original one by John Marshall in California in 1848. He picked up a few small bits of gold in a mill race near Coloma. His find, followed by similar discoveries by employes of Capt. Sutter, sent 80,000 people to California in the following year, in spite of efforts to keep the secret. The news traveled back overland from California to the Mississippi Valley and further East and by ship to New York and to New England. The gold-seekers took two main routes—overland by prairie schooner from St. Joseph, Mo., and by ship from New York and Boston.

At that time no such elaborately financed expedition as that led by Mr. Barrett was made to California, and the deliberate organization of a large syndicate to exploit a secret gold discovery in a new part of the world is said to stand practically alone in the history of gold discovery.

KIDNAPPERS TRAIL ACTOR'S CHILDREN

FOLLOWS FOILED ROBBERY

Nassau Authorities Hold Handwriting Test—Two Indictments Are Predicted.

Detectives are guarding the Great Neck, L. I., home of John E. Hazzard, Broadway star, playwright and theatrical manager, while District Attorney Charles R. Weeks of Nassau County is hunting the writer of an anonymous letter threatening to kidnap the Hazzard children. The fact of Mr. Hazzard's receipt of the letter, printed crudely on cheap paper, was not disclosed until last night, when the authorities announced at the same time that evidence soon would go to the Grand Jury which was expected to result in the indictment of two men.

That part of the letter which was made public read:

"Your children are going to be kidnapped, no matter how long it takes. This is my revenge."

In their efforts to protect Mr. Hazzard's family and thwart the kidnapping plot, if the letter were more than an idle threat, the police turned for a clue to an attempted robbery of the Hazzard home last April. A maid gave the alarm when she became suspicious because a man telephoned asking if Mr. Hazzard were at home at an hour when he was playing on Broadway. The inquirer said he had an appointment with the actor. As a result, two men were captured. One was released, but the other, Joseph Ferriti, is in the Mineola jail awaiting trial for burglary.

Charles Hanson, a handwriting expert, was asked to examine the letter. Hanson made a selected list of words, involving the characters used in the anonymous missive and induced Ferriti to print sentences embodying those words. After Ferriti had complied, he was questioned by detectives.

It was after the test had been made that the authorities said they were nearly ready to submit evidence to the grand jury. They refused to tell whether they had found cause to complain against Ferriti. The letter was mailed from New York, but it was pointed out that it easily might have originated elsewhere.

SUBPOENA DEFIED BY WARD'S FATHER

ing or the alleged blackmail that preceded it.

The fourth witness was Ralph Ward. It was the second time he had appeared in the conspiracy proceedings. Last week he told the Judge what his father had told him of Walter's story of the blackmail and the shooting. Yesterday he explained his father's departure from New York.

Ralph said he made reservations some months ago for his father to attend a bakers' convention at Bedford Springs, Pa., which ended several days ago. When the trip was planned, the witness said, his father had in contemplation his usual trip to inspect the plants of the baking company, of which George S. Ward is President, in various cities.

Denies Evasion Was Planned.

Ralph assured Justice Morschauser that no evasion was planned by his father, but he admitted that he had had his father on the telephone and that his father knew that he was wanted. He said his father's attitude was that he had other plans and had to carry out the arrangements that he had made.

Mrs. Leland Stanford Wood, the sister, was the fifth and last witness. She had been heralded as an extremely important witness, but it turned out that she testified only to her lack of knowledge about the case. She was on the stand only two minutes.

"We want an immediate trial," said Campbell. "Our client is facing a Summer in jail and he has the right to have a jury pass on his case. If innocent, he should have an immediate opportunity to prove it. Have any of you fellows ever noticed the inscription across the front of the Court House here?"

There was a pause, while reporters read the inscription: "To none will we sell, to none will we delay, to none will we deny right or justice."

"Why don't you fellows find out how many cases there are waiting trial here?" the attorney went on. "The only one we have been able to discover is that of a negro mentioned by Justice Morschauser the other day. Why don't you look up the records? We are ready for an immediate trial and we want it."

Mr. Campbell admitted in reply to a question that the time of the trial was entirely in the hands of the prosecutor.

Only Bluffing, Says Weeks.

When Frederick E. Weeks, District Attorney, was informed of Mr. Campbell's statement, he said:

"The answer to that is that when I get the case ready for trial, they'll go to trial, and not one minute before. They're only bluffing."

Mr. Weeks said there were twelve or fifteen persons in the jail awaiting trial. The only murder case found by reporters on the records was that of Everard Blankes, the negro charged with the murder of George Harris, another negro. Blanke's trial will begin before Justice Morschauser next Monday.

The only prospect now seen for an early trial is the production of the missing Charley Ross and Jack, whom Ward says were present when he shot Peters, and the members of Ward's family who are now evading subpoenas. Justice Morschauser told the defense the other day that there would probably be no difficulty about getting an early trial if these persons were produced. It was said last night the defense has been unable so far to produce Charley Ross and Jack, but were trying to do so to make a bargain with the prosecution for a trial of the case in July.

John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie, who will be special counsel to District Attorney Weeks, is expected at White Plains to confer with Mr. Weeks before the end of the week. A statement attributed to Mr. Weeks, to the effect that the story of Mr. Mack's connection with the case was only "newspaper talk," was interpreted in well-informed quarters as possibly a "diplomatic" denial. It leaves the door open for an official announcement that Mr. Mack has been retained within the next few days.

Deputy Sheriff Frank Cnerion interviewed a Bronx taxi driver named Fleming yesterday in order to learn whether two men Fleming had driven through the locality where Peters's body was found had anything to do with the case. Fleming said his passengers were "well-known gangsters" who play for high stakes. On the night of May 3, he said, he drove them to Mount Kisco. His lights went out, a policeman stopped him and took his license number, and his passengers threatened to take them to Yorktown. Later, he said, they came back to Mount Kisco and he took them back to New York after daybreak. Fleming said he had passed the spot where Peters's body was found, but did not see it, as only the dim glow of the lights. The Deputy Sheriff said he believed Fleming to story.

BAPTIST FACTIONS AGREE ON PASTORS

ADOPT A CODE OF IDEALS

Northern Convention Will Close Tonight and Fundamentalists Will Confer in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 19.—The Progressives and the Fundamentalists of the Northern Baptist Convention at last have agreed on one point, and that is that there should be a standardization of requirements for Baptist pastors.

Contrary to all legislation of this nature since the convention opened last Wednesday, a resolution to this effect went through unanimously today. The aim is that when a Baptist pastor is called from one church to another in a different State he may get a certificate from the association of which he is a member to present to the association in the State of his new parish. Heretofore Baptists have had such an arrangement only between certain local State associations. It was thought wise to make this a national arrangement.

"We have two cases of most flagrant immorality in the denomination right now," said the Rev. Dr. E. W. Rumsey of Pittsburgh, "and one of them after a pastorate of ten years."

Dr. Rumsey argued that were it necessary of Baptist ministers to present a certificate of good and regular standing from the State Association in which they had labored, they could not "unload themselves" on other churches which were in ignorance of their records.

"If you will pass these standardization requirements it will make it so a man can't wreck a church and then go to another pastorate without the new church first getting a line on him," he added.

Presented by Committee.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, President of Rochester Theological Seminary, presented the resolution as Chairman of the committee on standardization of the Ministry appointed two years ago.

Dr. George W. Taft, President of the Baptist Northern Theological Seminary of Chicago, and a strong fundamentalist, said he was the "father" of the whole movement, and it was being used in the Chicago Baptist Association.

A delegate on the floor argued that there were a lot of men preaching in Baptist pulpits who, although not graduates of Universities and Theological Seminaries, were "delivering the goods" and ought not to be "shut out."

Under the resolution adopted today "all candidates for ordination who have not already had its equivalent shall be required to complete a two years' course, which shall include elements of the English language, a course in the English Bible and courses in Baptist principles and history, homiletics, modern missions and religious education."

The examination in this course is to be by a committee of the State convention in such manner as each convention may determine.

Provides Temporary License.

"Where a church is served by an unordained minister," says the resolution, "he should be licensed to preach for a limited period. He might also be authorized during this period to administer the ordinances, but ordination should be postponed until he has satisfactorily completed the course of study.

"A pastor accepting a call to a church outside the bounds of the Association in which he is settled shall be expected to secure a certificate of ministerial standing from the committee of the Association and present it immediately on settlement to the committee of the Association in which his new charge is located.

"State conventions are asked to instruct committees of their own organizations appointed to work with the ministers and missionaries benefit board that they decline to recommend any grants for men who have failed to comply with the minimum requirements for ordination, this action to apply only to those who are ordained subsequent to the adoption of this resolution."

It looked for a time as if the fight over a creed was going to be fought all over again this morning, when the report of the committee on financial contributions was presented with doctrinal conditions attached. In the printed report of the committee which was distributed was what purported to be "a statement of the Baptist faith," but C. A. Gallup, Secretary of the Committee, explained that when he read the report he omitted the "confession of faith" because four of the seven Boards of the Convention had refused to sign it. He said, however, that all the Boards had endorsed the two recommendations with regard to the acceptance of money for denominational work.

Dr. Boynton offered a resolution that the whole question be referred to the boards to report back next year. He said he did this, although a fundamentalist, so as not to open again the factional wounds resulting from the creedal discussion.

Code of Ideals Adopted.

On motion of the Committee on Resolutions the convention adopted the following code of ideals:

"We believe that nations no less than individuals are subject to God's immutable moral laws.

"We believe that nations achieve true welfare, greatness and honor only through just dealing and unselfish service.

"We believe that nations that regard themselves as Christians have special international obligations.

"We believe that the spirit of Christian brotherliness can remove every unjust barrier of trade, color, creed and race.

"We believe that Christian patriotism demands the practice of God between nations.

"We believe that international policies should secure equal justice for all races.

"We believe that all nations should associate themselves prominently for world peace and good will.

"We believe in international law, and in the universal use of international courts of justice and boards of arbitration.

"We believe in a sweeping reduction of armaments by all nations.

Circus Interrupts Convention.

"The elephants are passing now, brother," explained Mrs. Montgomery, the President, when one speaker could not make himself heard.

"Well, I have had all sorts of troubles in preaching, but I never had to talk against a steam whistler before," exclaimed the Rev. Dr. M. P. Boynton.

Mrs. Montgomery led the delegates to singing hymns until all the animals had passed.

A resolution to help the Armenians was passed.

The convention will close late tomorrow evening. The leading fundamentalists will go immediately to Chicago to take part in a conference at the Moody Bible Institute. Among the speakers will be the Rev. Dr. J. C. Massee of Boston, and the Rev. Drs. Curtis Lee Laws and Frank M. Goodchild of New York.

OFFENDING HISTORY BOOKS NOW BARRED

SCHOOLS WILL NOT SUFFER

Publishers to Issue Revised Versions —Another Controversy Is Expected.

Nine of the school histories criticised by the investigating committee of the Department of Education for belittling Revolutionary heroes or misrepresenting the American cause in the Revolutionary War, will be used in the New York City schools this coming term, with the exception of two or three whose offenses were considered mild. These may be used, with the objectionable passages deleted.

"The publishers of all the books under criticism," said Superintendent of Schools Dr. William L. Ettinger, "have promised to bring out revised versions, correcting the passages found to be erroneous in fact, inadequate, or in bad taste.

"One or two are so full of errors and so bad in tone that they probably will not be used again in any form. In the meantime, before the revised versions come out, the teaching of history will not suffer. The subject is covered by many good histories against which no objection has been raised. These will be used. If principals wish to use the criticised books, after the revised editions have been printed, they may do so, with the sanction of the District Superintendents."

Some to Undergo Change.

West's history is considered so belligerently pro-British throughout that it will not be used again in the city's schools in any form. McLaughlin & Van Tyne's history, in which more objectionable passages were found than in any other, may not be used again as the volume would have to completely overhauled and reconstructed. The histories of Barnes, Hart and Guitteau also will require elaborate renovation. The change of one or two passages will be sufficient for the others. Dr. Ettinger said the investigation would not result in the use of any standardized text-book.

The Knights of Columbus yesterday claimed the credit for bringing about the revision of the schoolbooks in this city to remove the alleged un-American passages. A statement by John E. Meddin of that organization said:

"More than fifty American cities, all of substantial size, have seen fit to conduct investigations into the validity of the textbooks used in the schools. It matters not what percentage of students used these books; the alarming fact is that un-American and even anti-American history textbooks could find their way into American public schools.

Result of Error, Not a Plot.

"Personally, I never claimed that there was any unified plot to misinterpret American history; but there certainly was a general erroneous conception of the origin and personalities of the Republic, and it was the object of the Knights of Columbus to correct that error."

The "unified plot," as discerned by Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield and others, was explained as a conspiracy of Americans who regarded the United States as a temporarily estranged British colony to lead the country back as an erring daughter to the pre-1776 allegiance to the Crown. Commissioner Hirshfield made no comment on the work of the school committee, and it was said at his office that he was taking a little time to study the work. The school committee found no organized propaganda, and the alleged pro-British and anti-American passages were attributed to a fancy on the part of some historians that it was their function to promote cordial international relations, and also partly to react from the spread-eagle style of teaching history.

Further controversy is anticipated from one ruling of the investigating committee, which held that England was the "mother country," as against critics who insisted that England, France, Germany, Sweden, Holland, Africa and other countries were jointly the maternal ancestor. The committee also ruled unequivocally that American civilization was "English." The committee's report on this topic is as follows:

"When the Revolution broke out, about 80 per cent. of the population was of English origin. In all colonies English was the language spoken. All had acquired English habits and all claimed for themselves the rights of Englishmen. Whatever their origin, it is unquestionable that the Colonists had merged their characteristics in those of the English."

Immigrant's Identity Lost.

"Though, since the Revolution, there has been a very large immigration from Europe, Asia and Africa, and there has been extensive crossing of strains, all have been merged in the national character they found. Immigration has strengthened the stock, but the immigrant has lost his identity.

"We fail to see any valid objection in speaking of the Revolution and pre-Revolutionary events, to calling England the mother country."

Another attempt is made in the report to settle magisterially an old literary controversy in the following passages of the committee's report:

"The age of George III. was one of the most corrupt and venal ages in English history. George III. had no difficulty in corrupting his Ministers. The Ministers had no difficulty in bribing such men as Johnson and Gibbon. As has been said, the one great blot upon the names of Johnson and of Gibbon is the barter of their conscience for money. Both had expressed sympathy for the Americans up to that time. Gibbon had even written against the ministerial measures. Johnson's pen (Pro Nat is writing coarse, ribald and sneering articles against the Colonies."

KLAW AGAIN SUES FORMER PARTNERS

Marc Klaw renewed in the Supreme Court yesterday litigation against Florenz Ziegfeld Jr. and Abraham Erlanger over Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolic and Ziegfeld's Follies. He asks an accounting, charging waste of corporation assets.

Concerning the Midnight Frolic, Mr. Klaw alleges that he and Mr. Erlanger owned fifteen shares each and Mr. Ziegfeld had thirty shares. Ziegfeld was drawing $300 a week as manager of the production, but after Klaw was removed, he alleges, Ziegfeld increased his own salary to $22,500 a year. An officer of the corporation and Erlanger got $1,800. Klaw alleges that such payments were "exorbitant, excessive and waste of the assets."

Mr. Klaw says Florenz Ziegfeld drew $300 a week for managing the Follies and that he increased his pay to $20,000 and voted to give Mr. Erlanger $10,000 a year. They also controlled the lease of the New Amsterdam Theatre and raised the rental for the Follies from $1,500 a week to $2,000 a week, it is charged. The complaint asks Ziegfeld and Erlanger to restore to the treasuries of the corporations the money they have "diverted and wasted."

PIGGLY WIGGLY

Is the Third Largest Grocery Chain Store System in Volume of Sales in the United States

Piggly Wiggly is a scientific system of merchandising. Light baskets are provided for you to carry your purchases to the checking desk, where the checker packs your goods in a neat bag. You don't have to wait to be waited on.

of help-yourself grocery stores, which were originated at Memphis, Tennessee, in September, 1916, has been more rapid during its first five years than that of any other system of chain stores during the same period of development.

In this comparatively short period of time the Piggly Wiggly system won its place as the third largest grocery chain in volume of sales, with a total business of more than $53,000,000 in 1921. The first quarter of 1922 shows more than $5,000,000 a month and indicates, with the expansion under way, a total business for 1922 of at least $65,000,000.

The Piggly Wiggly system totals 750 stores located in 200 different cities of the South and Middle West, and now Piggly Wiggly has come EAST. The Manhattan Piggly Wiggly Corporation with its subsidiary companies (operating in the Metropolitan District, New Jersey, Western New York and the New England States) plans to open—

To Have Curly, Wavy Hair "Like Nature's Own"

In three hours you can have just the prettiest curls and waves that they remain a long time, when liquid ammonia is used before doing up the hair in curlers. When the hair is combed out it will be nice and fluffy. Silmerine is perfectly harmless, and is easily applied with a clean toothbrush. It can be obtained at drug stores and at toilet counters generally; directions accompanying each bottle. It serves also as a splendid dressing, keeping the hair soft and glossy.

Silmerine is fine for the outdoor girl, as it prevents the hair from scorching about the face and neck, when the day is quite warm or windy.

QUESTIONS ACCOUNTS OF VERNON ESTATE

Declares Court Order Contains No Provisions for Making Expenditures.

Francis William Lawrance Venable, Lord Vernon, who has filed his first accounting in the Supreme Court as committee of the property of his mother, Fanny, the Dowager Lady Vernon, will be required to make his accounting more specific if recommendations made to the court yesterday by Charles M. O'Keeffe, who was appointed special guardian in behalf of Lady Vernon in the proceeding, are upheld.

The special guardian expresses regret over being compelled by the responsibilities of his position to question Lord Vernon's accounting, but states that he had no alternative, since there is no provision in the order of Justice Giegerich appointing Lord Vernon committee of his mother's property in 1918 which authorizes him to make expenditures in behalf of the Dowager Lady Vernon without the approval of the Court. Lord Vernon has charged the estate with $37,240 paid to himself for disbursements in behalf of Lady Vernon, who was declared incompetent in 1910 and has since been living at Pau, France.

Lord Vernon received his title from his older brother, who was originally appointed the committee of his mother's property here, and who was killed in the Gallipoli campaign in 1915 in which the present Lord Vernon was seriously injured. He resigned recently as an officer in the Royal Navy, having served in the Grand Fleet under Admiral Lord Jellicoe and was last attached to the office of the Admiralty as commander. Lord Vernon and his wife narrowly escaped death a month ago when, while motoring in Italy in the neighborhood of Vallombrosa, they ran through a fusillade of rifle shots from a dozen bandits. Lord Vernon, who was a daring auto driver in his youth, and was arrested for speeding so many times that his license was finally revoked and he was warned that another conviction would result in a jail sentence without the option of a fine, speeded out of danger.

The Dowager Lady Vernon is the daughter of the late Francis Cooper Lawrance, but the property held for her in this city came chiefly from the estate of her mother. It consists of the income from two trust funds aggregating more than $300,000 and a third interest in the residuary estate, securities which cost $262,737 when purchased, $33,620 in cash and an interest of $37,488 in real estate. Lord Vernon reported that he received $269,890 and has on hand $316,490 after three years.

Special Guardian O'Keefe points out that while the payments made by Lord Vernon to himself for drafts sent to his mother in France amount to less than one-fifth of the income, the court here, to which he must account, "has no check whatsoever upon the expenditures and does not know, nor can it determine, that the remittances in question were actually used for the support and maintenance of the incompetent. It does not appear that the committee is under bond, and no vouchers are shown as to what way the money was spent."

The special guardian states that he objects to an allowance to Lord Vernon of the amount claimed "in order that the question of the validity of such payments to the general guardian (Lord Vernon) may be placed before the court for determination."

The special guardian states that among the securities held by the committee were $21,000 of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul general mortgage 4½ per cent. bonds, due 1989, which the Superintendent of Banks ruled could not be considered a legal investment after March 1 last. For this reason the bonds were sold on Jan. 14 last for $17,122. Mr. O'Keefe said that this transaction would undoubtedly appear in the next accounting.

JEWISH SOCIAL WORK SHOWS BIG EXPANSION

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 19.—Growth of interest in Jewish welfare community centres has been so rapid in recent years that hundred thousand dollar annual budgets for expansion work are becoming common throughout the country, said President Philip L. Seman of Chicago at the fourth annual conference of Community Centre Secretaries, which began a four-day session here today. Within five years $10,000,000 will be invested in realty by community centres, he predicted. Welfare Secretaries from all parts of the country are in attendance.

Dr. Henry Moskowitz, former Civil Service Commissioner of New York, and for many years identified with Madison House, discussed the Jewish settlement movement of the last twenty years. Though the Jewish settlement movement in America during the last twenty years was intimately related with Jewish immigration, he said, subjectively there was little of the Jewish spirit in settlement work. Its origin was Christian, in the light of the idealism from which it sprung.

Dr. Moskowitz declared that the usefulness of settlement work had not ended, but he believed that there was greater need today for the type of interpretation which Jane Addams made classic, for illumination of misunderstood races and of economic groups. No finer justification of settlements, as reconcilers of men, could be given than the leadership which social workers had recently taken in combating the recrudescence of race prejudice, the violation of some of the fundamental American principles of free speech and free assembly, and even the denial of ancient Anglo-Saxon legal rights.

The world, he considered, needed the Jew today as never before. Lying prostrate as a result of the philosophy of national domination, the world needed the vision of the Hebrew prophets, from Isaiah to Christ; the qualities of the Wandering Jew, whose contact with the nations of the world had been a history of adjustment to hostile environment; the emphasis of Hebrew religious genius, and not of Pagan force; the realism of the Jew to face practical questions, not in the heat of chauvinistic nationalism, but in the light of sound moral and economic principles.

HOT WEATHER Fashions

THIS number of Vogue takes the reader through the summer's day with a cool, smart costume for every occasion. Silks will predominate in town, and cottons will prevail in the country. The vogue of black has given way to the summer vogue of white, and it is a white even more brilliant because of the peasant embroideries done in the vigorous gay colors of Russia.

Printed fabrics, cool and colourful, have completely revolutionized the appearance of fashionable gatherings. Hats are as big as small parasols. Cretonne and printed cotton frocks have created a furore.

So begins the Hot Weather Fashions Number of Vogue, dated July first, and ready now. It goes on with a wealth of detail about frock, skirt, wrap, sweater and accessory; launches into the merry doings of an unusually gay social season; has much about manners, more about cool things to tempt the palate of epicures; and a perfectly heaven-sent array of things to buy by mail through Vogue's Shopping Service when sun and wind and summer shower have put your country wardrobe in need of quick refreshment.

KISSEL

The Custom Built Car

Distinctiveness - without penalty of Price

How few automobiles among the many that pass you every day have the rare quality of distinctive difference—difference in beauty and difference in performance that so clearly prove a higher degree of refinement.

You accept it as a matter of course that such distinction is obtainable only in very costly motor vehicles.

Yet one of the cars that surely attracts a second admiring glance is the Kissel Custom-Built Six, priced no higher than the great majority of ordinarily good assembled automobiles.

In the Kissel factory efficient manufacturing has been combined with painstaking hand craftsmanship to produce these fine cars, built to watch-like precision, at prices actually lower than those of a great many automobiles not nearly so well made.

The Kissel Custom-Built Touring Car, now priced at $1885, is the first automobile of true custom-built quality that has ever been offered at anything near so low a price. Other Kissel models, at from $2385 to $3375, likewise represent new low levels of price for cars so designed and so built.

To you who appreciate true distinction in a fine motor car we recommend an immediate investigation of new Kissel values.

Points of Real Kissel Difference

Roadability—made possible by exclusive Kissel frame design that places the center of gravity extremely low yet allows ample road clearance.

Freedom from Vibration—because of dynamic as well as static balancing of Kissel crankshafts, individual balancing of pistons and connecting rods, the latter at both ends.

Quiet Riding—the result of numerous extra precautions in Kissel manufacture—special bushings on all moving chassis parts, a special device for taking up side-play in springs and many other features.

Custom-Built Motor—built in the Kissel plant, with thermostatic control of the cooling system, automatic regulation of the oil supply and many other exclusive features.

Distinctive Body Designs—planned by skilled designers and hand-built in the Kissel plant. The outward beauty of Kissel body designs is matched by the painstaking workmanship that builds lasting quality into the finished body.

Even short acquaintance with your Custom-Built Kissel will teach the real meaning of these points of difference, of which the ones mentioned are but part.

OFFERS CONFESSION IN VEROTTA TRIAL

INTERPRETERS DISAGREE

Raeffaelo, Under Death Sentence for Kidnapped Boy's Murder, Retracts Tale of Beating.

The prosecution yesterday at the trial in General Sessions of Antonio Marino, charged with being one of the blackmailers responsible for the slaying of five-year-old Giuseppe Verotta in the Summer of 1921, introduced a confession the defendant was alleged to have signed in which he stated that he visited the parents of the boy and told them he thought he could arrange for the return of the boy on payment of money to the kidnappers.

Robert L. Levinson, Marino's counsel, opposed the introduction of the alleged confession, which was offered during the testimony of Detective Sergeant Michael Fiaschetti. The detective said the confession was dictated by Marino and, he thought, taken down by Detective Dardis.

Dardis testified that he had written the statement, which was in Italian. Mr. Levinson disputed the detective's translation, and Judge Alfred J. Talley had Marc Moustaki, official court interpreter, read the paper. Fiaschetti had translated one sentence to read that Marino said he could "fix it up" with the kidnappers to return the child for $500, but the interpreter said that the expression was not exactly as translated by the detective.

Marino was quoted in the "confession" as admitting that he was in front of the Verotta home at 354 East Thirteenth Street on June 2, 1921, when John Melchiond called for $500, which the Verottas had promised to pay, at the suggestion of the police, on receipt of a threatening letter from the kidnappers and following a visit from Roberto Raffaelo, now under death sentence, for his part in the child's murder.

Fiaschetti admitted under cross-examination that Marino had told him he could not read or write. Mr. Levinson will attempt to prove when the trial is continued today that Marino did not sign the confession.

Detective Fiaschetti when testifying refused to reveal the name of a business man in the vicinity of the Verotta home who first directed his suspicion toward Marino.

Mr. Levinson started to insist on the man's name being revealed, but desisted when Judge Talley called him and Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers for a conference.

Fiaschetti denied that Marino suffered a discolored eye and a laceration of the scalp when he was taken to Police Headquarters the night of his arrest. He said that the father of the stolen boy had struck Marino and admitted that he slapped Marino several times.

Raffaelo, who was brought from the death house at Sing Sing when he volunteered to testify against Marino, was cross-examined by Mr. Levinson about his testimony on Friday. He denied ever having seen the murdered child. He also denied that he or any of the prisoners had been beaten by detectives the night of their arrest. He said he had sworn at his trial that he had been beaten in order to obtain the sympathy of the jury.

RESISTS WIFE'S PLEA IN ALIMONY SUIT

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 19.—Brandon Hendricks of 924 West End Avenue, Manhattan, answering his wife's demand for $100 a week alimony, $2,500 counsel fee, told Supreme Court Justice Seeger, through his attorney, that a man at a house party said of Mrs. Hendricks, "There's a dizzy blonde here and she's some kisser—has just gone upstairs." Hendricks says he was dumbfounded when he identified his wife as the "dizzy blonde" and that the man who thus described her afterward apologized.

The incident, Hendricks said, took place at a house party given by a Mr. and Mrs. Lewis at Sound Beach, Conn. He said he arrived late and a guest, Jack Barrett, a man he never had met, advised him at the door with the quoted remarks.

Mrs. Marjorie R. Hendricks, the wife, who is living at a hotel here, is suing for separation on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. She charges that Hendricks "called her down" for alleged misconduct with other men and "threw silver teapots" at her. She declared her husband has an income of $40,000 a year, while he contends he receives only $5,000.

Hendricks in his answer told of a Manhattan drinking party, when, he said, his wife sat on another man's lap, or the man sat on hers. He also charged misconduct while on a hunting party. The couple were married in 1912 and have no children. Hendricks was a petty officer in the navy during the war.

SKIRT CONTROVERSY FORTY CENTURIES OLD

PARIS, June 19.—Women who favor short skirts need not be discouraged by this year's vogue of long dresses. This word is sent out by a young French Egyptologist. The fight between the long and the short skirt has been going on for forty centuries, he says, and to-day the struggle is still a tie.

To prove his assertion the Egyptologist has produced several Egyptian statuettes of the times of the Pharaohs, each one of two types. In one type the skirt with the wearer's knees, while the other costume might have been copied from one of this season's models on the Rue de la Paix. While the first group of statuettes portray typical Egyptian flappers, the latter are decidedly matronly, the gowns being ornamented with fancy designs and tied with a sash knotted in front, of which the ends are trimmed with small globules.

"The struggle between fashions has been decided after 4,000 years," the Egyptologist remarks, "this shows one of two things: either it is impossible to decide it, or else the couturieres do not wish it to be decided."

SENBY PARTY AT HAWAII.

HONOLULU, T. H., June 18 (Associated Press).—Secretary of the Navy Denby and his party completed a drive around the island of Oahu yesterday as guests of the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu. The trip was broken at Haleiwa for luncheon, where Secretary Denby spoke.

"You don't like to think of the possibilities that make armies and navies necessary," said Secretary Denby, "but we do know such possibilities exist, and they cannot be forgotten by those responsible for the defense of the United States."

Don't trifle with constipation —if you expect to be healthy!

Constipation "knocks the spots" out of men, women and children! Yet, it is about the last thing that the average person tries to correct—until it is too late!

Eliminate constipation and the slightest constipation symptoms—QUICKLY! Once constipation gets a strangle-hold on your intestines your body is thrown open to diseases such as Bright's and diabetes, which are directly caused by constipation. Hardening of the arteries, most cases of rheumatism and numerous other diseases have their inception in constipation, which also causes premature old age; dulls brains and makes sufferers sluggish.

As dangerous and annoying as constipation is; as terrifying as the possibilities are, you can permanently relieve it with Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled! Bran is not a "remedy," but it is nature's own food—roughage—that acts on the eliminative passages in nature's way, sweeping, cleaning, purifying! Your physician will indorse Kellogg's Bran for constipation.

We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will relieve the severest case of constipation IF IT IS EATEN REGULARLY—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases, eat it with each meal.

And Kellogg's Bran is delicious—its nut-like flavor appeals to the most fastidious appetite. Use Kellogg's Bran as a cereal or sprinkle it over your favorite cereal; or, it can be used to make delightful raisin bread, gems, pancakes and a host of good things—and all the time working for health. Buy Kellogg's Bran at grocers.

So are the push-button buzzer and the telegraph service and the postal service.

Yet a man with goods to sell through stores would be foolish to seclude himself in an office and there in solitary grandeur carry on his business by phone, buzzer, telegraph and mail—seeing no one face to face, going to see no one, making no study of the changing habits and needs of his customers.

Even a convenience and an economy can be overworked until it becomes an expense.

Advertising is perhaps the greatest time-saver of them all. Advertising has enabled men in ten years to build a business that formerly required three or four generations.

But neither the telephone, which does the work of hours in a few minutes, nor advertising, which does the work of a century in a few years, are complete substitutes for shoe-leather, which does the work of an hour in an hour.

Don't stop wearing out shoe-leather. Don't let your salesmen stop. You can count on your fingers the concerns of this kind for whom advertising has done all the work of selling. It is not often that advertising can take the place of salesmen, of a sales department, or of a sales manager who knows his business and who sees to it that a pair of shoes doesn't last a salesman too long.

Use your conveniences, speed things up, advertise your business; but don't hesitate to rise up and walk on shoe-leather and go and get the thing you really want, whether it's a railroad ticket or an order that will keep the wheels of your business turning.

UPTON SINCLAIR'S SENSATIONAL NEW NOVEL

They Call Me Carpenter!

WHAT would Christ do if He should return to earth today? This is the question men and women—sincere or sneering—have been asking each other for two thousand years. Reverently, yet fearlessly, Upton Sinclair sets out to answer that question. No novel of our time has caused a greater sensation than Upton Sinclair's "The Jungle"—novel of the Chicago stockyards. But that will pale into insignificance compared with the story of "Mr. Carpenter" and His adventures in our world of Jazz, Flappers, French Fashions and High Finance. It all begins with the stained glass window of St. Bartholomew's Church—in Hearst's International for July.

"I lifted my eyes and there in the aisle of St. Bartholomew, standing with his hand on my head, was the figure out of the stained-glass window. Where the figure had been was a great hole with the sun shining through."—They Call Me Carpenter!

ROCKAWAYS TO GET HIGH-POWER MAINS

Drennan Says Cost Will Be Estimated at Once and Appropriation Asked Friday.

MEET KENLON'S OLD PLEA

Fire Chief Quoted to Show Arverne Conflagration Was Feared—Benefit for Sufferers.

Following a meeting of city officials, Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Drennan announced yesterday that an estimate of the cost of installing a high-pressure water system in the Rockaway peninsula would be made immediately and that Commissioner Nicholas F. Hayes of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity would apply at the meeting of the Board of Estimate on Friday for an appropriation to meet the cost. Commissioner Drennan said he could not yet tell the cost and added that an estimate would be made at a meeting today. In the meantime, additional fire hydrants will be installed on the present water mains.

The decision to install high-pressure mains was in accordance with recommendations made by Fire Chief John Kenlon in his annual reports for the last ten years, which were quoted by fire department officials to show that last week's conflagration at Arverne was not unexpected and that the officials of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity had been wrong in disapproving Chief Kenlon's recommendation on the ground that the benefits were not commensurate with the cost. In his last report, Chief Kenlon said:

"I also wish to repeat my recommendation that a high pressure system be installed at Rockaway Beach and Far Rockaway similar to the system at Coney Island. New fire hydrants and larger mains with increased water pressure should be supplied for that portion of the Borough of Queens known as the First Ward. While the immediate control of fire hydrants, water mains, pumping stations, &c., is under the direction of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, the use and necessity for such things come more directly home to the Fire Department.

"I would, therefore, recommend that you request the Commissioner of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity to ask for an appropriation sufficient to start work at once on the necessary replacements and extensions of hydrants and water mains."

Those at the conference included Commissioner Drennan, Acting Fire Chief Joseph R. Martin, Deputy Fire Chief John Devin, Battalion Chief William Lawrence, stationed at Arverne; W. A. Brush, Assistant Chief Engineer of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, and Edward J. Worth, Assistant Chief of the Marine Division of the Fire Department.

The Arverne Hotel Men's Association will give a benefit performance in the Columbia Theatre, Far Rockaway, Thursday evening for suffers from the fire.

Oakland Dependability

Since last December, thousands of New Oaklands—all bearing this unusual guarantee—have gone forth to enthusiastic owners everywhere.

In only two instances, out of all these thousands, has this guarantee had to operate! A broken piston ring—no fault of the precise workmanship lavished upon all New Oaklands—was responsible for the only adjustments Oakland has been called upon to make.

What better proof could anyone demand of the sterling goodness of the New six-cylinder, overhead valve, Oakland-built engine? What confidence this splendid record must inspire in those who want a light six of known dependability!

There's only one reason why you haven't Ruud Hot-Water Service in your house

While there is a great difference in the service-value of automatic water heaters, the difference in price between the best and the ordinary is small. Then it isn't because Ruud Hot-Water Service costs a little more than another that has kept you from getting it.

Nor is it because you want to stick to the old wasteful method of heating a tankful of water to get a cupful.

It is more than likely because you don't understand just what Ruud Automatic Hot-Water Service means—an unfailing and ever-ready supply of hot water when you turn the faucet.

Go to your dealer's store and let him explain how simply and economically the Ruud operates. When you have the apparatus before you, you will appreciate its qualities better than if we wrote you pages about them.

A few turns of the wrench in connecting it to your water and gas pipes, and Ruud Automatic Hot Water is at your service. You forget about it and still you get hot water—all you can use.

If you glory in plenty of hot water, it is a convenience you won't want to do without. Besides, for a given amount of hot water, Ruud Automatic Hot Water is the cheapest you can buy.

See any good dealer in Greater New York and vicinity, or write or telephone Ruud New York headquarters for any information you may wish

The eyes of youth

YOUTH will read at least a part of almost anything—the magazines on the library table, the books on father's study shelves, the newspaper left at the door—anything that happens to be lying about. The facility with which grown-ups select and discriminate in their reading is just being developed in the young.

The reading matter parents choose is what their children are likely to pick up and read. A trashy book or a sensational newspaper on the library table means that the children will receive and in turn form distorted impressions of the world's life.

Undue emphasis placed on events of no more than ordinary importance will tend to warp your children's sense of values and stunt their reasoning faculties. Good literature helps to develop right thinking and clear reasoning.

Children like a good newspaper. They enjoy reading well-written accounts of the flight of an airplane over Washington, the news about Russia, the discovery of a man who had two hearts—everything that is news.

The way the things they read about are presented will go far toward helping your children to form intelligent opinions of their fellows, and to judge the relative importance of various events. A good newspaper is a great aid in giving both you and your children a wholesome outlook on life; it is of permanent value in moulding a taste for the best of everything.

Your children will pick up almost anything and read it. Be sure that the newspaper they find in your home is worthy of their attention.

KELLY'S ERROR IS COSTLY

The Giants are now feeling the backwash of their recent winning streak. They learned yesterday, when they lost again to the Cardinals by 5 to 4, that taking eight contests in a row has its disadvantages. The tide is going in the other direction now, and it carried the St. Louis team one game nearer the champions, who still, however, have a lead of four and a half games.

Yesterday the Giants bore all the earmarks of a ball team that is off its feed. A distressing infield error let in one of the Cardinals' two runs in the first inning, and as was to be expected this run was just enough to beat McGraw's men. The pitching in the hands of Phil Douglas was mediocre, and the champions' hitting was fragile in the pinches. To top it all, the Giants were dull and stodgy and lacked the lively sparkle that dazzled the Pirates last week.

Long George Kelly was the gentleman who produced the untimely error. He dropped Bancroft's line throw to first base with two out and Hornsby on third, and Rogers brought in the second run of the opening inning. Irish Meusel's haggard throw to third gave the Cardinals another unearned tally in the third, for the left fielder tossed so badly to Frisch at third that Stock, who had singled to left, got to second before Frankie could recover the bounding ball. Then with runners on second and third Ainsmith cut a single to left, and Stock scored when he should only have reached second base.

Douglas Leaves Too Late.

Subtract these two runs from the St. Louis total, and you have a victory for the Giants. But there was no subtracting to be done, and after the horse had been stolen Phil Douglas retired and Cecil Algernon Causey came on to lock the stable door. Cecil and Virgil Barnes, who came in later, kept the door barred, and the Giants stepped out in a vain effort to extricate a few runs from Jeff Pfeffer, former Brooklynite.

The champions already had two runs as the fruit of a second inning rally, and they got one more in the seventh when Davy Robertson, after batting for Causey and walking, came around on two singles. Still two notches behind, the Giants went into the ninth and almost tied the score.

It was a spirited inning while it lasted. The first batter was Silent Earl Smith, and the mute catcher sent the crowd into a spasm of delight by lining a home run into the right field upper tier. This chopped one run from the Cardinals' lead, and left the Giants only one behind. The excitement increased when Ralph Shinners batted for V. Barnes and consented to having Pfeffer plunk the ball against his ribs. There was nobody out when Ralph perched on first base.

Some teams would have sacrificed at this interesting juncture, but not the Giants. Bancroft took his full swing and popped to Lavan. Johnny Rawlings, still subbing for Henry Groh, forced Shinners at second with a grounder to Hornsby and was nearly doubled at first. Frisch, representing the final hope, worked the count to three and two and then filed into McHenry's glove.

The Cardinals ought to give a rising vote of thanks to Milton Stock, their third baseman, who saved the game with a stop in the seventh. With one out Robertson walked and hurried to third on Bancroft's single to right. "Lucky John" Rawlings tried for one of his typical hits, one of those two-baggers over third, which would decorate the world's series game last Fall. But Stock was in the way. He fell over on the ball and then made an incredibly long throw to second while propped on his left elbow. The ball reached Hornsby before Bancroft reached second, and there went two out, although Robertson had scored. Frisch then singled, which would have brought in Bancroft and perhaps Rawlings. In any event, Johnny might have scored on Meusel's fly to right, which would have had no other effect than to give the Giants the ball game.

Giants Outhit Visitors.

Pfeffer was hit hard at times, the Giants outbatting the invaders by ten to nine, but the mountainous twirler was the least bit niggardly in the pinches. He handled all of the Giant hitters but Silent Smith, whose double drove in the two runs that tied the score in the second and whose home run almost sent Pfeffer careening in the ninth. Big Jeff had better luck than Douglas, whose work was drab and dreary and was not well backed up by the New York fielders.

After the third inning the Cardinals were strangely quiescent. They got two more singles before Douglas left at the end of the fifth, but Causey and the V. part of the Barnes family held the pretenders hitless in the last four sessions. Among those who did not get a hit was the peerless Hornsby, who had innumerable opportunities, but had to suffer his streak of consecutive hitting to languish and die. The big gun didn't hit a ball hard all afternoon. He got on in the first inning, however, and scored his fiftieth run of the season, being the first player in the National League to reach that mark.

Douglas was thrown into temporary eclipse in the opening inning when Max Flack started with a single over first. Smith batted to first and beat it, and Lavan was sent to second to run for the limping Flack, who was hurt in Sunday's game. Hornsby grounded to Frisch, who forced Mann at third, but McHenry pounded a single to centre, Smith scoring and Hornsby pausing at second. Fournier gave Kelly an easy roller, the runners advancing, and the Cards then got an unearned run when Bancroft dropped Rawlings's throw on Stock. More trouble was averted by Ainsmith's grounding to Banny, Stock being forced at second.

After going out in order in the first, the Giants tied it for the nonce in the second. Meusel, the leader, bunced a single off Lavan and Young popped to Stock. An unexpected bunt by Kelly rolled down the line and hit third base, both runners being safe. Stengel couldn't do anything but Earl Smith could. The Silent One lined a double to left centre, and Meusel and Kelly scored.

But the Cards went after Douglas in the third like the crack of doom. The first ball Jack Smith sent whirling to right centre for a triple, but Hornsby had nothing better to offer than a grounder to Bancroft, Smithy staying at third. He scored, however, while Young was making a sensational diving catch of McHenry's line drive. Fournier and Stock followed with singles and the latter went to second while Meusel was making his bad throw to third. The two men came in on Ainsmith's base hit to left.

Causey in Good Form.

Causey pitched two innings without incident. Then Cecil Algernon was banished in the seventh in favor of Robertson, and Dave started the Giants to their third run.

Pfeffer walked the Virginian after Earl Smith had grounded to Hornsby. Bancroft followed Robbie with a single that dropped near the grand stand in right, Dave scooting to third. Stock's fine piece of work cut the peril down, and Rawlings, instead of getting a hit, only forced Bancroft at second while Robertson scored. After this Frisch shot a base hit to right, Rawlings stopping at second despite Smith's fumble. But Meusel muffed a glorious opportunity and lifted an easy one to right field.

Curves and Bingles.

Cicotte was still on the bench, although he is not badly hurt. McGraw will rest him until Heinie feels fit enough to return.

Max Flack ought to have done the same. He hobbled to first after singling and then to second, where Mann relieved him later going to centre field, while Jack Smith patrolled right.

Well, they can't win them all.

Southpaw Bill Sherdel will probably try to keep the St. Louis winning streak going today, and Bill Ryan, who has won four straight, will pitch for John McGraw.

The crowd was surprisingly big for a Monday—12,000 or more. Some of these consisted of a populous delegation of youngsters who were let in free and emitted raucous cheers from the upper tier.

Young Barnes got one of his rare chances yesterday. All the pitching he has done this season could be squeezed comfortably into one afternoon. He got six batters in a row, however, including Hornsby, who filed way out to Meusel.

The strategical Mr. Rickey had both Pfeffer and Haines warming up before the game, despite the fact that the latter pitched nine innings as recently as last Saturday. Just what the idea was may remain an eternal mystery.

Somebody pays the Pirates again.

Bancroft's double to left was a total waste in the fifth. Rawlings fouled to Ainsmith, who made a find catch off the screen, and Frisch lifted a high foul to Stock.

RUTH'S HOMER FAILS TO RESCUE YANKEES

BABE EJECTED FROM GAME

CLEVELAND, June 19.—Despite the herculean efforts of Babe Ruth in the first inning of today's game with the Cleveland Indians, the Yankees connected with their eighth straight defeat and the ninth on their Western trip, the final count being 4 to 2. With two out, none on and two strikes on him in the initial inning, the Bambino lifted the next ball over the right field wall for his seventh home run of the season. That was the extent of Babe's batting efforts, for on his other two official times at bat he succumbed to Duster Mails's slants and struck out.

Ruth was very much in the limelight otherwise. In the eighth inning when the Indians were in the process of winning the game, Leslie Nunamaker, who once wore a Yankee uniform, was sent in to bat for Mails to start the innins. when the Yankees were well placed with a lead of two runs to one. Nunamaker promptly doubled to right. Leslie, who is not the fastest runner in the world, was almost caught at second by Meusel's throw. Every man on the Yankee team professed to believe that Nunamaker was out and made vociferous protest to Umpire Bill Dinneen, half the team gathering around the bag. Ruth was especially insistent in his protest, so much so that Dinneen ordered him off the field. When hostilities were resumed Elmer Miller was playing in left field.

Jamieson tripled to left, Nunamaker scoring the tying run. Wambsganss singled to centre, scoring Jamieson, the forming coming home on Speaker's double to left. Carl Mays, who had started for the Yanks, was relieved by Sam Jones, Gardner singled to centre and Speaker scored. The next two batters were easy and to all intents and purposes the game was over.

Mails Holds Yanks in Check.

Mails pitched fine ball for the Indians, allowing only six scattered hits in the eight innings he worked and striking out nine. Uhle, who pitched the ninth, yielded one hit and struck out one. The Indians sent to Mays right in the second and nicked Jones for a safety in the short time he worked.

The Yankees' effective offensive was concentrated into two innings and it was 50 per cent. Babe Ruth. The first man came in the very first inning. McMillan opened the session by being thrown out by Wambsganss. McNally's third strike was dropped by O'Neill, but the Indian catcher recovered the ball in ample time to catch the batter. Babe connected with one and hoisted it over the right field fence for No. 7. Meusel fanned.

As far as the champions were concerned, there were no further exciting happenings until the eighth, in the second they made one lone hit. Pipp drew a pass and then Ward popped up a foul for O'Neill. Scott filed out to Jamieson. Hofmann drove a single to centre, but Mays fanned.

It was in this inning that Cleveland tied up the score. Gardner drove a two-bagger to left field and went to third when Sewell was thrown out by Scott, coming home on McInnis's long sacrifice fly to Ruth. Graney singled to centre, but was caught off first.

Another one of those scattered Yankee hits came in the third. After McMillan had struck out McNally singled to centre, Ruth was passed and a double-play was called for. Meusel fanned, however, and McNally was doubled off third. It was one, two, three in the fourth, Pipp fanning for a starter. Ward's high fly was gathered in by Wambsganss and Scott was thrown out by Sewell.

Larry Gardner Injured.

In the Indians' half of the fifth, Gardner was thrown out by O'Neill, after the latter had dropped the ball on the third strike. Mays was thrown out by Sewell and the latter also threw out McMillan, after banking a grounder. A long throw of the centre fielder's hot grounder, on his third trip to the plate in the sixth. Ruth fanned, after McNally had been thrown out by Gardner. Meusel singled to right, but got no further than first, as Pipp was thrown out by Gardner.

A fumble by Gardner gave Ward a life in the first half of the seventh and he promptly stole second, but his daring came to naught as he was doubled at second on Scott's liner to Sewell. The latter also finished up the inning for the champions by throwing out Hofmann.

The Yanks broke into the lead in the opening of the eighth after Mays had been retired. McMillan drew a pass and a moment or two later was caught off first. He eluded the run-up and got safely back to the bag, got no down to second on McNally's single to right field. Ruth fanned somewhat ignominiously when any kind of a clout would have been welcome to the champions. Meusel came through, however, with the required single which scored McMillan and sent the Yanks into the lead. McNally went to third on the hit, but was left there when Pipp filed to Jamieson.

This lead was elusive and short-lived, for the Indians came from behind in a final drive in approved fashion as detailed above. In the ninth Uhle held the Yankees safely, incidentally adding to the strike-out record of the Cleveland pitching staff for the day by fanning both Ward and Baker, the latter having gone in to bat for Jones.

TIGERS WIN SEVENTH GAME IN SUCCESSION

DETROIT, June 19.—The Detroit Tigers won their seventh straight game today by defeating the Boston Red Sox 11 to 9 in a slugging match. Hellmann was stopped in the fourth by Fullerton after making ten consecutive safe hits. Pratt hit a homer over the score board in the eighth inning with two runners on.

BROWNS INCREASE LEAD.

Defeat Athletics, 3 to 2, and Are Now 2 1-2 Games Ahead of Yanks.

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—The Browns strengthened their hold on first place by one game today by defeating the Athletics, 3 to 2. This puts the locals two and one-half games ahead of New York. The winning run was scored in the seventh when McManus's single brought in Tobin from second. Tobin was safe at first on Galloway's low throw and was sacrificed to second by Gerber. Rain delayed the game twenty minutes and later interrupted it for five minutes just before the fourth inning.

WHITE SOX SCORE SHUT-OUT

CHICAGO, June 19.—An eighth inning rally today enabled Chicago to shut out Washington, 2 to 0, in a pitching duel between Schupp and Mogridge. Schupp had wonderful control in the pinches, permitting the Senators only four hits and striking out ten men. Mostil's triple sent the White Sox runs across the plate. The fielding of Ernie Johnson was a feature.

ROBINS PULL LONG GAME FROM FLAMES

Come From Rear to Tie Pirates With Four-Run Rally in Ninth and Win in Fourteenth.

Apparently beaten, with the tally standing 5 to 1 against them, the Robins staged a four-run rally in the ninth inning of their game with the Pirates at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon, tying the count and eventually winning in the fourteenth by the score of 6 to 5.

For more than two and a half hours the battle lasted, until Ivan Olson lifted the ball into left for a single that enabled Jimmy Johnston to slide over the plate with the deciding run and sending the Brooklyn fans home for supper, belated but happy.

Dazzie Vance and Whitey Glazner were the opposing pitchers at the start, but neither was in at the close, Decatur being credited with winning the game and Hamilton, a left-hander, with losing it. Glazner was knocked out in the ninth, being retired after the Robins had scored their four runs in that inning, while Vance gave way to Bert Griffith as a pinch hitter when the Robins were staging their tying rally.

In fielding the Pirates outshone the Robins, although Tom Griffith and Myers made sensational catches, each with his gloved left hand. The infield of the Pirates was a veritable stone wall, Maranville accepting twelve chances, Traynor seven and Barnhart five, all without an error.

The Robins's infield committed four misplays, Johnston having two errors and Mitchell and Olson one each. But it was Johnston at the bat who really beat the Pirates. With a double he sent in two runs and started the fourteenth with the hit that brought him across the plate with the winning run. Besides these two safe ones, Johnston also corralled another single, making a total of three hits out of the thirteen the Robbins obtained in the fourteen innings.

Pirates First to Tally.

First to score were the Pirates in the third inning. Grimm dropped a Texas leaguer into short centre, good for two bases. Gooch walked. Glazner tried to sacrifice, but hit a little fly which landed in Vance's paws, and Vance in turn got the horsehide to Olson in time to double up Grimm. Olson also tried to

HUTCHISON IN LEAD ON SANDWICH LINKS

VARDON AND BOOMER NEXT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SANDWICH, England, June 19.—The first qualifying round for the British open championship was played today, half the competitors playing on the Royal St. Georges course and half on the Princes course. Those who played on the first named course today will go around the other course tomorrow, and vice versa. The championship proper will be contested on the Royal St. Georges, which is considered at least three strokes easier than the Princes.

Today saw two of the four American competitors well to fore. In fact, Jock Hutchison, who is perhaps least fancied of the three American professionals, provided the sensation of the day by going around the Princes course at the record clip of 71 strokes. Curiously enough, playing in the championship last year at St. Andrews he started off in similar fashion with a record round of 71. Hutchison was driving far and straight from the tees and the fast that grooved iron clubs are now barred here, did not prevent him stopping his ball on the green with the same deadly accuracy he displayed last year. Practically his only mistake was the missing of a short put on sixteenth.

Hagen Four Strokes Back.

Walter Hagen, playing on Princes course, was only four strokes worse than Hutchison. As 80 is reckoned a good enough score on this course it would seem that Hagen's qualification is almost assured. His long game was the best feature of his game. For instance, he reached the seventeenth green, which is 530 yards from the tee, with two shots, a feat unequaled by anybody else today. He got into various troubles in the shape of bunkers, but made up for these excursions from the straight path by excellent putting.

Jim Barnes's position is not so assured. Playing also on the Prince's course, he took an 82, which means he will have to go well tomorrow on the Royal St. George's if he is to qualify. He met with many disturbing adventures, not the least of which happened at the twelfth hole, where he put his ball into an unplayable position in a toad shed. Nobody present could tell him what the rule was, so in order to be on the safe side he played three balls. First he picked up and dropped behind the shed on the assumption there would be no penalty. Then he went back and played another ball in case the penalty was a stroke and distance, and he also teed his third optional ball, fearing he might be penalized two strokes. He holed out with all three balls. Finally it was decided that he was entitled to remove the ball from the shed without penalty.

Van Vleck Takes a 90.

STNDWICH, England, June 19 (Associated Press). — Jock Hutchison, the British open golf champion, today led the field in the opening day's qualifying round of the tournament in which he is defending his title. Playing over the Prince's course Hutchison turned in a card of 71 strokes for the eighteen holes, 36 out and 35 home.

Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood went around in 75, while Jim Barnes required an 82 and Edward Van Vleck of Garden City made a 90.

Aubrey Boomer of the St. Cloud Club, Paris, played a brilliant round in 72, as likewise did Harry Vardon, while Roger Wethered, one of the English amateur stars, scored a 73, being tied with seven others at this figure. C. Mayo, on the Royal St. George's Course, turned in a card of 76, while Abe Mitchell, on the Prince's links made a 77. A. Havers went around in 76 and Tom Walton in 74. Edward Ray had an unlucky day, his card reading 81, and J. H. Taylor could do no better than 80.

Cyril Tolley and Captain Carter, the noted amateurs, had 77's and lie in seventh position. Willie Hunter made a 79, and George Duncan 81. Jack White scored 77 and James Braid 79. W. R. Bourne of Stockport made a 73 and T. Walton of Lytham Stannes 74.

Starters Number 216.

Two hundred and twenty-five players had entered the tournament, and all except nine started. The eighty men having the lowest aggregate scores in the qualifying rounds of today and tomorrow will be eligible to compete for the open championship.

Hutchison's score of today sets as the record for the newly lengthened course. His card was as follows:

Out	4	4	4	4	5	3	5	4	4	—36
In	4	4	4	5	4	3	5	3	5	—35—71

The champion missed a yard putt on the nineteenth green. His driving today was uniformly good, however. Frequently he was putting for a three on long holes.

Boomer played brilliantly for his 72. His only bad hole was the fourteenth, where he required a six. His card follows:

Out	4	4	4	4	5	3	5	4	4	—37
In	4	4	4	5	4	3	5	3	5	—35—72

Mayo, playing on the Royal St. George's course, went out in 36 and scored 43 on the way home. He played a great game from the tee, but luck was against him on the greens, the ball often turning away from the hole when near the lip.

Hagen played nearly perfect golf, hitting all shots crisply. He did not miss any short putts except one on the second green, where he dropped a stroke. He lost another at the ninth. Coming home he dropped a few, notably on the tenth, eleventh and sixteenth holes.

Hagen's Chances Are Lifted.

Hagen had two magnificent wooden club shots to the seventeenth, which carried well on to the green. This hole measures 530 yards. The experts consider his chances for ultimate victory very promising if he maintains the form he displayed today.

Barnes started shakily. After playing two holes he lapsed into poor golf, injuring several easy putts. At the twelfth he had a bad stance for his second shot and drove the ball into a cowshed. He lifted it without penalty, only losing the distance.

The tendency of Barnes throughout was to hook his shots badly. He missed a spoon shot for his second hole on the homeward journey, and was too strong for his approach; thus the hole cost him a stroke.

Edward Van Vleck had a 42 out and a 48 home. He was under five at only five holes, but did the sixteenth in three. He played the Royal St. George's course.

The Prince's course measures 6,820 yards, and the Royal St. George's 6,616.

AMERICANS QUALIFY IN CANADIAN GOLF

Six Will Continue at Match Play for Amateur Title at Hamilton, Ontario.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 19.—Six Americans were among the thirty-two golfers who survived the qualifying round of the Canadian amateur championship tournament today and will enter the first round of match play tomorrow over the Amateur links of the Hamilton Golf Club. Seventh Amateur, was low American, of Buffalo, N. Y., will play off a tie tomorrow with four Canadians, all of whom returned cards of 159. For the last two places in the qualifying field.

LONDON, June 19 (Associated Press).—Ted (Kid) Lewis, English middleweight champion, knocked out Frankie Burns, Australian middleweight champion, in the eleventh round of their bout here tonight. The contest was for the middleweight championship of the British Empire.

At the sound of the gong both men began fighting in earnest. Burns had the worst of the infighting. Lewis was the better man at close quarters, but Burns was his superior in long range work. The referee in the seventh and eighth rounds repeatedly ordered Lewis to break away in the clinches. In the ninth Lewis landed a hard left to Burns's jaw, flooring the Australian. Burns took a long count, but was groggy when he rose. Just as the bell rang he received a hard uppercut which shook him up badly. In the eleventh round the Australian was showing considerable speed in his footwork when Lewis landed a right-hand punch to the jaw which sent him down and out.

CRIMSON AND BLUE DO BATTLE TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 19.—Harvard and Yale practiced together on Yale Field this afternoon, each using the varsity diamond an hour in final preparation for the first game of the annual series tomorrow, which is expected to attract 18,000 people. The Harvard players reached here at 1 o'clock, dressed at Yale Field and, following their short practice, took automobiles to Derby, where they were quartered tonight. About fifty enthusiastic graduates accompanied them.

This afternoon at the Crimson practice Conlon was back at shortstop and Owen at first base, Owen seemed in perfect condition, Conlon favored his injured leg a trifle, but insisted that he felt fine. Slattery warmed up Russell and Gerbke and it was predicted that he would start Russell tomorrow.

Yale repeated the line-up which subdued Princeton Saturday, pitchers Chittenden and Hickey being given the most attention by Harnie Tommers. It is believed certain that Chittenden will start the game tomorrow, as he has been Yale's most consistent twirler all the season and he has been saved for tomorrow's game. Hickey, who held Holy Cross to six hits in Worcester, giving Yale a victory there, has been reserved for a second start in selection. If Yale is forced to send Ted Wight, clever reserve twirler, to the slab during tomorrow's game, it will upset the Ell dope, which calls for saving Wight for the game Wednesday in Cambridge. As Wight eased down Princeton but with five hits Saturday, he is regarded as a trump card for the second game of the Crimson series. Although rain threatened all the morning, the sun appeared in time for the afternoon practice, drying up the sandy field quickly.

It is expected that tomorrow's parade of commencement reunion classes to Yale Field will be the most brilliant in Yale history.

Play will begin at 2 o'clock.

Yale—Crane, lf; O'Hearn, 1b; Ged, cf; Aldrich, ss; Warren, 2b; Eddy, rf; Kelly, 3b; Mallory, c; Chittenden or Hickey, p.

DARTMOUTH DEFEATED BY CORNELL NINE, 4-3

HANOVER, N. H., June 19.—One bad inning, the sixth, cost Dartmouth a 4 to 3 decision in the annual Commencement Day baseball game with Cornell here today.

Tracy, who turned Harvard back last week, pitched his final game for Dartmouth, and gave a masterful exhibition except for the fatal sixth frame, when he weakened long enough for the Ithicans to score their four runs.

The score:

VALGER WHIPS DRUMMIE.

Has Better of Every Round in Feature Bout in Jersey City Ring.

Benny Valger, the French Flash, had little difficulty in outpointing Johnnie Drummie of Jersey City in the main bout of twelve rounds at the Oakland A. A. in Jersey City last night. In fact, it was merely a boxing lesson which Benny gave Johnny, for the former had the better of every round. Each weighed 131½ pounds.

Although Drummie was beaten he gave an unusual display of stamina, never once in all the twelve rounds backing away from the severe pummelling which he received on stomach, heart and head. At the finish Drummie's left eye was almost closed, his right optic was severely cut and his body was a mass of welts, all evidence of Valger's vicious attack.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 19.—Andrew Morgan, captain of the University of Pennsylvania tennis team, was defeated by John A. Magee, a local player, in the feature match of the opening of the Maryland championship tournament. The score was 7—5, 6—2. Twenty-three matches were played and six defaulted.

Dartmouth Nine Elects Smith.

CRUICKSHANK LEADS GOLFERS WITH 143

With his star under an eclipse ever since his sensational victory over Barnes and Hutchison in the St. Joseph (Mo.) tournament a year ago, except for an occasional sparkle during the Winter season, Bobby Cruickshank, the young Scottish professional at Shackamaxon, yesterday flashed into the foreground for the first time this season. One of the eighty-nine competitors in the Spalding thirty-six-hole tournament held over the Wykagyl Country Club course, at New Rochelle, Cruickshank took the honors in the morning and hung tenaciously to them in the afternoon, finishing the day with the remarkable total of 143, which signifies that he was traveling over one of the most exacting layouts in the metropolitan district at one stroke less than even 4s.

Not only did the former Scottish amateur champion, who in his first season as a professional captured the New York State open title, romp home with the lion's share of the prize money, but he also had the honor of tying the course record made last year by Frank McNamara, then pro at the Cherry Valley Club, with his 71 in the morning round. The feat was duplicated in the afternoon by Cyril Walker, the Englewood star, who was paired with the Shackamaxon ace. Walker, had he been favored with a wee bit o' luck, would probably have set a new course record, for on his outgoing nine holes which he traveled over in even par figures he had five putts that hung on the very lip of the cup—and hung—and hung!

Outside of the metropolitan open itself, there has never been anything like yesterday's tournament in the history of metropolitan golf. So great was the interest manifested in the affair that scarcely a pro in the district was missing when the morning round started.

Harmon Five Strokes Back.

Five strokes in back of Cruickshank came another youngster, a home-bred, Tommy Harmon of the Hudson River Country Club. The latter had two evenly distributed rounds of 75 and 73 for a total of 148, the feature being a 33 over the last nine holes in the afternoon, three less than par. By means of this super-exhibition Harmon atoned for a 78 which he took for the first nine holes after lunch and which resulted from a lost ball at the third and extra putts at the sixth, eighth and ninth. In making his 33 he had a 3 at the eleventh, where he missed a four-footer for a birdie, and set each of the next three holes he hit the cup and might easily have had 3, 2, 3 instead of 4, 3, 4.

Two more home-breds, John Golden of Tuxedo and John Farrell of Quaker Ridge, were tied for third place with a total of 149. They played together, and in the morning Golden had a 76 and Farrell a 73, while in the afternoon matters were just reversed. The Quaker Ridge youngster had an excellent chance to finish in second place until he hit the sixteenth hole in in the final round. With a 73 in the morning round, he reached the turn in 34, two under par. He was even with par for the next three holes but took an extra stroke at the thirteenth and fell three. The sixteenth is a par 3 affair, at which the distance is 220 yards.

Farrell's tee shot reached a trap at the left of the green and, instead of exploding the ball out, he attempted to skim it up for a chance for a 3. The idea was superior to the execution, for he failed to get out and then, when he did succeed, he took three putts for a sinister seven. His last two holes were played in strictly orthodox fashion, but the break at the sixteenth brought his total up to 42, a full stroke more than par. Golden played sane golf throughout. The Tuxedo tutor traveled the entire day without the aid of more than one solitary birdie. His card was featured with eighteen 4s and seven 5s.

Following came Walker, whose 71 deserved a better fate, but was tacked onto a 79 in the morning, which practically ruined his chances for first place. The New Jersey representative was playing his usual fine brand of game, but two of the par 3 holes, the seventh and the sixteenth, at each of which he lavished 5s, added to a few extra putts on some of the greens, served as a disastrous offset.

Triple Tie for Sixth Place.

Three, Joe Mitchell of Montclair, George McLean of Grassy Sprain and Jimmy Maiden of Nassau, were tied for sixth place with 151, while there was another trio in the next group, Charles Thom of Shinnecock Hills, Tom Boyd of Fox Hills and William MacFarlane of Oak Ridge.

Tommy Kerrigan of Siwanoy and Jack Beckett of Yountakah were bracketed at 153, while the money list closed with Joe Sylvester of St. Albans and T. Rajoppi of Maplewood, who had 155 and 154 respectively.

On the thirty-six holes, Cruickshank played twenty-five of them in par figures. He was a stroke over par on only four occasions, two strokes over once, and had seven birdies. The only two breaks in the morning round came at the ninth and sixteenth holes, where he took an extra stroke, but these slips were offset by birdie 3s at the second, eleventh and twelfth. In the afternoon, he had a birdie 3 at the second, was a stroke over par at the fifth, and at the tenth, a par 3 hole, he took a 5, the result of pushing a shot a bit wide. Then came three birdies in the next four holes and his only other error, a 5 at the seventeenth, where he skipped a short putt.

WESTBROOK WINS CLAY COURT MATCH

Western Star Defeats Cawse in Metropolitan Title Tennis Tourney by 6-3, 8-6.

President M. E. Fox of the New York Tennis Club and Albert J. Ostendorf, head of its Tournament Committee, hustled the competitors in the metropolitan clay court championship tennis tournament through more than a score of matches late yesterday afternoon, and most of the brackets in the third round were filled as a consequence. Few evidences of the two preceding days of rain were to be found on the courts, most of which were hard and fast. The play in general matched the improved condition of the ground.

Walter Westbrook, the Western star, won the feature contest of the afternoon from Alfred J. Cawse, Staten Island champion, by scores of 6—3, 8—6. Cawse was runner-up to Vincent Richards in this tournament a year ago. Westbrook plays an excellent net game. His fast service and hard forehand driving give him the opportunity to advance to forecourt quickly, and when there he volleys and smashes with force and confidence. Cawse, on the other hand, is an extremely steady pace-line hitter. He covered court untiringly against Westbrook, keeping the ball in play in the face of discouragingly-accurate placing from the other side of the net. Cawse's getting ability made both sets close, and Westbrook had the margin of only a single service break in his favor both times. His greater aggressiveness was the deciding factor.

Seiichiro Kashio, Brooklyn champion, and Jerome Lang of Columbia replayed their match, which the rain had stopped on the day before, in its entirety, and Kashio won by 6—1, 6—0. He seemed much fresher than on Sunday. His drives did not have quite the pace which he has been regularly imparting to them this season, but his control was as remarkable as ever. Lang assumed the heavy burden of trying to outstay the Japanese in driving exchanges, and could make no headway at all. He was unable to get sufficient length to his drives as a rule, and Kashio did much as he pleased with them.

Occasionally Lang would send over a hard drive to the extreme corners of Kashio's baseline that bothered the Japanese, and once in a while he caught him with a sharply angled shot across court to the intersection of Kashio's service line and his left sideline. When he put enough pace in these shots he won the points. But he could not do it often enough to worry the Japanese seriously.

Richards, the defending champion, had another easy match. He defeated C. W. Bown by scores of 6—1, 6—2. Dr. George King also won without trouble, beating D. Donaldson, 6—2, 6—0.

An exceptionally well-played match, and one that was closer than the scores show, was won by Dr. William Rosenbaum from Herbert H. Manchester, 6—3, 6—4. These two are old rivals, and each knows the other's game inside out. Rosenbaum's attack had the greater variety yesterday, and that gave him the winning edge. But he had to play the prettiest tennis he knew to handle Manchester's forceful drives successfully.

Stephen V. Bruhans of the Hoboken Tennis Club and S. Onda, the Japanese, engaged in a long duel from the baseline, which the former won by 6—3, 6—4. Onda made a good pull-up in the second set from 1—5 to 4—5, but just fell short in his effort to deuce the games.

The summaries:

Metropolitan Clay Court Singles Championship — First Round — Charles A. Anderson defeated A. G. Block, 6—2, 6—1; Wallace Krugler defeated J. Harry Steinkamp, 6—4, retired; D. H. MISS BALLIN SCORES BRACE OF VICTORIES

Wins Matches in Delaware Tennis Tourney—Now and Davis Reach Third Round.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 19.—The first and second rounds of both the men's and women's singles were completed today in the Delaware State Tennis Tournament, most of the favorites surviving.

Miss Florence Ballin, of New York, who yesterday won the Pennsylvania and Eastern States title, had little difficulty in winning her two matches. She defeated Miss Louise Newland, Wilmington, 6—2, 6—1, in the first round and Miss Peggy Ferguson, Philadelphia, 6—0, 6—1, in the second. Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston, also won two comparatively easy victories, defeating Mrs. A. Lamott, Wilmington, 6—0, 6—1, and Miss Lillian Scharman, Wilmington, 11—9, 6—4.

In the men's division those reaching the third round included Philip Now and J. Davis of the Leland Stanford University representatives; F. Warriner, New York; W. Sherrill, Princeton; Stanley W. Pearson, Philadelphia, and Ed. Griffs, Boston.

E. B. Hinckley, University of California was eliminated in the second round by Sidney Thayer, Philadelphia, 6—3, 7—5, 6—4.

DEMPSEY TO START EAST.

Champion, Who Has Been at Oakland, Cal., Will Leave Today.

OAKLAND, Cal., June 19.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, who has been here several days expects to leave tomorrow for the East.

According to present indications, his next three fights, Dempsey said, will be against Bill Brennan, Joe Willard and Georges Carpentier.

Jack Kearns, at Chicago, Says Dempsey Has Not Barred Wills

CHICAGO, June 19.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, here today on his way to New York, declared the champion heavyweight pugilist had not drawn the color line and that if the public wanted Dempsey to fight Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, and the financial inducements were sufficient, such a fight could be staged. Kearns made the statement as he went into conference with Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan promoter, in connection with the proposed fight for Dempsey at Michigan City, Ind., Labor Day. Jess Willard and Bill Brennan have been mentioned as the most likely fighters to be considered for the Labor Day match. A fight with Wills might take place prior to the Labor Day mill, it was gathered, but it probably would be held in the East. Kearns expects to meet Tex Rickard, New York promoter, within a few days and the Wills matter likely will be considered then.

BRITISH STARS WIN IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

ROEHAMPTON, June 19 (Associated Press).—The British Isles team scored in a convincing manner in two matches in singles in the Davis Cup match against Italy, played here today. F. Gordon Lowe defeated Count di Robecco, 6—1, 6—3, 6—1, and Major Algernon R. F. Kingscote won from Cesare Colombo, 7—5, 6—4, 6—1.

Randolph Lycett is suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism, and did not compete in today's matches. England's prospects seemed black, but the situation was relieved by the fact that the Italians did not play Baron Morpurgo, their strongest racquet wielder. No reason was assigned for his having scratched out of the matches. Morpurgo formerly was a Lieutenant in the Austrian Army, but became a naturalized Italian in 1919.

Lowe easily overcame Count di Robecco. The Italian arrived in England only two days ago, and was not accustomed to playing on the grass. He showed no outstanding strokes, and was outplayed at all points by the Englishman. Lowe attacked forcefully, both with fore and back-hand drives, and played most accurately.

Kingscote's Victory Spectacular.

Kingscote's victory over Colombo was a far more spectacular one. The first set was splendidly contested. Both men brought their service games to five all. Colombo delivered a good forward American-break ball, which bothered Kingscote. In the eleventh game the Englishman, accepting great risks, broke through the Italian's service with some splendid shots to the line.

The second set was equally well contested. Colombo made 2—2 and 4—3, but Kingscote then mastered his opponent's service and, hitting forcefully to the baseline, captured the next three games.

In the third set Kingscote dominated the play. His forehand balls were remarkably fine. Colombo has a first-class top spin and excellent service delivery, but as he fails to change his grip for the backhand he is weak in this respect. Kingscote won by peppering his opponent's left wing.

Tomorrow Kingscote and Frank Riseley will play Colombo and di Robecco in the doubles.

French Players Triumph.

COPENHAGEN, June 19 (Associated Press).—The French Davis Cup team today won two singles matches from Denmark, 7—5, 6—2, 9—7, while M. Borotra, Cochet, France, defeated Tegner, Denmark; 7—5, 6—2, 9—7, while M. Dorotra, France, was victorious over Ingersley, Denmark, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4.

Cochet admitted that his match with Tegner was the hardest he ever had played. Tegner took the offensive, getting the first five games, including one love game. Cochet rallied and won fourteen out of the next sixteen games, while Tegner won the following five.

The third set was two games in Tegner's favor and the game was thirty-all when the Danish player lost his nerve as the umpire rendered a decision against him on his next ball. Before he recovered Cochet had taken the offensive and won the set and match on service.

Borotra played in haphazard style and never was convincingly effective.

India Wins Two Matches.

BECKENHAM, England, June 19 (Associated Press).—By winning both matches in singles today, the all-India team secured a lead of two matches to one in the first round of the Davis Cup play with Rumania. In the first match A. A. Fyzee won three sets to two after having lost the first two sets to Nicholas Mishu. The score was 3—6, 5—7, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

The Rumanian had better length and displayed an effective forehand drive, but Fyzee's steadiness came to the front in the third set, and altogether Mishu made a great effort he was unable to draw away from his persistent opponent. Mishu tired from his efforts and became erratic, and Fyzee finished the fifth set with 6—0 and won the match.

In the second match Rumania's second string player, M. Stern, was defeated by Dr. A. H. Fyzee, 6—0, 6—1, 6—1. Fyzee won easily by keeping a good length and through his forceful driving. India now has to win only one more match in order to secure the victory.

NEW TENNIS STADIUM BUILT AT WIMBLEDON

Will Hold 14,000 Spectators and Has Been Erected Around Freshly Laid Centre Court.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—American competitors for the lawn tennis championships at the New Wimbledon Ground will find that a stadium, providing accommodation for nearly 14,000 spectators, has been built around the new centre court. This court, which is reserved for the finals and other specially interesting matches, has been constructed due north and south, so that the light falls along the net during all the best hours of play, with never any shade upon it. It has been turfed with sods brought from Silloth in Cumberland, the home of Miss Leitch, the golf player.

The covered grandstand, with its three miles of seats, will accommodate nearly 10,000, and allow 4,000 to stand behind, yet only a few of the seats in the back forty are more than forty-nine yards from the centre of the court. This means that a scrap of paper no bigger than a cent lying on the turf will be clearly visible to all spectators, and there should all have an admirable view of the championship matches.

The stadium also provides complete accommodation for players, with dressing rooms and bathrooms. There are also the royal box, tea rooms and other conveniences for spectators.

MARSTON LEADS ON LINKS.

Wins Medal in Qualifying Round of Lynnewood Hall Tourney.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Max Marston of Philadelphia won the medal today from a large field in the qualifying round of the Lynnewood Hall golf tournament with a card of 151 for the thirty-six holes. J. Wood Platt, also of this city, finished second with 152.

OLYMPUS DEFEATED IN LATONIA TRIAL

RACE TO FLYING CLOUD

Allen Stable's Wishbone Is Never Headed in Test for Accelerator Purse—Ards Wins Chase.

Olympus, Harry Payne Whitney's three-year-old son of Royal Eagle, made an effort yesterday afternoon in the Hanover Handicap at the Aqueduct race course to qualify for the $50,000 Latonia Special to be run next Saturday. The brown gelding failed in his attempt rather dismally, being outrun over the mile and a sixteenth route by Max Hirsch's Flying Cloud. As a result of the fiasco of Olympus those who hope for the success of the light blue and brown in the rich fixture on the Kentucky track have turned their eyes with practical unanimity upon the Whitney-bred youngster, Whiskaway, as the bulwark of that stable.

It was the first appearance of Olympus under colors as a three-year-old, save one. He was taken from the farm in mid-April by Trainer Rowe to Havre de Grace and beat Commander Ross's fine old Boniface by a head in the Delaware Handicap at a mile and seventy yards, being in receipt of fifteen pounds from the veteran campaigner. Then he was withdrawn again to his training camp, whence glowing accounts have been received of his progress.

The new York debut of Olympus for the season was far from impressive, but it may have been his disposition, rather than his racing ability, that was at fault. He followed a fast pace set by Prince James to the stretch turn, well in advance of Flying Cloud, which was rated in third position on the inside by Marinelli. On the final swing the Whitney gelding moved up fast under the urging of his rider, Feeman, but when the boy went to the whip because Prince James was still flashing along ahead and Flying Cloud was threatening, Olympus seemed to grow sulky under the punishment. For nearly two furlongs Feeman kept him under the lash, with so little effect that Flying Cloud ran him down with ease and went on to grasp the lead from the tired Prince James. In the final stages Olympus got under way and managed to take the place from the Thieriot colt by a neck, two lengths behind the winner. Two Feathers, the only other starter was never a contender.

Excuse for Olympus is hard to find, for he carried only 108 pounds and the race was run in the not spectacular time of 1 1-16 1-5 over a good, although not lightning fast, track. Nevertheless, Trainer Rowe will ship him to Latonia tomorrow with his stablemate, Whiskaway, and says he may start both of them in the big mile-and-a-quarter contest on Saturday, although the son of Whisk Broom II. will have the call if only one goes.

Benjamin Block's Morvich, supplanted in his position of favoritism 14st Saturday by Whiskaway's easy victory over him in the Carlton Mile, started westward Sunday morning at 9 o'clock and is already at Latonia. It is now stated that Fred Burlew, trainer of the son of Sunnymede, was restrained from scratching him in the Carlton only by the dislike for disappointing the public, having noted that the colt was not quite himself. Nevertheless, Burlew is not cast down and expresses the opinion that Morvich will be a much better racer in the Special than in his losing effort.

Pillory, the R. T. Wilson candidate in the Latonia contest, will be shipped to that track tomorrow. The only other Western entrant which will be seen in action in the race, John Sanford's Serenader, will go tomorrow.

Wishbone, the fleet three-year-old filly trained by S. J. Lawler for the Allied stable, which surprised the onlookers at Belmont last week by soundly beating Harridan and running the six furlongs in 1:11 2-5, repeated the victory scored on that occasion, in the Accelerator Purse, which opened the afternoon's sport.

English Polo Team to Play In Fall Tournaments Here

LONDON, June 19.—Acting upon the invitation of the American Polo Association that an English team be sent over to compete in the leading tournaments next Fall, Captain Frederick E. Guest, brother of Lord Wimborne, is arranging to take a quartet of players across the Atlantic. It is understood the team will be composed of Captain H. A. Tomkinson, Major G. H. Phipps-Hornsby, Major F. W. Barrett and Captain Guest himself. The present plan is that the team shall cross after the finish of the polo season here.

MAY DECLARE RING TITLES FORFEITED

Boxing Commission, Which Meets Today, Has Had No Word From Kilbane or Wilson.

Unless the sport-governing body is notified of steps taken by the boxers to defend their championships prior to its weekly session, the world's middleweight championship boxing title, held by Johnny Wilson, local product who makes his home in Boston, and the world's featherweight title in the possession of Johnny Kilbane, Cleveland ring veteran, probably will be declared open for competition today when the New York State Athletic Commission holds its regular meeting. Secretary Harry Burchell announced yesterday that the board had received no direct word from either of the titleholders concerning their intentions with regard to defending their laurels. The commission has set a time limit in which both boxers can sign articles for the defense of their title. This time limit expires today.

In the case of Wilson, the 160-pound class leader, he is called upon by the commission to honor a contract he signed during the last indoor season for a bout at the middleweight limit against Harry Greb, Pittsburgh boxer. This contest was signed for Madison Square Garden. When Wilson failed to go through with the battle he was indefinitely suspended by the commission. He still is under suspension.

Kilbane is called upon by the commission to recognise a legitimate challenge issued by Johnny Dundee, local Italian, who appeared before the board some time ago and submitted his challenge with an accompanying forfeit of $2,500, insuring good faith. The commission has ordered Kilbane to sign articles for a bout against Dundee, specifically, by today, under threat of declaring the Clevelander's title forfeited and recognising Dundee as the featherweight champion.

May Sign for Wilson Today.

Wilson's manager, Marty Killalea, was expected at Madison Square Garden yesterday to discuss with Matchmaker Frank B. Flournoy arrangements for a Wilson-Greb contest. The middleweight champion, soon after receiving notice of the commission's present stand, signified his willingness to go through with the match, and the belief prevails that the boxers will be signed for an outdoor bout. It is probable Killalea will confer with Flournoy this morning, in order that he may appear before the commission with the information that he is obeying the mandate of the board.

No word has been received from Kilbane at the commission headquarters. Kilbane has been strangely quiet since the commission issued its arbitrary time-limit ruling, although efforts have been made to arrange a title match for the featherweight champion. Tex Rickard, Garden promoter, has offered Kilbane inducements to enter the ring to defend his title, but Kilbane, according to Rickard, adheres to unreasonable financial demands. Secretary Harry Burchell of the commission yesterday summed up the situation as follows:

"If the boxers sign articles for a bout before the meeting of the commission, the situation automatically will be relieved. We have heard no direct word from either boxer, so that as far as the commission is concerned the situation remains as it was when the commission adopted its latest ruling on the matter. What action will be taken at tomorrow's meeting I cannot say. The matter will be brought to the attention of the commission, since the time limit will expire. If either or both of the boxers notify the commission of plans for bouts, it is possible a time extension will be granted, even though the champions have not signed articles to box. If it develops at the meeting that the boxers have ignored the commission's ruling, it will be for the commission to determine what action is to be taken."

Dundee in Line for Title.

If the commission abides by its threat of declaring the respective titles void and open for competition, Dundee, because of the fact that he has a challenge forfeit posted with the commission, will be recognised in this State as the featherweight champion and will be called upon to defend the title against the first challenger who issued a legitimate defi with an accompanying forfeit. Wilson's title, in the event that the champion fails to abide by the board's ruling, will be declared the property of Greb, and the latter will be compelled to defend it against all legitimate challengers.

MORVICH HOUSED AT LATONIA TRACK

LATONIA, Ky., June 19.—Morvich, three-year-old son of Runnymede-Hymer, undefeated as a two-year-old and beaten only once as a three-year-old, is in stable at the Latonia race track. Promptly at 12:50 P. M. today the "big horse," as he is commonly called, placed his hoofs on Kentucky soil for the second time this Spring. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Block, Mr. and Mrs. Hart Dernham—Mr. Dernham being agent for the stable—and Trainer Fred Burlew were in the party, which arrived in Cincinnati at 10:10 A. M.

With Morvich in his private car came the six-year-old horse Translate, Mawcoron, a three-year-old, and a stable pony. Mr. Dernham and Fred Burlew said Morvich shipped well and would be in splendid condition for the 1922 Latonia Special Saturday. Burlew said the colt would be given daily workouts from now on until Friday, and he expected to see him run the greatest race of his career on the afternoon of June 24. Burlew said Mr. Block would start Morvich also in the Latonia Derby.

Expects Great Things of Colt.

"We are here, and glad to be in old Kentucky again," said Block. "Morvich will run a great race in the big stake on Saturday. He will be just as fit for that grueling test as he was when he carried my colors to the post in the Kentucky Derby, and he was fit that day.

"That race on Saturday, in which his spotless record was blemished, did him a world of good. No horse is invincible. I expect great things of my colt from now on. No three-year-old in the country can give away fifteen pounds to a colt like Whiskaway, but we hope to avenge this defeat when both meet over the special route of a mile and a quarter. I will not predict that Morvich will win this event, but I will say that his owner, trainer and rider will be doing their best in an effort to enable him to defeat his field. The best horse will no doubt win, and I think I have the best horse."

The Harry Payne Whitney eligibles for the special race, Whiskaway, Bunting and Olympus, will leave the East tonight and are expected to reach Latonia by Tuesday afternoon. They will be coupled in the betting as an entry.

Late tonight Burlew announced that Morvich would take to the course tomorrow morning for a slow gallop, to be followed by a stiff breeze early Wednesday morning. On Thursday he will cover the full Latonia special distance of one and one-quarter miles as final preparations for his effort in the classic.

Deadlock to Have Test.

Deadlock, which races in the colors of Polk Lafoon and Robert Shannon, is down for a fast workout of one mile tomorrow morning, and those who are pulling for the western owned horses are anxious to see this son of Sir Wilfred round into his best form for the race.

Bet Mosie, Thibodaux and several other western owned eligibles are commanding considerable interest and their preparation for the race will be eagerly watched.

Matt J. Winn, Vice President and General Manager of the Kentucky Jockey Club, is doubtful whether spacious and beautiful Latonia will be large enough to accommodate the throng that will journey to the course next Saturday to witness the struggle of the giants of the three-year-old division. He arranged today for the fencing off of a portion of the infield and the overflow will observe the race from this vantage point.

Boxing Notes.

A card of ten four-round bouts between topnotch boxers is being arranged for the next ring carnival of the National Sports Alliance, which is to be held for the purpose of securing funds to provide permanent headquarters for the N. S. A. The bouts are scheduled for the night of July 12, at the Queensboro A. C., Long Island City. Among the stars who have already signified their willingness to appear in battles are Johnny Dundee, Pepper Martin, Willie Jackson, Harry Greb, Gene Tunney, Earl Baird, Dave Rosenberg, Jack Sharkey, Frankie Jerome, Jock Malone and Lou Bogash. The N. S. A. Matchmaking Committee now is engaged in the task of pairing the battlers.

Holders of ring titles are scheduled to attend a dinner to State Senator James J. Walker, sponsor of the Empire State Boxing law, by the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association, at the Hotel Plaza, Monday night. Among the titleholders who are announced as prospective guests are Johnny Buff, Johnny Kilbane, Johnny Dundee, Benny Leonard, Jack Britton, Johnny Wilson and Harry Greb. It is expected that Jack Kearns will attend the dinner as representative of Jack Dempsey.

The card of bouts which was postponed at the Queensboro A. C. because of rain last Saturday night will be conducted in the open-air arena in Long Island City this evening, unless the elements again intervene. Floyd Johnson, California heavyweight, is slated for a ten-round clash with Bob Roper, Chicago boxer, as the main attraction. Another ten-round battle will bring together Andy Chenay, west side featherweight, and Frankie Brown of the east side. Jimmy Carroll, promising west side lightweight, is scheduled to tackle Johnny Holmes in the third ten-round encounter.

Longnecker Leads With Cue.

Harry Longnecker assumed the lead in the handicap three-cushion tournament of the Recreation Billiard Academy of Brooklyn last night by defeating Harold Turk, 35 to 12. The game went forty-two innings.

NOT INEVITABLE.

President Lewis of the Mine Workers declares that a great railway strike is now "inevitable." This may simply mean that he strongly desires it, and thinks that a tie-up of transportation would reconcile the country to paying higher prices for coal. Such reasoning is tortuous, yet nobody can be sure that it will not prevail to the extent of bringing about at least a partial railroad strike. If it comes it will have to be met. Should only the unions quit work whose wages are directly affected by the decision of the Railroad Labor Board, the situation would be comparatively simple. But even if the other railway employés should strike—even if in a rough way the idea of the "one big union" should be accepted by the men—there would be nothing for it but for the Government and the people to assert their rights as necessarily superior to those of any one class. France once met successfully such a challenge to the authority of the nation; England has also done it within recent years; there is no doubt that the United States would do it if forced to it.

That it will not be, however, it is reasonable to hope. Never could a general railway strike be so ill-timed as at present. Never would the instant opposition of a powerful body of public opinion be so adverse and fatal to the strikers as it would certainly be in these days. The country is slowly righting itself, and begins to see better times ahead. What it would think of men who needlessly and recklessly endangered or set back the whole movement toward industrial recovery it requires no prophet to foretell. The most vigorous action which the Government might propose would be backed up by an overwhelming public sentiment. Even Congress, which once allowed the railway unions to hold a stop-watch on it, would not hesitate to respond to any urgings by the Executive in the face of so great a national disaster as would be a general strike at this juncture.

It is not inevitable, despite what Mr. Lewis says. The unions concerned with the operation of the railroads are not involved in this dispute. The engineers, the firemen, the brakemen, the conductors and the telegraphers have no controversy with the Labor Board. They might indeed be mad enough to join in a sympathetic strike, but that would be in an even more marked and foolish way to forfeit at once all public support. If the operating employés stick to their job, railway transportation would go on but slightly impaired. And it is beyond question that the places of the shop men and maintenance men could easily be filled from the outside. Thousands of workers whose wages are at present sensibly less than those in comparable employments under the railroads—even after the reduction in the wages of the latter—could be counted upon to step in.

This consideration cannot fail to be in the minds of sensible shop men who see the possibility of losing their positions indefinitely if they strike. They must also be alert to the ambiguity implied in the result of their vote. They are asked by their ballot to say whether they will accept the cut in their wages, but their leaders announce that this will be equivalent to a vote in favor of a strike. It certainly would not be so in the intention of thousands of the men, who on the direct and simple question of striking might have divided very differently. It is not strange that there should be a large vote against willingness to accept reduction in wages, but it is straining the point to interpret this as meaning readiness to quit and to go for a time without any wages at all.

In the letter sent to the Railroad Labor Board by the associated unions there are many statements which are purely for rhetorical effect. The writers themselves must have known that they could not bear examination in point of fact. It is not true that the slight reduction in wages condemns thousands of railway workers to poverty, to "actual pauperism," or to a living below the minimum conditions of a healthy and decent existence. The proof of this leaps to the eye of any one who will look at the many more thousands of other workers who are living comfortably and with a fair degree of satisfaction on pay considerably lower than the scale fixed for the railway men. The latter will not help their case by making assertions which great multitudes in their own walk of life know to be hollow.

In effect, the attitude of the railway unions is a defiance not only of the public but of the law. The Railroad Labor Board is functioning under an Act of Congress. This was the latest and fullest attempt at Government regulation of the railroad business. Once in for regulation, we must regulate. Of course, the unions have the physical power to reject the decisions of the Railroad Labor Board and to bring down to the ground the whole system established by Federal statute. But they will do it, if they do it at all, at their own peril. Out of the wreck which they would have made it would be preposterous to suppose that a plan would emerge more favorable to their special interest. They would be more far-sighted to cling to the advantages which they now have under Government regulation, although accompanied by certain drawbacks, rather than to fly to ills that they know not of.

MR. BAKHMETEFF'S DEPARTURE.

BORIS BAKHMETEFF, lately Russian Ambassador at Washington, sails for Europe today. Next Fall he will return, a private citizen. He will then no longer be an obstacle to the gentlemen who want the United States to recognize the Soviet Government of Russia, so it may be hoped that no more will be heard of the attacks on his honesty, which have been repeated despite the production of evidence that they were groundless. To credit the charges that have been made against him, it is necessary to assume that three successive Secretaries of State and three successive Secretaries of the Treasury, Republican and Democratic, conspired with him to defraud the Government and people of the United States. The real reason for this animosity lay in the fact that Mr. BAKHMETEFF was an inconveniently able opponent of the friends of Bolshevism.

Mr. LANSING and Mr. POLK have now added their testimony to that of members of the present Administration, that in the opinion of American officials who dealt with him Mr. BAKHMETEFF was a patriotic and useful servant of Russia and a friend of the United States. The truth does not always immediately prevail, but this bit of truth may gain ground, now that there is no more need for Mr. BAKHMETEFF'S enemies to spread falsehoods about him.

TACTICS AND PRINCIPLES.

Conferences of Republican Senators have come to be rather vain affairs. Some Republicans won't go to them. Other Republicans refuse to be bound by their decisions. They are merely expedients to patch up a temporary truce. Yesterday's conference on the order of procedure in regard to the Tariff bill and the Bonus bill was really not much more than an interlocutory judgment. Senator McCUMBER'S motion to put the Bonus bill ahead of the Tariff bill was beaten—a sore defeat for a Senator whose soul is harried with fears about the North Dakota primary, now only eight days away. The bonus is to be "pressed as expeditiously as possible." The conference loves "the American soldier."

The fight against the Bonus bill can't be suppressed or long delayed. Its opponents refused last week to consent to the limitation of discussion on the subject in the Senate or to agree on a day for voting. Not to oblige any Senator with primaries on his hands will they allow a measure giving away some four billions of the taxpayers' money to be rushed through the Senate. They will resist it by every parliamentary means and device; and public opinion will justify them in so doing. To that very considerable and increasing number of voters who are dissatisfied with the course of the Republicans in Congress and who wish to find in the course of the Democrats in Congress evidences of a sounder and more patriotic policy, the apparent intention of many Democratic Senators, the majority of them, to treat this grave danger and scandal of a bonus as a mere opportunity of "smart" party tactics is disheartening.

Bring up the Bonus bill, hurry its passage, claim the "credit" of its passage, score a point against the Republicans, show that the Democrats are the best "friends of the soldier"—that is the shallow program, attractive to a Democratic partisan, boiling over with joy in the game, but the plan is essentially unworthy, unsound, unstatesmanlike. Democratic Senators like Mr. KING and Mr. UNDERWOOD are taking the wiser course, better for the country and so better for their party in the end. They are striving to protect the Treasury and the taxpayers. They are resisting a monstrous extravagant expenditure of public money. What excuse is there for Democrats who deliberately foster that extravagance in the noble hope of "putting the Republicans in a hole"? If the Republicans in Congress are losing their hold upon public confidence, do the Democrats expect to gain that confidence by showing that they are even worse than the Republicans?

THE ENGLISH AND BASEBALL.

When Sir ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE discusses the terrestrial topic of baseball all ears are open. The author of "Micah Clarke" and "The White Company," those red-blooded stories, seems himself again. "Baseball is a noble game," he says. He once played it with other Englishmen against Americans in Switzerland, and the latter were beaten. "I was short-stop on that occasion," he adds. He was fifty-two! Sir ARTHUR knows that baseball "is the game England needs." For years there has been a demand for a young man's game, "and baseball will fill the want." Is he aware that three strenuous efforts have been made by American professionals, the very flower of the diamond, to interest Englishmen in baseball without weaning them from cricket?

It is diverting to remember that the Englishmen HARAT and GEORGE WRIGHT, who belonged to "a family of great cricket players," came to the United States in 1852 to teach Americans to play the English national game. They could not have had much success, for they succumbed to the fascinations of baseball. HARRY WRIGHT is known to Americans who never heard of his English birth as the "Father of Professional Baseball." FRANCIS C. RICHTER says in his "History and Records of Baseball," "HARRY WRIGHT was the real 'Father of Professional Baseball,' and "was also the greatest team organizer "and manager in the history of the "sport." GEORGE WRIGHT was the peerless shortstop of his prime, quick as a cat on his feet and very accurate in throwing to bases. The WRIGHTS were a credit to the sport and popular with its patrons. There are still veterans who remember alert Brother GEORGE at shortstop on the Boston League team, always playing the position clean and true.

The first baseball invasion of England and Ireland was made in 1874 by the Boston and Athletic teams. Games were played between them at London, Manchester, Liverpool, Sheffield and Dublin, the Bostons winning eight, the Athletics six. The Americans tried their hands at cricket, and, with an allowance of six extra men, defeated the British in every one of the seven matches played. But the invasion was a failure financially, only $1,679.70 being taken in at the gate. In 1888-89 A. G. SPALDING of Chicago made a baseball tour of the world with his Chicago team and a picked team of professionals called the All-Americas. Fourteen games were played in Australia, the Chicagos winning eight of them. Afterward the Americans exhibited at Colombo, Ceylon; in the shadow of the Pyramids; at Naples, Rome, Florence, Paris; and in England, Scotland and Ireland. The All-Americas won eleven of sixteen games. This tour around the world is said to have been "entirely satisfactory to the projectors."

In 1913-14 President COMISKEY of the Chicago American Club and Manager McGRAW of the New York Nationals tried their luck in a third venture. The Giants and the White Sox played, with the honors about even, in Japan, Australia, Hongkong, Manila, Colombo, Cairo and London. "The trip," says the chronicle, "was a great artistic and financial success." But after three educational invasions the Britishers and Colonists, young men as well as oldsters, continue to play cricket. No one questions, however, that English youth have the physique and aptitude to excel at baseball if they were to take it up.

THE RESERVE AND FARMERS.

Senator HEFLIN does THE TIMES the justice to say that it wishes to be fair. We readily published his letter about the policy of the Federal Reserve Bank regarding loans on commodities in the post-war collapse of market prices. It is not possible to reproduce the twenty-eight pages of the Congressional Record in which he thinks that he answers the speech of Senator GLASS. The public could not be got to take interest in the mass of figures prepared by Mr. JOHN SKELTON WILLIAMS for Senator HEFLIN. But it ought to be interested in the principles involved.

In the words of Senator HEFLIN: "The Federal Reserve system gives "you a right to borrow on your ware-"house receipt and hold your cotton "until you can make them pay you "the cost of production plus a "profit." If the Federal Reserve had been administered on that theory it could not have carried the country through its greatest crisis without a trace of panic. If the farmers had been given all the credit they asked, the world markets would have collapsed just the same, and the farmers' losses would have been so much the larger. No one who had a right to draw a bank check could have been sure that the bank would have been able to pay it. The Senator's suggestion of lack of consideration for American farmers by the banks to which the farmers owed such great sums ought not to have been made, and is needless to repel, so completely does it negative itself.

Senator HEFLIN declares: "The fact "is that the great bulk of the agri-"cultural products are financed by the "so-called country banks." That is true, and there are twice as many banks outside the Federal Reserve as within it. Why not divide proportionately the blame for refusing to give the farmers all the credit they wanted? It was not the fault of the Federal Reserve if the country banks had so overloaned to the farmers that they could not qualify for rediscounts. It was not the fault of the Federal Reserve that the country banks, and even the member banks, were so filled with frozen farm loans that commercial processes almost stopped and something had to be done to keep trade currents open. There would have been no trouble about farmers' losses if the markets had not collapsed. Senator HEFLIN charges the collapse of the American farmers' markets on the Federal Reserve. But banks—Federal Reserve banks in particular—have nothing to do with sustaining markets. The liquidity of their loans is their chief care. The support of the American markets would have been impossible without sustaining the world's markets. All the banks and all the Governments would have failed in that superhuman task.

Senator GLASS's speech was purely financial. There was no politics or propaganda in it. Senator GLASS imputed no motives, and prepared his own figures from official sources. The Governor of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank has answered the Senate's inquiry, on motion of Senator HEFLIN, why the speech of Senator GLASS was circulated by the bank. Governor WELBORN writes: "We distributed the "speech for its value as bearing upon "an important economic question of "the day. * * * We were actuated by "no political motives." Senator HEFLIN'S speech was partisan in both its politics and finance. It spoke repeatedly of "Republican" deflation policy, abounded with attacks on "Wall Street wolves," and suggestion that the banks misused the funds which they refused the farmers. The Senator would have made his speech more convincing if he had used more of the moderation shown in the letter with which he favored the readers of yesterday's TIMES.

HOPEFUL PESSIMISM.

When the Presidents of American colleges were generally men of theological training, the "baccalaureate" was a "sermon." It is now an address, but it still usually takes a text from the Scriptures. It is a farewell which often becomes a homily on the state of the nation, and even of the world. It is addressed primarily to a visible company, but it has also a consciousness of the cloud of witnesses in the dim, interminable galleries of a democracy that has come to look to its college and university Presidents for guidance, especially in moral and spiritual matters.

Last Sunday the Presidents of Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Brown led in the baccalaureate utterance reported yesterday. The symposium is neither Olympian in its remoteness nor academic. The everyday, practical value of these pronouncements should be as great as that of the discovery, announced the same day, of the vitamin which protects bone growth and prevents rickets. These are intellectual and spiritual vitamins.

There is pervading these addresses a note of what might be called hopeful pessimism. President HIBBEN of Princeton rather glories in the pessimism of youth, looking upon it as a symptom of health, as the beginning of any philosophy of true optimism and as a provocative of the determination on the part of youth to prevent the world from "going to the devil." President ANGELL saw his first graduates at Yale going out to face and to fight falling standards, as witnessed in the exploitation of business for purely selfish ends; in the violations of laws, "never so general nor so widely condoned"; in the lower ideals of marriage, which has become "less "of a sacrament and more of a con-"sent adjustment," and in the fact "that traditional religion is under fire." But his own belief sees the young educated man meeting the expectation of the world that he will come through all this with a saving faith in the "primordial place of righteousness and love in the world" and a reverence for the "spiritual significance of personality."

President LOWELL begins with the same portentous word, saying that never in its history has the world been more in need of "clear, conscientious and generous thinking," but from the very compulsion of this tragic need springs the hope that we with the unmatched power to influence the fate of all mankind upon the earth will not be content with mere material wealth and comfort, but will act, in accordance with a belief in a moral order. President FAUNCE speaks disparagingly of 25 per cent. of the American students, saying that it would have been better for them and for the colleges if they had never entered, and he declares for a discrimination in admission, not on grounds of politics, race or religion nor even of scholarship alone, but of character as well; and so, out of his pessimism, he looks toward a finer college influence upon the life of communities and the nation.

Other baccalaureate speakers have found, one that our "generations do not pull together," another that we glory too much in our aloofness and another that we are challengers of the world only in other than the highest things. But from all this pessimism flames a confident hope as eternal as the spirit of youth and the recurrent seasons.

TOWARD CHINESE UNITY.

Canton, SUN YAT-SEN'S capital, has been captured by troops allied with the army of WU PEI-FU, fighting ostensibly for the cause of Chinese unity. Dr. SUN, equally enthusiastic for Chinese unity but insistent on doing the unifying himself, is now resident on a gunboat in the river, from which he bombards Canton when the spirit moves him. Apparently, he is not yet out of the fighting, for he has an army engaged further north. If it is beaten, as latest reports indicate, SUN is probably through; but if it can hold its own he may recover Canton.

The campaign seems to be going against him, and it is likely that before long all China except Manchuria will be united under the Government headed by LI YUAN-HUNG and sustained by WU PEI-FU. Except Manchuria. Wu's desultory attempts at invasion of CHANG TSAO-LIN'S home country have not had much success as yet. They may accomplish more when he is able to give all his attention to them, but for the moment CHANG seems to be safe in Manchuria. Always friendly, no doubt too friendly, to the Japanese, he is likely to lean in his present troubles on the only support offered him.

The experience of the Merkuloff Government in Siberia must offer CHANG a good deal of hope. That Government, supported if not set up by the Japanese, would have been driven out long ago by the Far Eastern Republic if Japanese troops had not set up a barrier behind which MERKULOFF'S soldiers can rally in case of defeat, while the Far Eastern forces dare not pass it. CHANG may reasonably hope that the Japanese army in Manchuria might give him some such protection against WU. CHANG could then attack Wu at will, and if defeated fall back behind the Japanese lines, which Wu would not venture to assault. This, of course, is inference; but it is not too wild a conjecture that what has happened in Siberia may happen in Manchuria. It is true that Mr. SABURI, the Japanese Chargé d'Affaires at Washington, said on Sunday that his Government was already taking the first steps toward a withdrawal of its troops from China. But first steps may be a long way from last steps, and in any case Japan will hold her leased territory on the Liao-tung Peninsula, if not other points in Southern Manchuria. That the civilian Japanese Government would not countenance any such scheme of protection for CHANG TSAO-LIN may be taken for granted. The civilian Government has long wanted to get out of Siberia; but the army wants to stay, and it has stayed.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Continuing the "Best Citizen's" Work.

With the loan of a fine camp site on W. K. VANDERBILT'S estate at Great Neck, the problem of where the children living near the Jacob A. Riis Settlement in Henry Street can be sent to the real country for a real vacation has been solved. Remaining is the always harder problem—that of getting the money needed for equipment and maintenance.

In New York, fortunately, such appeals always are met when brought to the attention of the right people—which means the very large number of New Yorkers, some of large resources and some with resources not so large, who always can give something more when their hearts are touched, even though they already have given much—and the letter from Mrs. RIIS, printed on this page Sunday, told just enough about Summer conditions in the tenements as they affect children to wake the impulse that prompts the making of a contribution, big or little.

No very large amount is required for the carrying out of this particular effort to render a considerable number of city children happier and healthier. Mrs. RIIS estimates that $2,500 will carry the camp through the Summer. Of course, more could be used—that is, with more money a greater number of the children in Henry Street and near it could have an outing, and all of them could have a longer one—but the $2,500 will do much, especially if it comes promptly, so as to permit of intelligent planning.

What vacations of this sort do for the children of the tenements is known by more than those who have studied the tenements or have visited one of their camps. Every commuter, as he comes into town, sees, several times during the Summer, one or more cars filled with tenement boys and girls, going or coming, and the difference between "before" and "after" is quite enough to prove the benefits of country air and food, even though they may have been enjoyed for only a week or two.

Forgetfulness Few of Us Have Attained.

Perfect fest are probably possible only for people who all their lives can and do go barefoot. The perfection of the natural so to be obtained, however, would be so much different from the present ideals of beauty at the lower human terminal that it would have the effect of ugly imperfection, and, as a majority of the world's inhabitants must wear shoes of some kind for the greater part of the year, there long has been a need for intelligent effort, first, to prevent, and, second, to cure, the more serious and harmful effects of keeping in lifelong imprisonment a part of the body which is both delicate and hard worked.

"Chiropodists" took up the task, and the shoemakers, when they did not yield to the demands of often absurd fashion, have helped to the extent of their usually rather small ability. For some time past, however, better trained specialists in the care of feet have assumed the name of "podiatrists," and have given their work the dignity which it deserves as a department in real medicine.

Alleviating the tortures caused by "corns" is not much more than an incident in the practice of their art. Their larger achievements were described at length in a talk by Dr. MAURICE J. LEWI, Dean of the first Institute of Podiatry, printed in THE TIMES on Sunday. He told about the establishment far up town of the first clinic of this sort, and of the better equipped one that just has been opened in the Grand Central Palace.

That the feet deserved care received earliest conscious and systematic recognition from military men, who had found out that an army unable to march fast and far had its utility much decreased. The need for like recognition by civilians and in time of peace, though not so vital, perhaps, is hardly less, for, as Dr. LEWI pointed out, at least half of the world's work is done standing or walking—he might have added more than half of its pleasure-activities—and always full efficiency demands feet in such condition that they do not remind their owner of their existence. He spoke a good word for the much-maligned flapper and her sandals, to, as a teaching a needed lesson in common sense to most of her critics.

Certainty Hardly Possible.

A most unusual—perhaps an unprecedented—fatality was reported yesterday in a dispatch from one of the Florida coast resorts. There, while two young women were swimming far from the shore, one of them was attacked by a big fish and so savagely bitten that in spite of heroic efforts to help her by her companion she died to death.

From the shape of the wounds on the unfortunate girl's body it was deduced that the fish was a barracuda. The evidence hardly seems conclusive. The barracuda does attain large size, indeed, and it is equipped with a terrible set of sharp, triangular teeth. As a known foe of other fish these big pike-like creatures do rival the sharks for ferocity, but it is so far from their habit to assail human beings that some doubt of the present identification by the shape of the gashes inflicted is justifiable.

But if it was not a barracuda that killed Miss MCCLATCHIE it must have been a shark, and even that would have been an occurrence rare enough to excite wonder. It often has been denied that even the fiercest of sharks attack swimmers who are in vigorous motion, as these young women presumably were. In the West Indies, where sharks are numerous, they are little feared by those who know their habits best, and many investigators of the subject have failed to find a well-authenticated case of killing or mutilation by them.

The generalization from this that there never have been any such cases is hasty, and there seems to be no question that deaths from shark-bite occurred a few seasons ago on the New Jersey coast.

He Risked All for Liberty.

Everybody who hears that a murderer has escaped from Sing Sing will hope, of course, that his recapture may be prompt. So easy is it to understand, however, the feeling that prompted the man's evasion that he will have from most people, if not good wishes, at least a sort of admiration for the skill, courage and determination which made flight possible.

He must have known that next to certainly he soon would be caught, and that as punishment he would be deprived of precious prison privileges. Yet he saw his chance, or made it, for liberty, whether for a few hours or many.

There is something that commands and deserves sympathy in that, and while it is the duty of every good citizen to help in the hunt for the escaped criminal, it is not a duty the performance of which causes the usual sense of complete satisfaction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Raphael Pumpelly's Reminiscences, Volume II., Chapter 53, Page 322, give an account of seventeen-year locusts coming out of the ground in May, 1904, in Turkestan. He says that he saw them split their outer skin and hop away—all in the same direction, over all obstacles. J. H. MILLARD.

THE BROAD-CAST-AWAYS.

(A Ballad of the Sea)

My terms may be a trifle wrong
(Excuse it, please, my mind's at sea),
The tide was high, the wind was strong.
At eight bells by the Captain's gong,
Our jolly tars burst into song.

We boxed the binnacle a bit
(My mind, you know, is far at sea),
And made the anchor tight and fit;
And furled the helm and spliced the sprit;
And got the compass filled and lit.

We heaved the sails and weighed the lead
(I fear my mind is far at sea),
And set a watch—an hour ahead!—
And passed the log, plum-duff, and bread,
And then the crew went off to bed.

Then all at once the mizzen spoke
(My mind is all so much at sea!)
With my wife's voice—the whole crew woke—
Though she was home on land—no joke—

O mercy me! From out the prow
(My mind is now far out at sea.)
We heard a lecture on The Cow.
A band piped up on weather bow.
Our ship was one great, noisy scow.

The Captain said, "This ends the trip!"
(My mind still dwells far out at sea.)
"Not even can a Skipper skip
From Radio. We're in its grip,
So port the grog and sink the ship!"

We tuned to Meters 2-3-6.
(My mind will never leave the sea.)
And sought for peace in depths below.
And did we find it? Mercy, no!
That blamed force rescued us, you know!

GERMAN DEBT.

Says Its Reduction Will Hamper American Business.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article by Edwin L. James in your issue of June 5 with regard to reduction of the German debt is a remarkable example of the influence of European statesmen on our American foreign correspondents.

Mr. James's suggestion in brief is that the German indemnity can be greatly reduced if America will pay $10,000,000,000 of it. The remainder of his article, which he admits is theoretical, does not qualify this suggestion.

As regards the proposal that France might agree to the cancellation of Class C bonds of the German indemnity to the amount of 82,000,000,000 marks should America agree to the cancellation of the French debt to us of $4,000,000,000, Mr. James has this to say: "I believe I am right in saying that President Millerand would favor acceptance of such a proposal." Why so modest? We all know he is right.

Does Mr. James ever read your paper? Is he familiar with business conditions in America today?

Does he know that America's losses due to insufficient railroad equipment run into hundreds of millions each year?

That our railroads, as also many of our basic industries, are unable to secure badly needed capital because of the uncurbed loans from the American money market to foreign industries?

Mr. James is far out of touch with American business and the worries of the American business man who would ultimately foot the bill should Mr. James's suggestions ever be given serious consideration.

There is only one way to pay a debt and that is to pay it, and the sooner the statesmen of Europe wake to that fact the sooner the world will get back to normal.

"America First" may sound a bit selfish, but it is greatly to be preferred to the European slogan, "Let America Pay."

MR. BUSCH AND THE U. S.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Behold the reductio ad absurdum of Volsteadism!

Alcoholic liquors must not be manufactured or sold in the United States saith the decree. This dictum is, by inference as well as by an official ruling handed down by the Attorney General, applicable everywhere under the American flag, including American vessels even when they are out at sea beyond the three-mile limit. Notwithstanding this ruling, the Chairman of the United States Shipping Board goes quietly to work and puts alcoholic liquors on sale on board steamships of the board. Mr. Busch, who is a brewer, objects to this practice on the ground that a law of the United States which prohibits his business is being violated by the Government of the United States. The Chairman of the Shipping Board unblushingly admits the truth of Mr. Busch's charge (denial would have been impossible), but defends his action by pointing out the fact that unless American passenger vessels have alcoholic liquors on sale foreign competition will render our subsidized merchant marine unprofitable. The Chairman then proceeds to "roast" Mr. Busch for being so babyish as to complain instead of accepting the situation like a good sport.

Here's a pretty kettle of fish! What's to be done now? Mr. Busch is clearly a better citizen than the United States Government, for he has kept the law, while the Government has violated it. Had Mr. Busch been such a frequent flouter of the law as is the Government he would have been heavily fined before this and would now doubtless be enjoying the salubrious climate of Leavenworth. Obviously, the only course that is open to good citizens now is to insist that the United States Government be fined and lodged in jail. Then, in order to make certain that the Volstead act will be obeyed hereafter, we must impeach Mr. Harding and put William H. Anderson in his place. After that it might be well to go back to the Constitution and amendment providing that alcoholic liquors must not be manufactured, sold or transported anywhere in the world.

Medleys of Patriotic Songs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a music festival recently held in Bryn Mawr, Pa., which was attended by several thousand representative citizens, the admirable program given by "The Narberth Choral Society" included a "Medley of American National Airs," arranged by C. F. Furey. The medley consisted of the first verses of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," "Yankee Doodle," "Rally 'Round the Flag," "Dixie" and "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue." But the last of those selections from the national airs ran, without a break, into

"Three cheers for My country, 'tis of thee."

And the Choral Society then went on to sing the entire first verse of the national hymn.

One lone citizen, who sat on one of the rear benches of the amphitheatre, promptly rose to his feet at the singing of that hymn. By degrees his decent and patriotic example was followed, until, toward the very end of the verse, the whole audience was finally standing. Had it not been thus caught unaware, by that hodge-podge of three lines of "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue" and the first verse of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," the audience would probably have shown its respect for the national hymn by rising instantly to its feet at the first words of it.

The awkward incident at the Bryn Mawr festival sharply emphasized the impropriety of ever using either "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" or "The Star-Spangled Banner" as a part of a mere medley. Thoughtful and patriotic Americans should protest against such a misuse of the national hymn or the national anthem. Whenever they are used they should be given a dignified and worthy separateness.

The English people are more careful in this matter than we Americans are. They would never tolerate a mélange of "Rule Britannia," "The Grenadier Guards" and "God Save the King." Americans would do well to cultivate the same sense of patriotic propriety. It would be well if our American bandmasters and orchestra leaders and conductors of choruses would unite to frown upon the too common habit of degrading the national anthem or the national hymn by using either of them as the tail-end of a mere medley.

S. Josephine Baker, M. D.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the discussions as to who are our twelve most representative women, I should like to suggest the name of S. Josephine Baker, M. D., head of the Department of Child Hygiene of the City of New York.

Dr. Baker in her twenty years of service has done more to improve conditions for children, to insure life, and make possible a healthy and enlightened coming generation than any other of our distinguished women. The record of her services entitles her to recognition as one of the twelve most notable women of America.

"GREAT" AND "GREATEST."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was amazed at your list of "greatest women." A tennis champion and a movie actress may be well-known, but does that make them great, or even greatest? It is a curious anomaly of all languages that the superlative often has a lower value than the positive; for one may be the greatest of an inferior group without deserving the title of a great woman, one who must possess inherent qualities of mind and character worthy to be looked up to, as well as a clever accomplishment. Where are the living women who can fitly be called great in the same breath with Julia Ward Howe, Alice Freeman Palmer, Charlotte Cushman, Maria Mitchell and others of a past generation? But under the limitation of being the greatest of a secondary group, one might accept the following:

Philanthropist—Jane Addams.
Civic and social worker—Lillian Wald.
Essayist—Agnes Repplier.
Novelist—Edith Wharton.
Poet—Josephine Peabody or Sara Teasdale.
Actress—Mrs. Fiske.
Painter—Cecilia Beaux.
Sculptor—Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.
Composer—Mrs. Beach.
Publicist—Ida Tarbell.
Politician—Mrs. Catt.
Feminist—M. Carey Thomas.

To be the successful administrator of a college is not the same as being a great educator. And where among all our fine teachers is the outstanding women educator, such as was Marie Hopkins? All of which goes to confirm your opinion, Mr. Editor, that so far, at least, women have done more valuable work under the leadership of men than independently. How pleasant the world would be, however, if credit were given where credit is due—if doctors, following the beau-geste of the conductor of an orchestra in response to applause, should wave an enthusiastic hand for the nurses to stand up to be cheered; if superintendents of schools should speak the true word that our children could not be educated were it not for thousands of consecrated women teachers; and so on ad infinitum, closing with a chorus of male relatives in praise of those inconspicuous but important women who continue the race, feed it, clothe it, nurse it in sickness, train it in health and pour out a wealth of love and devotion without diminishing the supply. If this were done there would not be enough feminists left to rail at the subjection of women. For the moment you honor women for the indispensable quality they contribute to life and dignify their calling by recognising its superlative importance—at that moment you share your throne.

"Grinds" at College.

Your article of the 14th in regard to Ensign Kaplan amused me. Your argument that because "boys will be boys," and because the "grind" is never a popular individual in any institution of learning, and because a college or naval academy should not foster students who devote themselves more to their studies than to the social requirements of their comrades that, therefore, the unmanly and freshman barbarism indulged in by future officers of the United States Navy should be excused, is astonishingly absurd. What the fundamental purpose of any college or academy is is an academic question, and one that I will not disturb. You fail to see that that is not the vital question which the Kaplan affair arouses. It is something far beyond boyish prejudices and sophomoric asininities. It concerns an American institution, supported by the American Government, and immediately affecting the American people.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, in his letter of reprimand to Ensign Olmstead, editor in chief of The Lucky Bag, has put it: "A most serious note in this incident at the Academy was struck by the query in certain people's minds as to whether the action had been taken because of racial reasons. Feeling as strongly as I do how un-American any such distinction as this should be, I have gone most carefully into this phase, and I am convinced that no such motive was behind the incident."

The question, therefore, is not whether "grinds" should be tolerated in our colleges, but rather whether it is expedient to allow students of any American institution to unrestrainedly release their primitive emotions, and thus to create a spirit inharmonious with the spirit of the nation.

As to the "grind," such an intellectual monstrosity is a fiction in this country. He does not exist. If he is one such as you define him to be—"a student solely interested in his studies"—if he is a person who takes his job seriously and exercises his whole being in devotion to it, then he is a personality that every institution of learning is looking for. He is the person that business calls for. He is the man that the nation needs more than a thousand popular politicians or Senatorial barkers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the appeal in today's TIMES of Cornelius V. Vanderbilt to save from the marine scrap pile the last of Donald McKay's clippers, the Glory of the Seas, built in 1869, the writer recalls that in the Spring of 1880 as an ordinary seaman he made the round trip from San Francisco to Nanaimo, B. C., and return in this rather noted ship.

Captain Freeman, "from down Brewster way," was the master of the ship, which was then, if my memory serves, rigged with three skysail yards. We went to Nanaimo in ballast, returning with coal. I can see Captain Freeman—I think his Christian name was Joshua—in my mind's eye now, as, one night, when I was at the wheel during a heavy squall off Flattery, he came on deck through the cabin companionway in his night shirt to see how the second mate was handling the situation. When the ship, which was in ballast and high out of water, took a sharp roll to starboard, the skipper only saved himself by clutching the mizzen-royal backstay on the weather side of the poop. The inadequacy of the night shirt on this occasion was very evident.

The Captain even then was well along in years, and was tall and thin. I suppose he is now in a haven where storms do not disturb him and where night shirts are different from the ones he wore in the long years he commanded the Glory of the Seas.

CLARENCE MACKAY'S DAUGHTER TO WED

SHE WAS ACTIVE IN WAR

Her Fiance, a Lawyer, Served Overseas as Captain of the 306th Field Artillery.

Clarence H. Mackay announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Katherine Mackay, to Kenneth O'Brien, youngest son of former Justice Morgan J. O'Brien and Mrs. O'Brien of 720 Park Avenue.

Miss Mackay is the elder of Mr. Mackay's two daughters, Miss Ellin Mackay being the other daughter, and she has a young brother, John W. Mackay. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. John W. Mackay and the late John W. Mackay. Her mother, formerly Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay and now the wife of Dr. Joseph A. Blake, was Miss Katherine Duer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Duer.

After graduating from St. Timothy's School at Catonsville, Md., Miss Mackay made her début in the Summer of 1919 at Southampton, but her coming out was very quiet.

During the war Miss Mackay was conspicuous in war work. She organized a large surgical class in connection with the Mackay Unit of the Roosevelt Hospital, U. S. A. Base Hospital 15, which was one of the first of the large hospitals to do duty overseas. She was also very active in canteen work for the Red Cross and the Knights of Columbus. She has been an active member of the Junior League, appearing frequently in charity entertainments, and during the last two Winters she has worked at the New York Hospital.

Miss Mackay's father is head of the Postal Telegraph system, and besides his town residence at 3 East Seventy-fifth Street he owns one of the finest estates in America, Harbor Hill, at Roslyn, L. I., containing 600 acres of park and woodland, farm and lawn, lying along the crest of the Wheatley Hills. The manor house is of the pure French chateau type, of the style of Mansard, and the period of 1640.

Her paternal grandfather, John W. Mackay, was one of the most successful pioneers of California. As a young man he entered the gold fields and became a miner in Nevada. He became a member of what was to have historical memory in gold mining, as the "Bonanza" firm, composed of William S. O'Brien, James G. Fair, James C. Flood and John W. Mackay.

Mr. Mackay, her father, has been a most generous patron of Catholic charities, and in 1916 Pope Benedict XV. conferred upon him the title of Knight Command of the Equestrian Order of St. Gregory.

Mr. O'Brien is the youngest son of former Justice and Mrs. O'Brien, and attended the Newman School, graduating from Yale, class of '17. He was a member of the Scroll and Key while at Yale. Like his father, he is a lawyer by profession, and is also a graduate of the Fordham Law School.

During the war Mr. O'Brien served overseas as Captain of the 306th Field Artillery in the Seventy-seventh Division. His father, at his election as a Justice of the Supreme Court of New York in 1887 was then in his thirty-fifth year, and up to that time the youngest man to hold office. Justice O'Brien, the former Justice, was an intimate friend of Cardinal Farley, and with his brother-in-law, the late John D. Crimmins, has been considered one of the best informed laymen of this city and State, and at the instance of Cardinal Farley he was knighted by the Pope.

No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

MISS MANNES BRIDE OF CHARLES B. MARR

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen H. Mannes Wed in St. Thomas's —Pair Sail for Europe Today.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Eva Wallace as maid of honor, and Miss Genevieve De Laney as bridesmaid. Donald M. Lovejoy was his brother's best man and the ushers were Frank Dwyer, C. Eugene Kelse, George H. Scott and Appleton Stevens. The ceremony was followed by a small reception for relatives and close friends. The couple will spend their honeymoon motoring in Canada.

Malino—Roman.

The marriage of Jerome E. Malino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Malino of 907 Riverside Drive, and Miss Lenore Roman, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Roman of this city, took place last Sunday afternoon at the Pennsylvania Hotel. The Rev. Dr. B. A. Tintner officiated. The bride is a graduate of the Institute of Musical Art and of Teachers College, Columbia University, class of '20. Mr. Malino is a graduate of the Columbia Law School, class of '21, and is a member of the firm of Gilbert & Gilbert in this city. The couple will spend their honeymoon touring the United States.

Berliner—Cohen.

The marriage of Miss Louise B. Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Cohen of 328 Central Park West, and Dr. M. Berliner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maier Berliner of 325 Central Park West, took place yesterday at noon at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. Rudolph Grossman performed the ceremony. Mark Elsner was best man for Mr. Berliner.

Feldman—Morita.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Johanna E. Morita, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Morita of Woodhaven, L. I., and Adolph Peter Feldman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Feldman of Brooklyn, took place last Wednesday evening in the Lutheran Church at Woodhaven. The Rev. E. T. Zaxheimer officiated. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, after which the young couple left to spend their honeymoon in Canada and among the Thousand Islands.

Brooks—Wright.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The marriage of Miss Carol Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright, to Edward Russell Brooks of New York took place this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Highlands. The Rev. Herbert S. Sandelph officiated.

THE ADRIATIC HERE WITH 3 OTHER SHIPS

WOMAN'S HEATHER SEIZED

Delayed by the fog which other liners have encountered in the last week, the Adriatic of the White Star line docked here yesterday afternoon with 434 passengers. Among the cabin arrivals was Dr. Otto Klotz, director of the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, Canada. Dr. Klotz attended the astronomical conference at Rome and the seismograph conference at Strassburg. He also witnessed the celebration marking the 700th anniversary of the founding of the University of Padua in Italy.

When asked his opinion on the possibilities of signaling Mars by radio, Prof. Klotz replied:

"Once I gave out an interview with the Martians when we were discussing a new housing plan in Canada. That interview was so successful—it went around the world and came back to me—that I have hesitated ever since to talk about them. You see, I don't know the least thing about them."

A sprig of English heather and maidenhair fern which Mrs. Cora H. Strickland of 82 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, was carrying ashore was seized by customs men. An expert of the Department of Agriculture told Mrs. Strickland the plants would have to be sent to Washington for examination.

Others on the Adriatic were Mrs. T. W. Lamont, Mrs. H. H. Kohlsaat, Miss Charlotte Dodge and Robert Ludlow Fowler Jr.

Mme. Gabriella Parcto, a Spanish singer, arrived on the French Line steamer Lafayette yesterday. She said she would go to Chicago for the Summer opera season. The Lafayette brought seventy-two passengers.

Even Trotsky's soldiers would welcome the return of a monarchy, said Mrs. Olga P. Cortino, widow of a Russian Admiral. She was a passenger on the Royal Mail Line steamer Orbita, docking here yesterday. Mrs. Cortino said that in Petrograd bread cost 170,000 rubles a pound.

G. H. Buchanan, a newspaper publisher of Mankato, Minn., declared that among the continentals in the Italian ports were the only ones who gave the United States any credit for entering the war. Mr. Buchanan voiced a complaint heard among other passengers regarding laws in Mediterranean countries dealing unfairly with tourists.

George E. Valles, financial representative from Bolivia to the United States, and Robert W. Dunsmuir, who is building a railroad at Callao, Peru, were on the Grace line steamer Santa Luisa, which ended its trip from Valparaiso and West Coast ports.

OCEAN TRAVELERS.

Boris Bakhmeteff, retiring Ambassador from Russia, is among those sailing today for Europe on the Berengaria of the Cunard Line. Mr. and Mrs. William B. Orr, James Shewan and Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Dominick also have booked passage.

On the passenger list are also Gen. Butler Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ames, Mrs. R. S. Baldwin, Mrs. Sidney Bernheimer, Samuel A. Beardsley, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Blumer, J. A. Downard, Mrs. E. F. Dwight, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. M. Feigenheimer, Charles N. Goodyear, F. H. Fowler, Miss Nona S. Gould, Major and Mrs. Charles E. Greenough, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Guillaume, W. Barclay Harding, Henry P. Upham Harding, C. Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hazelton, Robert Hazzard and Miss Barbara Hazzard, Max B. Heim, Mrs. Charles Hoffman and Miss Rita Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hewitt, Mrs. R. W. Hoyt, Dr. C. Hubly, Alexander Hurwitz, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Ingraham, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Jackson, Pierre Jeardel, Mr. and Mrs. David M. Kahan, A. M. Keith.

Others are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Keller, Mrs. George Gordon King, Mrs. E. D. Kitching, S. B. Kling, Mr. and Mrs. P. Kirkwood, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Klug, Mrs. Jules Gerard Kranich, Mrs. John N. Ladensack, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Levy, Mr. and Mrs. John Lyon, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Maxwell, H. Mallapin, 3d, Capt. Edward McKeon, Joseph Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Moyse, Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Nance, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Parson, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Paxton, Samuel Pritchard, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Roche, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe Sanda, Gibbs Wynkoop Sherill, Mrs. Frank H. Snell, Mr. and Mrs. Leo N. Stelner, S. Dana Greenfield, M. Collier Smith, Mrs. E. M. Speyer, Mrs. George Gordon Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. M. Van Gilden, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Van Hulsen White, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Whitmarsh, Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Williams and T. Yabashi.

Gives LL. D. Degree to General Mason M. Patrick.

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 19.—The University of Vermont, at its one hundred and eighteenth commencement today conferred the honorary degrees of Doctor of Divinity upon the Right Rev. George Williams Davenport, Episcopal Bishop of the Eastern Diocese of Maryland, and of Doctor of Engineering upon Major General Mason M. Patrick, Chief of the Air Service.

Other degrees conferred were:

Doctor of Letters—Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Arlington, Vt., and Lawrence Fraser Abbott, New York.

The Griffin Society was established in 1872, just a half century ago. Sigma Tau was opened here in 1890. In recent years, it is explained, a feeling has grown among faculty, alumni and prominent members of societies that some of the societies had ceased to make contributions to the development of esautiafactory spirit and morale at Wesleyan.

The trustees announced that they had selected Leonard Albert Rowland, Fiske Professor of Mathematics, as Vice President, but had taken no action on the selection of an acting President during President Hankin's absence.

RADIO TOUR BY MARCONI.

Inventor to Inspect Radio Corporation's High-Power Plant.

As the guest of the Radio Corporation of America, William Marconi will begin tomorrow to inspect several of the company's high-power plants which transmit messages across the Atlantic. He will be accompanied by engineers of the company, and one or more stations will be visited each day.

Senator Marconi will deliver his lectures on recent radio improvements before the radio engineers and the electrical engineers tonight in the Engineering Societies Building. He will be the guest at a dinner preceding the lecture.

FOREIGN SOCIALISTS QUIT MOSCOW FOR RIGA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 19.—Emile Vandervelde and the other foreign lawyers who came to Moscow for the trial of the Social Revolutionaries left the city tonight for Riga. There was no demonstration. The Socialist lawyers were told that they might make a statement for the press, but contented themselves with saying: "We are going because the trial is being conducted under impossible conditions, and we prefer to say nothing until we are outside of Soviet territory."

From what foreign observers saw, the foreigners enjoyed a license at this trial which they would not have enjoyed in similar circumstances—for it is a case of high treason which is practically admitted by the accused—in any other country.

The whole case is political. What is really at stake is not the lives of the accused, but the claim of the Social Revolutionary Party to rank in Russia on a par with the Communists. Moscow will have a half holiday tomorrow to demonstrate against the Social Revolutionaries. From the American point of view such a demonstration while the trial is going on is utterly unfair. To Americans also the claim of the Communists to be the only recognized party in the Russian State is absolutely indefensible. But Russia is not America, and the Communists say they have had to fight the Social Revolutionaries no less than they fought the followers of Kerensky, the Cossacks, the Czarists. The leaders of the Social Revolutionary Party now being judged are not in the position of democrats versus republicans, but of the American royalist tories in the Revolutionary War versus Washington and his victorious republicans.

DRUG VENDORS SENTENCED.

Restaurant Man and Employe Get Three-Year Terms in Penitentiary.

Maximum sentences of three years' imprisonment in the penitentiary were imposed yesterday in Special Sessions on Charles H. Miller, proprietor of a restaurant at 8 South Street, and Thomas A. Dawson, one of his employes, on a charge of having narcotics in their possession. Miller pleaded guilty, and Dawson was convicted after a trial, during which he denied that he was connected in any way with an international drug ring of which the police asserted Miller was one of the leading local agents.

Assistant District Attorney Lincoln told the Court they arrested both men on information furnished by Paul Larsen, one of seven men recently sentenced to the penitentiary when $50,000 worth of smuggled drugs, said to have been brought here from Germany, were found in their possession.

MAJOR J. A. BENSEL OF 125TH ENGINEERS DIES

Ex-State Engineer Had Directed Many Big Municipal Engineering Projects.

Major John A. Bensel, who commanded the 125th Battalion of Engineers in the war, and for many years had done important engineering work for the city and State, died yesterday morning at his home in Bernardsville, N. J., of myelitis, after an illness of several months. His offices as a consulting engineer were at 111 Broadway, and since 1919 he had been a member of the board of consulting experts for the New York and New Jersey vehicular tunnel.

Born in this city in 1863, he graduated from Stevens Institute in 1884, and gained a practical knowledge of his profession as rodman for the New York Aqueduct and the Pennsylvania Railroad. After several years as assistant engineer for docks and terminals of that railroad and later with the New York Dock Department, he spent six years, from 1889 to 1895, in charge of construction on the North River waterfront. His able conduct of these undertakings led to his appointment as chief engineer and Commissioner of the Dock Department, and in 1911 as State Engineer.

More recently he had been consulted on several occasions on municipal engineering projects. Services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at All Souls' Church, Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street.

An accounting in the estate of Jacob Wertheim filed yesterday stated that he left $8,895,478, of which $8,061,416 was in securities. He had $107,655 in personal effects and $933,831 in cash. The executors made a profit of $1,116,402 on the sale of securities, and collected $601,098 in dividends. Among the debts paid were $500,000 to the Guaranty Trust Company on a note, $9,150 to Tiffany & Co., for a jade necklace, $25,000 to physicians for services, and $75,000 to Bertha W. Schloss, a relative.

The executors have paid $16,000 to the United Building Fund of the Federation of Jewish Institutions to complete his pledge, and a Federal inheritance tax of $815,841. A trust fund of $1,184,086 has been established for the widow, Mrs. Emma Stern Wertheim, of 152 West Fifty-eighth Street, and $110,000 for each of the five children.

LENIN QUITS HIS BED.

Doctors Report Him Better—Moscow Denies Directorate Rumors.

MOSCOW, June 19 (Associated Press).—Premier Lenin's condition is given in a bulletin signed by the German doctor, Felix Klemperer, and other physicians, under date of June 18, as follows:

"The symptoms affecting the stomach and bowel tract, which continued for ten days, have for the present moment disappeared. All the internal organs are in complete order. Temperature and pulse are normal. The symptoms of disorder in the blood circulation have smoothed down. The patient has left his bed and feels well, but is impatient over the orders of the doctors, who have prescribed inactivity."

LONDON, June 19.—The Russian trade delegation has made public an official telegram dated Moscow, Sunday, declaring that the rumors of the appointment of a directorate owing to Nikola Lenin's indisposition are absolutely groundless.

WOUNDED PRELATE SINKING.

Archbishop Aragone's Surgeons Have Fears of Peritonitis.

MONTEVIDEO, June 19.—The condition of Archbishop Juan Francisco Aragone, who was shot while celebrating mass in the cathedral here yesterday, was reported as becoming worse this morning. Surgeons on extracting the bullet found that the intestines had been perforated, and peritonitis is feared.

The prelate was attacked by Benigno Hermos Salazar, a 20-year-old Spaniard who resided a short time from Buenos Aires. After firing five shots from a revolver Salazar pursued his victim to the sacristy, where he was overpowered by members of the congregation.

DIPLOMAT FOR 37 YEARS

Born in Connecticut 88 Years Ago and Was for Some Time on The Hartford Courant.

Frederic Courtland Penfield former Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, died just after 10 o'clock last night at his home, 787 Fifth Avenue. His death will come as a shock because, after having once despaired of his life, the physicians who were attending him for congestion of the brain believed several days ago that their patient had rallied to such an extent his recovery might be expected. He was born in Haddam, Conn., and was 67 year old.

Mr. Penfield's wife, who was Mrs. Anne Weightman Walker of Philadelphia; several other members of the family and Dr. E. Douglas Rudderow of 26 East Sixtieth Street were at his bedside when the end came.

The fatal illness seized Mr. Penfield on June 6 at the Waldorf at a dinner of the Council of New York University, at which he was the guest of Chancellor Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown. He had returned a month before from the south of France, where he and Mrs. Penfield had been spending their Winters. He seemed in excellent health when he appeared at the dinner, but toward its close he fainted and was carried from the room. Commenting afterward on the sudden seizure of his friend and associate who had been honored by the university with the degree of Doctor of Laws, Dr. Brown said that Mr. Penfield had been "desperately overworked" in the closing days at his last foreign post.

Sent to Austria in 1913.

He had been sent to the Dual Monarchy by President Wilson in 1913, and remained there until diplomatic relations were severed on this country's entrance into the war. Those last days of winding up the affairs of the embassy and putting them into friendly hands were strenuous. Moreover, for three years, up until the moment of his departure from Vienna, Mr. Penfield had assumed the burden of the diplomatic interests of Great Britain, France, Rumania, Italy and Japan.

Though he was perhaps best known for his diplomatic services, Mr. Penfield had well earned the titles of author, traveler and journalist. It was to the last-mentioned field that he devoted his earlier years, and he was a trained journalist when he joined the editorial staff of The Hartford Courant. But it soon became apparent that he was gifted as a diplomatist.

In that field he began in 1885 as Vice Consul General at London. Among other posts he held were those of Diplomatic Agent and Consul General to Egypt with the rank of Minister Resident, to which he was appointed in 1895, and the Austrian mission, the post which he undertook, at the request of President Wilson in 1913. It was as President Wilson's special representative that he attended the funeral of the Emperor Francis Joseph.

Known as Traveler and Writer.

In the intervals of his diplomatic work he traveled widely in Africa, India, China and Japan. Having undertaken special studies in England and Germany after preparing at Russell's Military School in New Haven and graduating from Princeton, Mr. Penfield, what with his personal visits to many lands and his official sojourns in others achieved a wide knowledge of world relations and it was to economic subjects of international character that he devoted much of the work of his pen.

He was a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London, 1886, and an officer of the French Academy, 1898, when he was awarded the decoration of "Palmes Academiques" by the French Government. The Sultan of Turkey awarded him the Grand Cross of the Order of Medjihieh, and the Khedive of Egypt, in 1897, made him Grand Commander in the Order of Osmanieh. Mr. Penfield also received the Cross of the Legion of Honor in 1904, in recognition of his prominence in discussing the relative merits of canal routes, leading to the American Government purchasing from a French company all the rights at Panama.

Recipient of Many Degrees.

Pope Pius X. in 1911 honored Mr. Penfield with the Grand Cross of St. Gregory. He was the first American to receive the highest class of this order.

Born in Connecticut on April 23, 1855, Mr. Penfield was graduated from Princeton, with the degree of A. M. He received the degree of LL. D. at Hobart College in 1914, at New York University in 1917, and the University of Pennsylvania in 1917, also the degree of LL. D. at the Catholic University of America in 1915.

He was a member of the Century Club, the Princeton Club and the National Democratic Club. He also belonged to the Authors' Club, the New York Yacht Club, the Sleepy Hollow Country Club of New York and the Metropolitan Club of Washington.

In 1892 Mr. Penfield married Katharine Albert McMurdo, a daughter of Albert Wells. Mrs. Penfield died in 1906. His second marriage, in 1908, was to Mrs. Anne Weightman Walker of Philadelphia, reputed to be one of the wealthiest women in the world.

Funeral arrangements will be announced today.

REV. DR. JAMES B. NIES, ORIENTALIST, DEAD

The Rev. Dr. James Buchanan Nies, Protestant Episcopal clergyman and Orientalist, is dead in Jerusalem, according to a cable dispatch received yesterday by his brother, Dr. Frederick Nies, with whom he had made his home at 12 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. Dr. James B. Nies had gone to Jerusalem in March to superintend the erection of the American school building, to which he gave $50,000, a memorial to his wife, a daughter of the late Alexander E. Orr, financier.

Dr. Nies was 66 years old. He was rector of Christ Chapel in Brooklyn from 1897 to 1903, and of the Church of the Epiphany there for the ensuing five years. Since 1903 he had devoted himself chiefly to Oriental travel and research.

Vast Throng Mourns Jewish Actor.

At the services in the Thomashefsky Theatre on Second Avenue yesterday afternoon for Lazar Zuckerman, the Jewish actor, the crowd became so great that police reserves from two precincts were called, and Second Avenue from East Houston Street to Second Street was closed to traffic. Representatives from Jewish social, philanthropic and theatrical societies attended the funeral, which was under the auspices of the Hebrew Actors' Club. Burial was in the family plot in Washington Cemetery.

LEARY THE JUSTICE WHO AIDED ARTIST

PRIZE CROWNED HARD WORK

Justice Timothy A. Leary of the Sixth District Municipal Court of Manhattan was the man to whom Alfred Ploegel, winner of this year's fellowship in painting of the American Academy in Rome, referred on Sunday night when he said he owed a debt of gratitude to the magistrate who had kept him from being evicted from his attic room in an east side tenement house.

The case first came up for a hearing on April 21, 1922. Neighborhood friends of the young artist applied to Judge Leary then to prevent his eviction while waiting to hear from the judges in the prize contest. The case was carried over until June 2, when it was discontinued on a motion from the Realty Corporation which constituted the plaintiff. Ploegel said that he did not remember the name of the judge but described him as "tall and stout, with light reddish hair, clean-cut features and a sincere look." The description fits Judge Leary and the court records show that the case was heard before him.

While Mr. Ploegel was working for a church decorating company last summer he determined to try for the fellowship and to spend the school year studying under the instructors of the National Academy of Design, the institution chosen by the American Academy in Rome for holding the competition. The rules of the contest and the careful criticism of the jury judging the competition called for a longer time than Mr. Ploegel had contemplated and forced him into straightened circumstances. It would have been necessary for him to stop his work for the fellowship and go back into the church decorating business, he said, if the magistrate had permitted his landlord to raise the rent.

Under the rules Ploegel, like other candidates for the fellowship, first submitted with his application "some original drawings from the nude, designs and sketches of a decorative character, drawings of ornaments and projects of decoration or photographs thereof indicating his general ability, together with an explanatory personal letter."

Then a drawing and a painting from life were executed, a problem in linear perspective, a problem of anatomy and a composition treated as a decorative detail in a specified number of hours and sittings.

For the final competition "composition in color" was submitted. In Ploegel's picture, "The Inspiration of Music," there are eleven figures, each of which he drew separately from a model. He describes his picture as follows: "The central figure is the Muse of Music, who has selected and inspired one man. The man, having received help from the Diety, gives homage to her by bringing before her throne every human emotion. Pathos, mirth, ambition, love, devotion—all come to do her honor. Even the world pauses in its busy round to lay its power at the feet of Music."

WON'T FIGHT EXTRADITION.

Californian Held as Fugitive Willing to Return to Family.

William B. Cheesbourg of Taft, Cal., who is in a cell in the Jefferson Market Court awaiting a hearing tomorrow relative to extradition to California for grand larceny and abandonment, said yesterday he would return without a fight. Cheesbourg, whose wife is suing for divorce, said he was willing to go back to her and their two little children but wanted the alleged grand larceny charge aired in court.

Cheesbourg, taken from the departing steamer Majestic down the bay last Saturday, denied he had told reporters on Sunday that he had appealed to Frederick A. Muschenheim, President of the Hotel Astor, for aid. Cheesbourg claimed he merely said that he was acquainted with a director of the hotel and believed his friend might mention his plight to Mr. Muschenheim.

Cheesbourg did not fully understand the grand larceny charge, he said. He believed it was brought by his wife's relatives.

John H. Towne Predicts That It Will Be Adopted in All Cities.

The city joined with the Fifth Avenue Association yesterday in celebrating the breaking of ground for the first of the bronze traffic towers in Fifth Avenue. There was a lunch at the Hotel Biltmore after which the guests formed in double file and marched under police escort to Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street. There they watched Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and Robert Grier Cooke, President of the Fifth Avenue Association, tear up a section of the asphalt at the base of the present traffic tower. Each wielded a compressed air "pick." The ceremony was brief and informal and traffic was halted only a short time.

Mr. Cooke presided at the lunch and the speakers were Commissioner Whalen and John H. Towne, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Association. The association praised the city Administration and the city returned the compliment. Commissioner Whalen said that the towers had solved the traffic problem on the avenues. With towers to direct traffic, he said, the movement of vehicles was twice as fast as it had been without them. Mr. Towne said the towers marked a milestone in the history of this city and he predicted that they would be adopted in all the large cities of the world.

There will be seven of the new towers. They will be placed at Fourteenth, Twenty-sixth, Thirty-fourth, Thirty-eighth, Forty-second, Fiftieth and Fifty-seventh Streets, extending the system of traffic control from Washington Square to Sixtieth Street. They will be of bronze, twenty-three feet high, each provided with a single lens equipped with a changeable reflector. Electrically synchronized clocks will be placed in the north and south faces of each tower. The superstructures will rest on a granite base. The towers will be in safety aisles. They were designed by Joseph H. Freelander, an architect, and the design has been approved by the Municipal Art Commission. The towers have been presented to the city by the Fifth Avenue Association and were accepted by the Board of Estimate on May 18.

The original towers, of which there are five, were presented to the city by Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Harriss. They were put into use in March, 1920.

Seeks to Bring Morse Here.

John B. Joyce, head of the criminal division of the United States Attorney Hayward's office, will appear today in proceedings in Portland, Me., for the removal of Charles W. Morse to this district, where he is wanted to plead to an indictment charging him, his sons and several others with using the mails to defraud investors in the stock of the United States Steamship Company. The indictment was filed on April 17, but Morse has kept without the jurisdiction of the Southern District of New York.

WRECKS FROM 'FLAPPERITIS'

Physician Blames Parents for Its Effects on Health of Youth.

CHICAGO, June 19.—"Flapperitis" is bringing about insufficient sleep and under-nourishment and making physical wrecks among the young of the modern city, according to Dr. Clarence Bartlett, President of the Pennsylvania State Homeopathic Society. In an address which he delivered today before the American Institute of Homeopathy Convention, not only were the habits of the flappers assailed, but the methods of enforcement of the Volstead act were characterized as "officialdom gone mad."

"On all sides we hear comments of the precocity of the youth of the present day," he said.

"Their flaunting of authority, their hours, their general habits as to hygiene are all made subjects of comment. And we blame them for it. Really it is the parents who are to blame."

Prohibition, he said, was a great thing from a health point of view, but the methods of enforcement as applied to medical practice, he declared, were deserving of criticism, because they are "utterly oblivious to all medical and therapeutic principles."

LABOR VOTES DOWN FREE IMMIGRATION

RETAIL SALES TAX OPPOSED

Continued Efforts to Bring About an Alliance With Farm Bodies Are Favored.

RIVAL FOR MORRISON OUT

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—An attempt to put the American Federation of Labor on record for unrestricted immigration was overwhelmingly defeated today in the annual convention.

The delegates instructed the Executive Council to watch the immigration situation and take any action necessary to protect American labor from cheap foreign labor.

The convention also voted to oppose passage by Congress of a sales tax. Another important action was to instruct the Executive Council to take further steps to bring about an alliance between labor and the farm organizations of the country. An educational campaign was authorized to offset anti-labor propaganda, which, it was stated, was being used to "drive a wedge between labor and the farmers."

Jewish delegates led the fight to reverse the position of labor on the immigration question. Contending that thousands of workers in Europe, now starving, should have the opportunity to come to America to earn a living. They contended that the admission of skilled workers would have the effect of minimizing the labor competition of Europeans countries by creating a labor shortage abroad.

Supporters of restricted immigration, which has been advocated consistently by the Federation since 1892, declared that the employing interests of the country desired unrestricted immigration in order to force further wage reductions and "crush organized labor."

Max Amdur of Philadelphia, delegate of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, spoke first on the subject, and moved that the convention go on record for unrestricted immigration.

"Great misery accrues from keeping immigrants out of America," said A. B. Greenstein of New York, delegate of the Jewelry Workers' Union, supporting the motion.

Charles L. Bayne, Secretary of the United Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, led the fight against the motion.

"What avail would it be for the workers of the country to bring unrestricted immigration about and intensify the conditions of unemployment?" asked Mr. Bayne. "We must prevent the manufacturers from using immigration to defeat us. Charity must begin at home. We must act for the best interest of our own workers."

Pointing out that there were 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 unemployed in this country, Henry F. Hilfers of Essex Trades Council of Newark declared that labor "must not let down the bars of immigration."

After the motion was voted down the convention complimented the federation officials for their efforts in keeping coolie labor out of Hawaii and adopted a declaration calling upon Congress to put a ban on Oriental immigration.

For Alliance with Farmer.

In connection with the resolution for continuance of efforts to form an alliance with the farm organizations it was stated that during the year many conferences had been held by officials of the Federation with representatives of the farm organizations.

The declaration pointed out that labor had been supporting many bills in the interest of the farmers.

Government officials have promised early release of political prisoners, still incarcerated in prison, provided no "noisy demonstrations" are made, Miss Lucy Robbins of New York, executive secretary of the committee for the freedom of "political prisoners," reported to the convention. She did not identify the Government officials and gave no specific date for the release of the prisoners.

Full moral and financial support was voted by the convention to the striking textile workers of New England.

To striking union printers, seeking to enforce the forty-four-hour working week in the industry, was also voted support by the convention, which denounced the "dishonorable, unwarranted and destructive attitude and action manifested by the printing trades employers and their associations in treating contracts entered into as mere scraps of paper."

Max Hayes of Cleveland, delegate of the Typographical Union, denounced the employers' associations as combinations in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Michael Tighe, President of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, appealed for support of the strike that his organization is waging against the Newport Rolling Mills. The convention voted to stage a mass meeting in Newport, which is across the river from Cincinnati, on Wednesday evening when President Gompers, John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers; Matthew Woll, Vice President of the Federation, and Daniel Tobin, President of the Teamsters' Union, will speak.

For Ohio Compensation Law.

In an address on workmen's compensation, Thomas J. Duffy, Chairman of the Ohio Industrial Commission and Democratic Gubernatorial candidate, told the convention that a $30,000 a year job had been offered him if he would quit the fight to preserve the Ohio compensation law.

The convention adopted a resolution calling upon organized labor in every State to start a campaign to have their own State adopt a law similar to that in Ohio.

Other resolutions adopted called for an increase of the rate of interest on postal savings deposits to at least 3 per cent. and instructed the Executive Council to oppose the Elkins bill, providing for refunding all fines levied on convicted violators of the Food Control act or Lever act.

Berks Morrison's Place.

While the delegates were in session there was a development in the political situation. This was the announcement that a movement has been started in behalf of William P. Clarke, of Toledo, President of the American Flint Glass Workers, to elect him to the secretaryship of the federation, which has been held 26 years by Frank Morrison, member of the Typographical Union.

Clarke, who has been a member of the Flint Glassworkers sixteen years is the man who was credited with having brought about the re-election of President Gompers by forcible speech, seconding his nomination at the Denver convention last year.

The radical element in the convention, which appears leaderless, is preparing to attempt a showing the latter part of the week. They will probably select the question of recognizing the Russian Soviet Government. William Z. Foster, leader of the steel strike of 1919, will address a mass meeting here Thursday night.

Plan for Coronado Litigation.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—A development outside the federation convention was the meeting tonight of the Special Policy Committee with lawyers, called here from various parts of the country to guide the committee in drafting a program for combating the Supreme Court's recent decision in the Coronado coal case, which held labor unions liable to damage under the Sherman anti-trust law.

While committee members indicated an intention to favor a report proposing a Constitutional amendment, permitting a Congressional veto of court decisions, the discussion with the lawyers was understood to have centred on what more speedy action, if any, might be proposed for offsetting decisions opposed by organized labor.

Indorsement of the work of two Congressmen was voted by the convention. President Gompers was directed to write a letter to Representative Nolan of California, expressing appreciation of his work in behalf of organized labor. Representative Frear, of Wisconsin, it was said, had given "immeasureable service" to labor's fight on the sales tax.

Administration of the Federal budget law was brought before the convention by committee report, asserting that the "budget administrators have prostituted the high purpose of the budget system by using it for political propaganda." The committee declared in favor of "a reduction in the budget system," and its report was adopted with the provision, instructing the Executive Council to use every "effort to correct glaring administrative defects which are operating to the disadvantage of the present budget system." Special complaint was made by the committee that administrators of the budget had been overzealous in reducing expenditures of the Department of Labor.

Didn't Discover Gold, But They Found Whisky

The sudden rush of a crowd down Main Street, Flushing, in the direction of Broadway yesterday, followed a rumor, which spread rapidly, that gold had been discovered by workmen excavating on the site of the old Flushing Hotel. When several hundred persons had surrounded the excavation they learned that no gold had been found, but that something considered by many as just as good, if not better, had been unearthed.

A workman, in shoveling debris out of a corner of the old cellar, had uncovered a dozen bottles containing good whisky, of a brand popular in pre-prohibition days. This news increased the size of the crowd, but the whisky soon mysteriously disappeared. It was reported that some of the workmen quit early. The whisky evidently was part of the stock of the old hotel.

GOV. SMALL TO OFFER NO EVIDENCE IN TRIAL

WAUKEGAN, Ill., June 19 (Associated Press).—Governor Len Small, charged with conspiracy to defraud the State of interest on public funds while he was State Treasurer, may know his fate within a week or ten days.

Taking Court, jury, lawyers and spectators by surprise, C. C. Le Forge, chief counsel for the Governor, said today after the prosecution closed that the Governor would offer no evidence, and would stand on the evidence produced by the prosecution.

Mr. Le Forge offered a motion to strike out all or part of the State's evidence, and told Judge Edwards that he soon as the arguments on the motion were completed and two documents were identified, the defense would rest. Final arguments may start tomorrow.

KLAN THREAT TO DRY CHIEF.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—A letter to State Prohibition Director John T. Davis, which stated that unless he gives up his position within the next ten days he will be "tarred and feathered" and signed "Ku Klux Klan," caused no little commotion today in the office of the director.

Dr. Davis remained in the office all day, calmly attending to his duties.

"I do not know anything about it," he said. "This is the third letter of its kind I have received since I have been in office. One was unsigned and the second was supposed to have come from the Black Hand. I paid no attention to the other two and I don't intend to think anything about this one, but if they come I am ready for them."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 19.—William S. Coburn, former Grand Goblin of the Ku Klux Klan, under indictment in connection with the Inglewood raid, walked quietly out of the courtroom today while his bond was being fixed at $5,000. He is being sought by the Sheriff. When Coburn departed the Sheriff thought he was in custody of a deputy. Later a check disclosed that he was alone.

PHOENIX, Ariz., June 19.—Two indictments returned by a special Grand Jury investigating activities here of the Ku Klux Klan jointly charged Tom S. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers; Matthew Woll, Vice President of the Federation, and Daniel Tobin, President of the Teamsters' Union, will speak.

MEXICO'S POPULATION LESS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The ills to which Mexico fell heir as the result of nearly a decade of revolution have caused a decrease of approximately 1,273,000 in the population of that country since 1910. The population at the end of 1921 was 13,867,000, according to figures made public today at the Mexican Embassy, compared with 15,180,559 in 1910.

Four reasons for the decline in the figures were given by the Embassy. These were that the statistical data for the 1921 census is not altogether complete, internal warfare, the ravages caused by influenza in 1918 and 1919, as well as by yellow fever and bubonic plague in 1920-21, and the considerable emigration of Mexicans to Central America and the United States during the recent years of unrest.

CHURCHES URGE END OF THE COAL STRIKE

MORE MINES ARE REOPENING

Kansas Company Resumes Operations With Union Men to Aid Workers, Says Official.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—President Harding was asked today to take steps to end the coal strike in a joint appeal presented to him by the Commission on the Church and Social Service of the Federal Council of Churches with which are affiliated thirty great Protestant communions; the Department of Social Action of the National Catholic Welfare Council and the Social Justice Commission of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. This is the first time, as far as is known, that these representative organizations of Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews have taken joint action in an industrial matter. The churches, in their appeal, asked the President to "call a national coal conference; to get the facts of the coal industry through a Government investigation; not to wait until the suffering of the women and children of the mining camps has become a national calamity, and to end the coal strike now."

The statement expresses gratification that the press, as a whole, has been successful in recording the facts in the strike and, after reviewing previous efforts to effect a settlement, proceeds:

"It is a matter of profound satisfaction that the strike has been remarkably orderly. We have also been gratified to note that the press has made an unusually successful effort to record the facts of this conflict. Nevertheless, nothing effectual has been done to bring it to an end.

"In spite of the desire of the Government to avoid interference in the controversy, it has become necessary for the Secretary of Commerce to request the operators in the non-union fields, and the retailers, not to take undue advantage of the situation by excessively increasing the price of coal. This action, manifestly necessary under the circumstances, nevertheless serves to show the helplessness of the nation and the increasing danger to the public in the face of so great an industrial struggle.

Deplores Sectional Strife.

"We therefore are impelled to urge once more that the Government take steps to end the coal strike by bringing the operators and miners into conference. Since the failure of early attempts at securing a conference according to precedent in the Central Competitive Field, and the consequent suspension of mining in the union fields, unprecedented importance has been given to those fields in which the miners have not joined the strike, and where operators and miners are now working full time and profiting by the advantage because of the strike in the union mines. This setting of one section of the industry and of one portion of the country over against another, makes for instability, insecurity, discontent and bitterness.

"For this reason we urge that unless the operators and miners in the Central Competitive Field can even yet be induced to meet the miners in joint conference in accord with precedent, a national conference be called by the Government sufficiently representative of all the bituminous coal fields to set standards and secure stability and prosperity for the entire industry. We believe that through frank and open discussion the way will be found to restore health and stability to the industry. Without conference, undertaken in mutual good faith, no lasting peace can be attained.

"We would respectfully call your attention again to the necessity of securing adequate information concerning the essential facts of the coal industry, in particular the absence of authoritative information concerning the cost of production and profits has served to increase discontent among the mine workers.

"In the anthracite fields, where conferences are still in progress, the lack of full information regarding the financial facts of the industry may cause the failure of all attempts to negotiate a new agreement. The consumers resent high prices for coal but are unable to form an intelligent judgment as to the causes, on account of the lack of authoritative information.

"We urge, therefore, that if it is not feasible to restore to the Federal Trade Commission the authority which it formerly exercised, the Administration recommend Congressional action creating an authoritative body which shall have power to secure and make public all the essential facts of the industry. Any settlement of the present strike, no matter how just, is reached by force or temporary force unless it is accompanied by provision for full knowledge and publicity concerning the facts upon which a satisfactory organization of the industry must be based.

"You, Mr. President, succeeded in bringing the nations together in conference to reduce armaments and the indictments to war. We respectfully urge that a national coal conference and a Federal investigation of the coal industry would have far-reaching consequences in promoting domestic tranquility and abridging the causes of industrial strife.

"The Commission on the Church and Social Service of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Resume Work to Aid Men.

PITTSBURG, Kan., June 19.—J. R. Crowe Coal and Mining Company opened its No. 14 at Croweburg today. Thirty-one men went down into the mine. The scale accepted by the men who went to work is $4 a day for the day work, and 50 cents a ton for diggers.

All of the mines of the Sheridan Company were reported at work this morning on the co-operative plan.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 19.—H. D. Buchanan, Vice President of the J. R. Crowe Coal and Mining Company, today said that destitution among the miners caused the company to open the mine at Croweburg.

"We are working with the same union men and with the same union pit committee which was on the job prior to April 1," Mr. Buchanan said. "We opened the mine because our men have been out of work so long and so frequently that they are desperately in need of work to support their families. Their leaders are not able to get any relief for them."

TOPEKA, Kan., June 19.—Approximately 1,500 miners have gone back to work in the Kansas coal fields, according to reports received by Governor Allen today. Governor Allen said this insures the State against any shortage of coal for threshing. Six Kansas coal companies today notified the Governor that they can supply sufficient coal to meet the threshing demand.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 19.—A slight increase in coal production in the Northern West Virginia fields was registered last week, according to railroad loading figures issued today. Comparative figures showed that last week's production totalled 127,400 tons, the previous week 121,100 tons and the week of June 3 102,650 tons.

MARION, Ill., June 19.—The Southern Illinois Coal Company will remove all arms from its watchmen at its strip mine near here, which began mining coal last week, the first to begin operations in Illinois since the miners' strike became effective on April 1.

Harding Picks Howell as Envoy to Egypt; Ohioan, Consul General, Named Minister

WASHINGTON, June 19.—J. Morton Howell, of Ohio, was nominated today by President Harding to be the first American minister to Egypt.

Dr. Howell is the present diplomatic agent and consul general for this government in Egypt, having been named to the post about ten month ago by President Harding. He has been a practicing physician and for many years a close personal friend of the President and Senator Willis, of Ohio, who recommended his appointment. Dr. Howell's home is in Dayton.

The appointment grows out of the change in the form of the Egyptian Government, which, after having been for many years a dependency of Turkey and afterwards of Great Britain under the guise of a protectorate, was on February 28 last formally recognized by the British Government as an independent State, subject only to certain limitations respecting the safeguarding of the Sues Canal and other special British interests.

The new Egyptian Government has been engrossed principally with the installation of the internal machinery and only recently has been in a position to undertake to relieve the British of the conduct of the external relations of the country. Notice of the voluntary termination by Great Britain of its control over Egypt and of the accession of the Egyptian king in the person of Fuad I. has been served upon the State Department.

The Department in turn immediately took the necessary steps to ensure a proper diplomatic representation of America at the new court and it was upon its application that Congress in the new diplomatic and consular appropriation bill made provision for a minister resident to replace the agent and consul-general who has been the American diplomatic representative in the country for many years.

EXPECTS TO REPLACE ALL VITAL ORGANS

Dr. Voronoff Announces Startling Discovery in Substitutions From Chimpanzees.

FIRST TESTS SUCCESSFUL

Surgeon Has Operated on Americans and Has a Long Waiting List.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, June 19.—Dr. Serge Voronoff's monkey gland experiments have led to the startling discovery that apparently it is possible to transplant all the vital organs of a chimpanzee to human beings.

"Already I am using four different glands from every chimpanzee received from Africa, notably thyroid glands for weak-minded children and interstitial glands for the rejuvenation of the aged," said Dr. Voronoff. "All chimpanzee glands which I have transplanted have trived so well in the human body that I have tried lesser organs, which also are thriving well. I am experimenting now on major organs and I expect to announce soon that a man may have any new organ.

"The chimpanzee is the only species of the monkey that can be used, it being wonderfully like a human being. The brains are identical and the bloods are indistinguishable. Chimpanzees are now costing $500 each."

Dr. Voronoff himself bears the entire cost of the rejuvenation operations, since he inherited more than $5,000,000 from the estate of his wife, who was Fanny Bostwick, the daughter of Jabez Bostwick of New York.

He refuses to discuss the success of his rejuvenation operations, intending to make a full report and to exhibit scores of patients before the annual meeting of the French Surgical Society in October. However, The Tribune learns that many of his operations are considered successful.

"I do not pretend to transform the aged into youths," said the doctor, "but I can push back a man's age twenty or thirty years, making his faculties more vigorous. I have been operating continuously on humans since October, 1919, and on quite a large scale for a longer period. The full effect of an operation is felt only after three years.

"I have performed several operations weekly, including those on Americans, Italians, Frenchmen, Englishmen, Russians and Turks."

He refused to give the names of several Chicagoans on whom he had operated.

"It is stupid that many American and English surgeons insist that my method is a failure. It continues. I have not made a report to any society since I began my operations. I will give a complete report in October."

Dr. Voronoff told The Tribune that only the scarcity of chimpanzees has prevented him from performing daily operations in his Paris laboratory, as he has a long waiting list. He is using chimpanzees faster than they can be caught in Africa.

"I have not made a cent on these operations," he said, "though they are expensive. I do not intend to reveal the exact method before there are assurances that dishonest surgeons will not reap great profits from the discovery."

The doctor will send copies of his reports to American and British surgical societies in October.

Homeopaths Invite Lespinasse to Explain Gland Operation.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Dr. Roy Upham of Brooklyn, President of the American Institute of Homeopathy, which is holding its convention here, announced today that an invitation had been issued to Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, the noted gland expert, to appear before the convention and discuss the operation which he was reported to have performed a few days ago on Harold F. McCormick, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the International Harvester Company.

He said that the homeopaths were anxious to hear details of it because of its apparent success.

HOLD EX-BROKER IN FRAUD.

Philadelphia Man Charges Prisoner With $12,000 Swindle.

Milton Helm, 30 years old, formerly a broker, was released in $5,000 bail for a hearing on Friday when arraigned yesterday before Magistrate William A. Sweetser in Tombs Court as a fugitive from Philadelphia.

Helm, who gave his address as 464 Riverside Drive, was arrested on Saturday at the request of Lewis G. Wilcox of Philadelphia, who said that the prisoner obtained his savings, amounting to $12,000, through a fraudulent stock transaction. Helm had an office in Philadelphia and another in this city.

NYACK, June 19.—John De Tiere, a prisoner in the Matteawan State Asylum for Criminal Insane in Beacon, made his twenty-sixth excursion to court on a writ of habeas corpus today in an effort to be legally set free. He was ordered to return to the asylum by Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, who promised to consider his application. De Tiere is 60 years old. He was arrested for shooting and killing his brother in Albany, but never was tried because adjudged insane.

FIND SUN PRODUCES THE 4TH VITAMINE

NO CHANGE OF DIET NEEDED

While the study of rickets at Johns Hopkins University has resulted in the discovery reported yesterday of a fourth type of vitamin (Vitamin D), the study of rickets at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University has indicated that sunlight may produce vitamins directly in the human blood.

The experiments at the College of Physicians and Surgeons indicated that the frequent exposure of the skin of a child to the direct rays of the sun cured rickets without any change of diet. Copious use of cod liver oil also cured rickets.

Cod liver oil is the richest of substances in the mysterious unidentified objects called vitamins, and its vitamins have commonly been supposed to be the agent which cures the rickets. Sunlight, however, according to the New York experiments, does exactly what cod liver oil does. No definite claim has been made as to the manner in which the sunlight acts, whether it produces new vitamins or increases the activity of those already in existence in the patient or operates in some other way, but X-ray photographs and blood analyses are said to corroborate fully the assertion that the sunlight produces direct chemical changes in the blood, restoring the impaired bones steadily until a complete cure is effected.

The effects of sunlight in the cure of rickety children has been confirmed, according to medical reports by Dr. Alfred F. Hess of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, by experiments on animals. Numbers of rats have been fed on diets which produce rickets. The disease has inevitably appeared in those kept in darkness. It has been invariably prevented in those regularly kept in the sun.

The blood analysis of patients has again confirmed the mysterious effect of sunlight on the blood. Rickets results when something goes wrong with the bone-building process in children. The amount of phosphorus in the blood is always found to be below normal in those afflicted by the rickets. Without any change of diet, the sunlight produces from day to day a steady increase in the amount of inorganic phosphorus in the blood. This effect is believed to be due to the penetration of the ultra-violet rays of the sun through the skin and the production by some kind of chemical reaction in the bloodstream.

Two further reasons for considering lack of sunlight as a cause are the greater prevalence of the disease in large cities where smoke or the height of buildings cut off sunlight and the fact that the disease occurs chiefly in Winter, when there is less sunlight.

The treatment of rickety infants involves exposure of their arms and legs and body to the sunlight for regular periods, with the exception that exposure is discouraged if the light passes through glass a large part of the ultra-violet rays may be absorbed. Cod-liver oil or sunlight in sufficient quantities are a perfect cure for rickets, according to Dr. Hess. According to him a teaspoonful of cod liver oil would be sufficient to cure all of the cases of the disease in the City of New York.

The discovery that sunlight has a very active chemical effect on the blood has caused further interest, because of the possibility that the absence of that effect may produce other diseases than rickets and may be a contributing factor to various complaints.

The discovery of a vitamin in meals by the Department of Agriculture reported yesterday is also paralleled, it was learned, by work done at Columbia University in investigating the statements of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, who reported that his experiences in the Arctic proved that fresh meat of any kind whatsoever would prevent or cure scurvy. That fresh vegetables would cure scurvy was well known, but that fresh meat would have any such effect was disputed.

PLAN FRENCH ARMY CUT.

Reduction of Officer Personnel by 11,000 is Being Considered.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—While charges of militarism are being made against France from all sides, the Ministry of War is studying methods to reduce the number of officers remaining in the French army by almost a third.

According to the Echo National, the cut will affect nearly 11,000 officers, reducing the total from 36,000 to 25,000. The reduction will bring the ratio of officers to the rank and file back to the 1914 basis. At the beginning of the war there were 32,480 officers to 883,000 men. Today, with the service of eighteen months in operation, there are but 676,000 soldiers in the French army.

LABOR BOARD DRAFTS ANTI-STRIKE PLEA

Railroad Employes Will Be Urged to Co-operate in Business Recovery.

CLERKS STAND BY UNIONS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Acceptance of the $130,000,000 wage cuts on July 1 will be urged upon railroad workers by the United States Railroad Labor Board in a reply to Sunday's "ultimatum" from the union chiefs at Cincinnati to the effect that if the workers vote for a strike the leaders will sanction it.

The answer of the board, which is being prepared by Chairman Ben W. Hooper, will go into phases of the readjustment period, such as railroad wages and their relation to transportation costs and to industry and production in general. A report is that it may find its text in a paragraph in the wage reduction order dealing with the business revival now in progress and the manner in which transportation dovetails into it. The paragraph reads:

"That the carriers shall have a fair opportunity to profit by the revival of business in order that they may expand their facilities is absolutely indispensable to their efficient service to the American public. This must not be misconstrued to mean that the employes should be called upon to bear the cost of railway rehabilitation. Improved service and reduced rates. It means that every citizen, including railway employes, should bear and forbear until the carriers are back on their feet."

Help in Business Revival.

The argument will be stressed that a strike would not only result in losses to the rail workers and the carriers, but would likewise retard business recovery.

Majority members of the board emphasized a point in the extended reply to the dissenting opinion of the labor members. This was that the "other relevant circumstances" weighed by the board in addition to the seven wage factors specified in the Transportation act were set forth in the decision in 1920 which increased wages 22 per cent. This decision was signed by all the board. The phrase "other relevant circumstances" covers the relation of rail wages to industry and production in general. The argument is that the labor members were for applying it when wages were going up, but are attacking it when wages are coming down.

"The records show," said the majority, "that the dissenting members voted for the adoption of the 1920 decision containing the language in regard to 'relevant circumstances,' and they did not then attempt to exclude it. This, it may be remembered, was a decision increasing wages 22 per cent., and the present minority were then of the majority. It would, therefore, appear that the relevant circumstances mentioned were to be considered by the present dissenting members in relation to wage increases, but not decreases."

Word from Cleveland tonight was that the chiefs of the four big brotherhoods are ready to make an agreement to the "coalition" which rail unions and mine union chiefs are considering at Cincinnati. Warren S. Stone, President of the locomotive engineers, sent word it would be impossible for him to attend "because of important previous engagements." W. S. Carter, of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, replied that he could not attend on account of "pressing business." The big brotherhoods are not affected by the wage reductions.

Rail Clerks With the Unions.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—The 300,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station employes will be called out on strike if they vote to give their officials authority for such action, E. H. Fitzgerald, Grand President of the Union, announced tonight.

The action of the brotherhood stood with the other crafts, and that although it had agreements governing wages on certain roads, these would be abrogated on due notice if the employes voted to participate in a nation-wide rail walkout.

Mr. Fitzgerald said that he had authorized strike votes to be taken immediately on four of the largest railroad systems of the country at the request of the system committees. He declined to name the roads affected.

The statement by President Fitzgerald was issued to set at rest reports that the clerks' union had split with the other railroad crafts on the question of a general strike vote. It had been authoritatively stated that the clerks' union had agreements with a number of railroads providing for the acceptance of any wage cut handed down by the Railroad Labor Board, which would prevent the taking of a general strike vote by them.

These agreements, it was explained by President Fitzgerald, will not have any effect on the strike vote, as they contain thirty abrogation clauses, of which roads in the strike area can avail themselves if the strike vote is decided upon by the employes on the systems covered by the contract.

Reports that his Brotherhood was not going to issue a general strike vote, he said, had brought forth a flood of telegrams from local unions and the membership in general from all parts of the country demanding that a ballot be authorized and taken immediately.

The statement of the Clerks' Brotherhood leaders indicates that all the railroad unions are standing together.

Framing Program with Miners.

Conferences continued here today between John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, and the heads of the railroad unions, with the view of forming a definite program of co-operative strike action by the workers in these two great industries. The program agreed upon will be submitted to a joint conference to be held here tomorrow night, which heads of the "Big Four" brotherhoods have been invited to attend.

The indications are that the miners' chief is exerting every effort to encourage the railroad unions to go through with their strike threat. Such action by the 1,250,000 workers now casting strike ballots, would undoubtedly interrupt coal transportation, it is held, and force Government action.

The unanimity of action by the railroad organizations and the miners' union in preparing for co-operative strike action is being regarded with considerable apprehension by conservative leaders here, as it is said to threaten to break down, sooner or later, the whole framework of craft unionism around which the American labor movement has been built. The industrial unionism which the convention has condemned by overwhelming vote, it is held, is being erected by the railway employes' department of the federation.

The railway department of the federation to all intents and purposes has now become a single industrial union, the Executive Council of which is made up of Presidents of a dozen railroad labor organizations.

CLEVELAND, June 19.—A strike vote of railway clerks and freight handlers employed by the New York Central Railroad has been authorized, it was learned here tonight.

Strike ballots will be sent out tomorrow morning, it was announced by Frank W. Grosser, general organizer of the Brotherhood of railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes.

DETECTIVE AND WIFE ARRESTED AT CONEY

Accuse Two Policemen of Blackjacking Them, but Are Held for Hearing.

INTERFERENCE IS CHARGED

Despite his charge that two policemen who arrested him blackjacked him as well as his wife, Detective Sergeant Christian Wackerly of the Automobile Squad, yesterday was held in $3,000 bail when he and his wife were arraigned before Magistrate Reynolds in the Coney Island Court on a charge of felonious assault made by Bicycle Policeman Eller and Meyers. Mrs. Marion Wackerly, his wife, was paroled by the Magistrate on a disorderly conduct charge made by both policemen, and she and her husband will be arraigned for hearing in the same court on June 23.

The trouble between the detective and the policemen started shortly before dawn when, as Policeman Eller alleged, Detective Sergeant Wackerly interfered with him while he was serving a summons on Charles Beck of 1,838 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, accused of speeding his automobile on Ocean Parkway. Eller said that the detective jumped jumped out of an automobile and told Beck "to step on the gas and beat it."

The policeman added that when he told Wackerly to "mind his own business" the latter pulled out his shield and his pistol. Policeman Meyers said he came along just then and knocked the pistol out of the detective's hand. Wackerly and his wife then were arrested, and as the policemen were taking them to the Sheepshead Bay Station the detective alleged one of the policemen made an insulting reference to his wife and that Eller struck him across the face with a blackjack. Mrs. Wackerly, according to the detective, was knocked down by the blow of a blackjack in the hand of one of the policemen.

Wackerly said that Beck was speeding his automobile to test a speedometer which the detective had placed on his own car. He admitted that he showed his shield to identify himself to the policeman, who is the champion runner and hurdler of the Police Department, but said that his pistol fell out of its holster during the scuffle which preceded his arrest.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The planet Mars, with its two moons and what many scientists believe to be snow-capped mountains and fertile fields of vegetation, hovered about 42,000,000 miles from the earth last night and was the subject of observations by astronomers at the United States Naval Observatory despite heavy clouds and unsatisfactory atmospheric conditions.

No remarkable discoveries were recorded during the inspection of the planet, it was announced today by Observatory officials, but it was recorded that greenish markings and white shadows were clearly discernible. What these shadowy substances might be, Dr. Asaph Hall, who studied the planet intently for several hours during its closest approach to the earth last night, said was a matter of conjecture.

Dr. Hall expressed the opinion that there must be little atmosphere and less heat and light on the distant sphere than on the earth. Under such conditions, he added, inhabitants, if there be any, must of necessity be quite different from inhabitants of this body.

Dr. Hall was inclined to believe that the white shadows or markings discernible, especially when the sun was shining brightly, might possibly be snow or ice and the greenish markings either water or vegetation.

OPEN FIGHT FOR WOMEN.

Miss Younger and Baroness Nugent Would Remove Disabilities.

Miss Maud Younger, National Legislative Chairman of the Woman's Party, and her niece, the Baroness Viginia Nugent, at the Hotel Netherland yesterday afternoon told of the work the party is doing to overcome the disabilities of women before the law. The party believes this movement should naturally follow the granting of suffrage to women. In half of the States, Miss Younger said, women can not serve on juries. There are still States in which husbands can still away their children and dwarfs women do not have equal property rights, she declared.

The Baroness Nugent, who is to sing at a series of drawing-room meetings on Long Island where her aunt is to speak, is pointed out to her audiences as an illustration of the inequalities of women before the law. Her mother, wife of the Baron Laval Nugent of Hungary, who died in 1907, only learned during the war that by her marriage she had lost her American citizenship. To keep American citizenship for American women marrying foreigners is one of the things for which the party is fighting.

Miss Younger is to speak at the houses of Mrs. Samuel T. Peters, Islip; Mrs. J. Watson Webb, Westbury, and Mrs. R. B. Vanderveer, New Gardens. She will also attend an Executive Committee meeting of the Woman's Party at the home of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont at Port Washington on June 22. Then she will make a speaking trip throughout New England, traveling in her own car.

McCALL NOT A CANDIDATE.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 19.—Ex-Governor Samuel W. McCall will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator against Senator Lodge. While in Northampton today, attending a meeting of the Trustees of Smith College, he issued this statement:

"I shall not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. Since I had neither decided upon nor announced my candidacy, this statement may seem superfluous, but I am making it in deference to the opinion of those who think otherwise."

The only Republican now willing to take the contest against Lodge is Joseph Walker, ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives. He said a few months ago:

"If no one else will run against Mr. Lodge, I'll do it myself."

PRINCETON VOTES BIG PENSION FUND

CLASS EXERCISES ARE HELD

New York City Senior Is Among the Six Elected by the Phi Beta Kappa Society.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 19.—A pension and insurance plan for the Princeton University teaching staff was adopted today by the Board of Trustees at their annual meeting, held in connection with the university's 175th commencement exercises. It provides for the raising of a special fund of $1,000,000 not later than 1925, to provide the money that will be required under the Trustees' action.

The plan, which was placed before the Trustees by a special pension committee of which John O. H. Pitney is Chairman, supplements the provisions of the Carnegie Foundation, of which about 90 per cent. of the Faculty are at present beneficiaries.

The trouble between the detective and the policemen started shortly before dawn when, as Policeman Eller alleged, Detective Sergeant Wackerly interfered with him while he was serving a summons on Charles Beck of 1,838 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, accused of speeding his automobile on Ocean Parkway. Eller said that the detective jumped jumped out of an automobile and told Beck "to step on the gas and beat it."

The policeman added that when he told Wackerly to "mind his own business" the latter pulled out his shield and his pistol. Policeman Meyers said he came along just then and knocked the pistol out of the detective's hand. Wackerly and his wife then were arrested, and as the policemen were taking them to the Sheepshead Bay Station the detective alleged one of the policemen made an insulting reference to his wife and that Eller struck him across the face with a blackjack. Mrs. Wackerly, according to the detective, was knocked down by the blow of a blackjack in the hand of one of the policemen.

Wackerly said that Beck was speeding his automobile to test a speedometer which the detective had placed on his own car. He admitted that he showed his shield to identify himself to the policeman, who is the champion runner and hurdler of the Police Department, but said that his pistol fell out of its holster during the scuffle which preceded his arrest.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The planet Mars, with its two moons and what many scientists believe to be snow-capped mountains and fertile fields of vegetation, hovered about 42,000,000 miles from the earth last night and was the subject of observations by astronomers at the United States Naval Observatory despite heavy clouds and unsatisfactory atmospheric conditions.

HUGHES UPHOLDS 'OPEN DIPLOMACY'

PUBLIC SHOULD HAVE FACTS

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 19.—Secretary of States Charles Evans Hughes and Governor Alex J. Grosbeck of Michigan were two of the eleven men honored by the University of Michigan at its commencement exercises today, when they received the degree of Doctor of Laws. Sir Thomas Lewis, a British surgeon, received the degree of Doctor of Science. Others receiving degrees included Clarence Jones Grieves of Baltimore, Doctor of Arts; Charles Hall Grandgent of Boston, Doctor of Letters, and Erwin F. Smith of Washington, Doctor of Laws.

Commencement exercises were featured by the address of Secretary Hughes, who arrived here Sunday and is the guest of Dr. Marion L. Burton, President of the university.

A plea for a "new sense of civic responsibility in matters of international concern" in the United States as the most certain basis of promoting peace in the world was made by Secretary Hughes, who declared in his address that "sound public opinion" was most necessary to support the nation's peaceful diplomatic aims.

"It must frown upon the constant efforts to create suspicion, distrust and hatred," said Mr. Hughes. "There can be no assurance of peace, and few of the necessary and just settlements which make for peace, in a world of hate.

"It should be recognized that what is more necessary than formulas is a new sense of civic responsibility in matters of international concern. The chief enemies of peace are those who constantly indulge in the abuse of foreign peoples and their governments, who defame their motives and visit them with ridicule and insult.

"Intercommunication is so easy that domestic discussions of foreign affairs are not confined within the three-mile limit' but are immediately published abroad as indicative not of the sentiments of particular individuals who may be of little relative consequence, but as indicating sentiments of our people. It is in this way that peoples become separated by mutual distrust, even while their responsible agents of Government are endeavoring to bring about beneficial settlements and mutual confidence.

Tells of Principal Difficulties.

"The principal difficulty at this time in our conduct of foreign affairs is not with methods, or organization, or aims, but with the untruthful, prejudiced and inflammatory discussions in which some of our citizens and certain portions of the press permit themselves to indulge.

"If there is to be less reticence in diplomacy there must be, if not a greater reticence, at least a keener sense of responsibility, in the discussion of international questions. Open diplomacy and blatant and injudicious utterances will not work together. The corrective can only be found in that state of the public mind which will unsparingly condemn and ostracize those who by their baseless imputations imperil our friendly relations with other nations."

American diplomacy, Mr. Hughes said, always had "deemed itself accountable to public opinion and has enjoyed the reputation of being candid and direct." If anything, he added, the American diplomatic organization has rather suffered from "too much regard for politicians and too little attention to the necessity for special aptitude and training."

Mr. Hughes dwelt on the difficulty of developing "true public opinion" on matters of foreign policy aside from certain readily recognized viewpoints approved by generations of statesmen and which only a revolution of opinion could change.

Information the Problem.

"The people cannot judge wisely without being informed, and the problem is how to inform them. In dealing with the problem of developing sound opinion, the fundamental consideration must always be that misinformation is the public's worst enemy, more potent for evil than all the conspiracies that are commonly feared.

"American practice has abundantly confirmed the initiative of the President in the formulation of foreign policy," Mr. Hughes said, adding that "the wisdom of this disposition of power has been fully demonstrated." But the "separateness of the executive power under our system," he said, "deprived the executive of opportunities open to parliamentary leaders of participation in parliamentary debate.

"The Secretary of State," the speaker said, "acting for the President, may negotiate an important treaty, but he has no opportunity to explain or defend it upon the floor of the Senate when its provisions are under debate.

"There are numerous situations in which an opportunity for the Executive through his department chiefs to explain matters of policy would be of greatest aid in securing an intelligent judgment. This is especially true in relation to foreign affairs, where the department concerned has sources of information which generally are not available to others.

"I should not favor a change in the distribution of power or any modification of practice which would encourage the notion that the Executive is responsible to the legislative branch of the Government in matters which under the Constitution are exclusively of Executive concern. I should also deplore any method so contrived as to facilitate antagonism between the Executive Department and legislative leaders, or which would merely provide opportunities for the cansorious.

Believes In Co-operation.

"But, speaking in my private capacity and expressing only a personal opinion, I do believe in multiplying the facilities for appropriate co-operation between responsible leaders who understand the respective functions in a manner suited to the full discussion of great international questions when these fall within the constitutional competency of the Senate.

"To enable Cabinet officers to vote in either house of Congress would require a Constitutional amendment, and I should 'not favor it; but it is quite consistent with our system that the head of a department should have the opportunity personally to be heard where important departmental measures and policies are under consideration."

Mr. Hughes said the importance of contact with the press was fully recognized, and added that the daily press conferences between the Secretaries and newspaper men in the various departments were "our substitutes for parliamentary interpellation."

"It is in this manner," Mr. Hughes said, "that in substance account is rendered to the final authority."

The Secretary pointed out, however, that this press contact in the nature of things was for the most part informal, that news writers desired "to write their own way and to obtain material by their own inquiries.

"What is desired," he said, "is not control of news, but accurate information."

Even under these condition, the Secretary said, "open diplomacy must still be diplomacy, and it cannot be opened at the cost of losing its essential character and of frustrating its proper purposes."

Even Democratic governments must insure to succeed in their negotiations, he said, and "premature disclosures may prevent the accomplishment of the most enlightened aims." If the governments and people concerned were in complete accord there would be no need for negotiations, the Secretary pointed out, adding, "and when they are not in accord and are endeavoring to reach a basis of agreement it is fatuous to suppose that negotiations can be conducted without important reservations on each side.

"The peoples concerned are themselves sovereign, and if they are not to resort to force they must have opportunities to reach an agreement mutually satisfactory. The wholesome pressure of world opinion for peaceful solution is quite consistent with such a conduct of negotiations as will make peaceful solutions possible.

"With all these considerations it remains true that there should be no secrecy for its own sake; that general policies should be made clear; that particular aims should be appropriately disclosed; that there should be public announcement of all proceedings to the extent consistent with the essential requirements of negotiations; that nothing should ever be done by our diplomatic agents which, so far as its actual character is concerned, could not be publicly proclaimed and justified as being free from artifice and deceptions and in full accord with American principles."

YALE ALUMNI IN COSTUME.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 19.—Yale alumni and undergraduates shared honors today in the program of the first formal commencement day. The old graduates returned to the number of 5,000 and the younger men blossomed out in fantastic rigs of blue and white for the opening dinners and marches of the commencement reunion and for the Yale-Harvard baseball game procession of tomorrow.

The class of 1912, Sheffield Scientific School, bloomed forth in clownish Mother Hubbards of as many colors as Joseph's celebrated coat, to which were added hats of foolish design and Queen Elizabeth ruffles at the throat and ankles.

The class of 1919, Sheffield, was togged out in baseball suits of gray caps, gray shirts and knickerbockers and blue stockings, with the class numerals in blue on the cap and shirt.

Tonight the medical alumni held their anniversary banquet. President James Rowland Angell, Dean Nelson Winternits and Dr. Walter B. James of New York City spoke on the condition of medical education nationally.

GRANTS OVER 650 DEGREES.

Six New Yorkers in Boston University's Largest Class.

BOSTON, June 19.—Six students from New York City received degrees at the commencement of Boston University today. These students, who were awarded the degree of Doctor of Medicine, were Abraham Jucovsky, Jacob M. Masters, Benjamin Rutkoff, Harry Schneider, Harry Schwartzman and Benjamin Steinberg. Drs. Rutkoff and Schwartzman also received the degree of Bachelor of Medicine.

Over 650 degrees were conferred by President L. H. Murlin upon the largest graduating class in the history of the University, an increase of 200 over the 450 degrees granted last June.

Social imagination is the thing most needed to settle the world and present national problems, Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Pittsburgh declared in his commencement address. He defined social imagination as "the power of the trained mind to put itself at an angle where it can look out sympathetically upon the points of view of other peoples."

Bishop McConnell said the white race had not yet devised any form of social organization that was certain to stand for any length of time, as had the Chinese system.

More than 90 per cent. of the senior class, the College of Liberal Arts will become teachers, mostly in public high schools. In addition, sixty students who have taken specialized training in the School of Education of the Graduate School will enter educational work.

Of this year's graduates, 120 are planning to go into the ministry, religious education, or some form of social service. Ten will go as missionaries to China, Japan, India and Africa.

New York Student Is Winner of the Olin Prize.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 19.—Commencement at Wesleyan University today saw the largest class graduated in its history, the number of degrees in courses conferred being 112. Two years ago 108 were graduated.

The honorary degrees awarded were five, as follows: Doctor of Divinity—The Rev. Robert Leroy Thompson, District Superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Troy, N. Y.; the Rev. Harry Sargent Scarborough, Yale, '95, Pastor of St. John's Church, Brooklyn, N. Y. Doctor of Laws—Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Malden, Mass.; the Rev. John Campbell Merriam, President of Carnegie Institute, Washington; Senator Cornelius Cole, '41, of Los Angeles, Cal., oldest Wesleyan alumnus, and within three months of being a centenarian.

Of the graduates sixty-eight received the degree of Bachelor of Arts and forty-four the degree of Bachelor of Science.

By a decree of the faculty announced today the Corpse and Coffin and the Sigma Tau honorary junior societies have been abolished.

Walter R. Kiernan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kiernan of 338 West Thirtieth Street, New York City, was awarded the Olin Prize in English composition. The prize is $40, the income of a fund given by Mrs. Julia M. Olin, and was awarded on a special essay on "The Plays of John Galsworthy." Mr. Kiernan is a member of Phi Nu Theta, fraternity and Mystical Seven, honorary senior society.

TRINITY HONORS LAKE.

Robert Gooden, of Los Angeles; the Rev. William Agur Beardsley, of New Haven, and the Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery, of New York. Bishop Coadjutor-elect of Massachusetts.

Degrees in course were given as follows: Bachelor of Arts, 24; Bachelor of Science, 23; Master of Arts, 11; Master of Science, —.

RELIGION FORTIFIES STATE, SAYS MILLER

ADDRESSES CATHOLIC CLASS

The State cannot be directly concerned in the promotion of religious instruction, Governor Nathan L. Miller said last night, at the commencement exercises of the parochial school of the Church of the Holy Child Jesus, Richmond Hill, which were held in the Academy of Music in Brooklyn. At the same time the Governor paid a high tribute to the part religion plays as a bulwark of the State and a guide to youth.

Governor Miller followed the Rev. Thomas A. Nummey, who spoke of the part that Catholics deem necessary religion should play in education, saying that "education without religion is a demagnetized compass, whose molecules of thought, neutralized by a wrong current of materialism, fail to direct aright the individual mariner across the sea of life."

"This is no doubt an age of materialism," said Governor Miller. "Invention, the arts and sciences, have developed to a high state of perfection the things which minister to man's material comfort, and undoubtedly the pursuit of the material was never more keen. So it is important that religion and education shall fan the divine spark which distinguishes man from the animal. I place religion first as the pillar among pillars, the support of the State, with the home as the foundation.

"What I have said of that religion is one of the pillars of the State, and whilst religion is undoubtedly the main bulwark against the attacks upon the State, which proceed from irreligion, the home and the State, yet the State cannot itself be directly concerned in the promotion of religious instruction, in the support of religion, and cannot combine religious instruction with secular instruction. To do that would almost inevitably lead to the support of a particular religion or religions and possibly to the suppression of others."

Governor Miller said that commencement was a favorite time to hear of dispiriting signs, but he thought the sight of boys and girls saluting the flag and reciting the Ode to the Flag were cheerful promises of future service.

"I think that with all its ups and downs, with all of its disquieting signs, the world is steadily growing better and is better today than it ever was before. There may be ills and evils afflicting us, but certainly the standards of both public and private morality are higher today than ever."

PEPPER GETS A DEGREE.

Rochester University Makes Pennsylvania Senator Doctor of Laws.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 19.—At the commencement exercises of the University of Rochester today the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon George Wharton Pepper, Pennsylvania Senator, and Bishop Charles Henry Brent of the Episcopal Diocese of Western New York.

The Rev. Benjamin Otto of Chicago, Superintendent of the Baptist Executive Council, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Divinity. Arthur Caswell Parker, State Archaeologist, was made a Master of Science.

In his address to the graduates Senator Pepper urged the duty of citizens to vote.

"Thousands of citizens," he said, "habitually omit to express their opinions at the polls. Some of them, and therefore take no part whatever in choosing the party candidate. After he is chosen they freely criticise the judgment of those who took the trouble to select the nominee. It is scarcely consistent to withhold your vote and yet to deplore the failure of parties to choose the right sort of standard-bearers.

"The question is not merely what influence your vote will have on the result of the election. The question, at least in part, is what influence habitual failure to vote will have on you. Continual expression of opinion without consequent action has a deteriorating effect on most people who indulge in it. Ministers and journalists will tell you that they have to be constantly on their guard lest they degenerate into mere critics of the failings of others. Serious criticism is a powerful factor for good. Voluble and careless criticism of public men and measures pollutes the political atmosphere and weakens the character of the critics."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—The bitter war which has been waged for years between the royalist newspaper, L'Action Française, and the advanced Republican organ, L'Oeuvre, today entered a fresh stage. Charles Maurras, the distinguished writer controlling the foreign policy of L'Action Française, having announced his intention to present himself as a candidate for the vacant chair in the French Academy, Gustave Tery, editor of L'Oeuvre, immediately retaliated by becoming a candidate for the same honor. Tery in an editorial explains that he in no way intends a personal opposition to Maurras or to make the matter polemic.

All he wants to see, he says, is whether the French Academy today has become a reactionary body. Maurras is a highly distinguished Hellenist, classical scholar and literary critic, while Tery is a prolific writer on varied subjects. When Leon Daudet, editor of L'Action Française two years ago, stood for a Parliamentary election, Tery immediately opposed him for the same seat and was defeated.

HONORS AWARDED AT TUFTS

MEDFORD, Mass., June 19. — Tufts College conferred honorary degrees and 363 degrees in course at its commencement exercises today. The honorary degrees were as follows:

Doctor of Letters—Leo R. Lewis, professor of history and theory of music at Tufts.

Doctor of Laws — Justice Henry K. Braley of the Massachusetts Supreme Court; Daniel G. Wing, Boston; William W. McClench, Springfield, president of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company.

Bachelor of Science—Walter S. Wyman, Augusta, Me.

Receiver for a Chicago Theatre.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The Plaza Theatre, one of the city's best-known show places, closed its doors today and a receiver was appointed on a petition of J. C. Duncan, principal owner, who stated that, owing to bad business conditions, his house has incurred an indebtedness of $30,000 within the last six months.

NO ALUMNI PROTEST ON YALE ATHLETICS

MENDELL NOT REPLACED

Durant Says That Charges He and Others Filed Have Not Been Answered.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 19.—Yale's much-advertised commencement meeting of its General Athletic Board of Control tonight proved a fruitless session.

The committee which had been appointed to recommend a new athletic director reported a candidate whom the board voted to try to secure, but he has not yet been officially tendered the position. The board declined to announce his name, but said he was a former athlete. Until his selection, Professor Clarence Mendell will continue to act as athletic director and Chairman of the board.

It is expected that the new director will take charge of Yale sport this Fall. After the session, it was announced that the scope of duties of the director would be to co-ordinate and develop recreational athletics but not to perform active coaching.

Nobody presented any criticism of Yale athletics either in writing or by appearing before the board and after the session members asked the reporters if they had seen any so-called voluntary committee. The board insisted that no report of such a committee or complaint from any person had been received. Professor Mendell said after the meeting:

"The position of the board is as it has always been. We stand ready to take up and we welcome any criticism from any one in the hope that it will result in the correction of any defect which may exist."

President Angell Takes Part.

President Angell took part in the discussion. Others present included Professor Mendell, George Adee, Professory Tilden, Twitchell and Greenway, A. C. Gilbert, Fred W. Allen, Burnwise Winslow, Louis Stoddard and George Mason from the University Corporation. No undergraduate captains were present.

The board voted to send the Yale tennis team of three, with the Harvard similar trio, to England to compete with Oxford and Cambridge in July. The Yale team will be Captain Lucian Williams, Wheeler and Arnold Jones.

Harold R. Durant, Yale '94, admitted yesterday that he had taken an active part in drawing up the charges made last week by a number of Yale alumni who believe that the athletic situation at Yale needs overhauling. None of the charges had been answered, he said, and instead those in authority had contented themselves with saying that he had bestirred himself because his boy had been dropped from the team.

"That is not so," he said, "and this letter which I wrote to Professor Mendell in December, long before the opening of the baseball season, proves it. Neither did I inspire Kernan's statement, for Kernan before he left Yale went to Professor Mendell and protested against the treatment he had received, and was told to put his complaints in writing so that they could be taken up by the athletic committee.

"Professor Mendell might better serve Yale if he confined himself to answering the charges of the committee and cease his personal attacks on me. I am not the issue in this thing. He can't blame me for Harvard victories, and that's what the row really is about. Professor Mendell is merely a smoke-screen thrown out to hide weaknesses.

"No man can better his own position any by humiliating one of my sons, and what is said about Jim Durant is unfair and untrue. Jim got his 'Y' last year. This year he got the 'gate.' That ends him at Yale.

Fears Another Son May Go.

"I have still another son in Yale, who also now faces the 'gate' because his father has dared to criticise the little athletic gods in New Haven, I suppose.

"This investigation started last Fall. Then early in December I wrote Professor Mendell and complained about Yale defeats. I received the usual soft letters of evasion. I got waspy after that. Then he sent George Adee after me. Adee and I went to New Haven and saw Mendell early last Winter. Mendell admitted much was wrong, that is, he admitted all he knew about.

"The upshot of the conference was that Mendell said if they did not appoint a graduate manager of athletics in a short time, he was going to resign and then they'd have to give the job to someone; he was sick of it, &c.

"Mendell knows who the Yale varsity captain and players are who have burned to a white heat over Yale athletic conditions. Let us do away with altbis, camouflage publicity and passing of the buck. Let the days of tea-table athletics go forever. Out of all this publicity may come a new athletic Yale. There had been an awakening. Some day the voluntary committee will be thanked for setting the alarm clock.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—Lady Astor resumed her seat in the Commons today and at once caused a diversion. The seat she holds is by favor of the Labor Party, but the subject under debate was imperial preference and she was not of the same view as those about her. She embarrassed them by applauding the advocates of preference with enthusiastic zeal, and presently she flitted across the floor and sat behind the Treasury bench. Mr. Neil Maclean duly made note of the migration.

"I notice that the member for Plymouth has again changed her seat," he remarked, with a twinkle in his eye.

She has found that her interjections about preference are not appreciated on this side of the House."

"Hear! hear!" retorted Lady Astor, with intense derision, and then joined in the laughter she had created.

COURT UPHOLDS BALLYHOO.

Vested Right at Coney, Says Magistrate.

"Coney Island is the nation's playground. Crowds flock there to see something different. They expect to be enticed by free acts outside the various places of amusement. They do not mind it. The ballyhoo men can continue to ballyhoo, and this court will not interfere."

Thus Magistrate Reynolds in the Coney Island Court yesterday ended the campaign of Police Inspector Sackett. The Magistrate dismissed three complaints against Manny Salah, assistant manager of the Eden Musée; the Hagenback Wild Animal Show and Underground Chinatown, all in Surf Avenue.

"This ballyhoo business has been going on for at least fifty years," said the Magistrate, "and it will go on for fifty more. People expect traffic in Coney Island to be blocked in this manner."

SAYS MORALS BELONG TO FIELD OF SCIENCE

Harvard Professor Declares It Will Take From Religion All Problems of Ethics.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 19.—Addition to the college curriculum of a new subject, which he called "the natural history of goodness," was urged today by Professor Emeritus William Morris Davis of Harvard in an address at the Harvard Phi Beta Kappa exercises in Sanders Theatre.

The application of science to the problems of ethics, Professor Davis claimed, was "manifestly within the field of scientific inquiry, and true scientific inquiry will not be either so cold or so hard as to lead to unwise conclusions about it."

"Just as surely as all questions of a geological or astronomical or evolutionary nature have now been permanently taken over from religion by the respective sciences, so conquest will be made of all questions concerning right and wrong by that division of science which concerns itself with the natural history of goodness as a matter of supernatural revelation," Professor Davis said, adding that eugenics and psychiatry would contribute powerfully to this conquest.

"Objection will probably be urged against the proposition to teach goodness as a branch of natural history," the speaker continued. "It will be said that the omission of all mention of God is fatal to its acceptance and its success. In my judgment our relation to the infinite should be excluded from natural history and assigned to religious instructions."

One of the important actions taken today by Phi Beta Kappa was the decision to hold the annual meeting next year on Friday of commencement week instead of on Monday as has been customary.

Judge Robert Grant, '73, of Boston, was re-elected President. Professor Edward K. Rand, '94, Vice President; Professor William G. Howard, '94, Secretary, and Richard H. Dana, '74, of Cambridge, Treasurer.

The society elected as honorary members Nicholas Vachel Lindsay, Louis A. Coolidge, Jonathan T. Lincoln, Wallace B. Donham, Dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration, and the following Harvard professors: Richard B. Dixon, George H. Parke and George B. Weston.

The following seniors were elected to the society: Charles A. Gage of Braintree, George W. Kates of New York, James W. Gould of Alston, Ill., and Edward L. Sherman of Lewistown, Mont. Herbert N. Hallen of the junior class was also elected to membership.

A recommendation that Radcliffe members of Phi Beta Kappa be allowed to attend the annual meetings of the society was tabled, as was a resolution that the seniors receiving a cum laude or a senior cum laude should automatically become candidates for the society.

Gary Made Doctor of Laws.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Former Judge Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation and for thirty years a Trustee of Northwestern University, was one of seven persons upon whom honorary degrees were conferred at Northwestern today. Judge Gary, who was a member of the class of 1867, received the degree of Doctor of Laws. The same degree was awarded to former Governor Chase S. Osborn of Michigan. John Marshall Gundry of Cleveland received the degree of M. A.

ERLANGER HEADS TICKET.

Theatrical Association Also Elects Shubert and Ames.

A. L. Erlanger was yesterday elected President of the International Theatrical Association, Inc., which began its first annual convention at the Hotel Pennsylvania. This organization, which includes practically all the theatrical men of the country, was formed in this city last August.

Other officers elected yesterday were: Vice President, Lee Shubert; Secretary, Alfred E. Aarons; Treasurer, Winthrop Ames. Walter Vincent, the retiring President, was elected chairman of the Board of Governors, and Mark H. Ridley, manager of the National Theatre, Washington, was made vice-chairman.

The day was largely taken up with organization problems, but railroad rates and baggage transfer charges also came up for discussion. It was agreed that actors' salaries are not to be considered.

M. DE FERAUDY TO ACT HERE

PARIS, June 19.—Arrangements have been made, with the approval of the French Government, for Maurice de Feraudy of the Comédie Francaise, and other notable actors and actresses connected with this threatre and the Odeon to visit North America in the Autumn. The program will include a week in Quebec, two in Montreal and one week in New York.

They will give their regular repertoire, which includes two plays by Moliere.

To Aid Arverne Fire Sufferers.

A performance for the relief of destitute sufferers from the recent fire at Arverne will take place on Thursday night at the Columbia Theatre, Far Rockaway, under the auspices of the Arverne Hotel Men's Association. The program will include Gus Edwards and his revue, as well as Toto and numerous others.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Marjorie Rambeau, in "The Goldfish," moved last night from the Maxine Elliott Theatre to the Times Square.

Allen Kearns, last seen here in "Tangerine," will play the role created by Otto Kruger in "To the Ladies" next season. The play will open in Chicago on Sept. 4.

George MacQuarrie and Frederick Truesdell have been engaged for "That Day," the first offering of the Belmont Repertory Company.

Alphonz Ethier will be in the cast of "The Invisible," in which the Italian actress, Maria Bazzi, will be seen here next season.

A. H. Woods will return from Europe on the Mauretania on Friday.

EDUCATOR ATTACKS TEACHERS' UNION

A. I. Dotey Says That Teachers Should Be Compelled to Quit Radical Body.

CRITICISES ITS PRESIDENT

Chairman of Committee on Exploitation of the Public Schools Completes Long Report.

Aaron I. Dotey of the DeWitt Clinton High School faculty and Chairman of the Committee on the Exploitation of the Public Schools by Radicals, concluded yesterday at the Teachers' Council meeting in the Board of Education Hall, his long report on that subject. Included in his report were criticisms of Henry R. Linville, President of the Teachers' Union, of Abraham Lefkowitz, one of its leading members, and Alexander Fichandler, principal of an elementary school in Brownsville, Brooklyn.

Mr. Dotey started reading his report last December, and has read instalments of it since at subsequent meetings. Some changes will be made in the conclusion of the report, which will be submitted at a meeting of the Teachers' Council on June 27.

The Teachers' Union, Mr. Dotey declared, was an organization of such radical views that it ought not to be allowed to remain as a representative of teachers, and the members should be forced to leave it or be dropped from the educational system of the State. He quoted from George Washington and Abraham Lincoln on the Constitution and the legal way of bringing about changes in it if the people so desire it, but that, while it existed, it should be loyally observed. He quoted the disloyal remarks said to have been made by different public school pupils, and told of a socialistic school where public school children were taught radicalism and trained to debate on that subject.

A report in favor of a Sabbatical year, giving teachers a year's leave of absence for rest or travel at stated intervals, with at least a half year's salary, was read by Mrs. Rupina A. Carle and was adopted by the Council.

The Brooklyn Teachers' Association submitted a report which was referred to the Council's committees. In it was the following:

"The Board of Education should be free of actual or threatened domination or interference by any city official, board or department, to the end that its work as a corporate educational body, deriving its power from the State and amenable to the State alone for the proper performance of its duties, may be unhampered by the persuasive pressure of politics; and especially should the Board of Education, subject to the recommendations of its educational experts, have complete control of the expenditure of school moneys."

NEW ALL-NEGRO REVUE.

"Strut Miss Lizzie," by Creamer and Layton, at Times Square.

The vogue created by "Shuffle Along," which has been responsible for several all-negro entertainments in the past year, probably did not a little to bring forth "Strut Miss Lizzie" last night at the Times Square. This newest of the Negro revues "glorifies the creole beauty" (it will be remembered that Mr. Ziegfeld's "Follies" glorify the American girl) and is a generally entertaining if somewhat repetitious succession of songs, dances and comedy scenes. It is the work of the experienced team of Creamer and Layton, who have written a good many songs and several musical comedies since they first joined hands.

"Strut Miss Lizzie" comes by way of Houston Street, where it was pronounced a decidedly good entertainment. One suspects that it has suffered a little by the process of elaboration—nearly all of the scenes had a way of being just a bit too long last night. It is at the happiest when its people sing and dance, or jig to the good old tunes. And it is at its lowest ebb during the comedy scenes, although a pair named Green and Burnett managed to be highly entertaining despite the fact that a crap game figured in the proceedings.

For the most part, however, it is a singing and dancing show, with an active chorus ranging from dark-hued to not very dark, all of them Creole beauties, the tall-legged part of the time-make excellent South Sea Islanders, and spend most of the rest of their time, so far as "Strut Miss Lizzie" is concerned, on Southern plantations and in restaurants. They help to keep "Strut Miss Lizzie" moving, although nothing quite atones for some of the more deadly of the comedy scenes.

The authors, after introducing the revue over the telephone, appeared again at 1 a. m. hour to do a Van-and-Schenck act—singing their own compositions, new and old.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

There were several noteworthy movements in yesterday's markets, most of them having no relation whatever to one another. Time money rates declined to the lowest since the month in which the United States went to war, but European exchange was exceptionally weak. The price of wheat declined while cotton reached much the highest price of the season. On the Stock Exchange the actual trend of the market seemed to be toward inactivity and lower prices; but what was apparently the virtual "cornering" of the speculative sellers of Mexican Petroleum stock by the inside experts resulted in a further rise of 17 points in its price and in a cautious attempt to bid up other industrial shares.

The Mexican Petroleum incident was characteristic: its repeated upward and downward swings of 10 to 20 points, made possible by the manner in which the stock is controlled and held, have attached to it the speculative allurement and the particular speculative hazard which have made it at times the favorite gambling counter on the Stock Exchange. But such movements as yesterday's have no bearing on the financial situation, unless possibly through suggesting the convenience of the present easy money market to the conductors of the speculative side of the undertaking.

Before this performance had taken possession of the stage, the stock market's trend was hesitant, with the railway shares weakening as a consequence of the open threat of a strike against the Labor Board's reduction in the wage scale. The fact that the employes affected are shopmen and unskilled road workers, not transportation men, had somewhat mitigated apprehension; but the influence of the incident on the market was to restrain activity and leave the general list irregular.

Yesterday's recent decline in sterling, bringing the rate 13 cents below the season's high figure of two weeks ago, indicated not only speculative selling but sale of considerable amounts of genuine commercial bills. The movement in some respects resembles the 17-cent decline which occurred in the fortnight after the $4.44⅜ rate was reached March 1. If, on the other hand, sales of exchange are now being made to provide for Europe's autumn payments at New York for grain and cotton, the case would resemble more closely that of last Summer, when sterling fell from $4.00¼ in May to $3.55 in July, but recovered steadily throughout the Autumn, more than regaining the Summer's loss. As yet, the market's position is not clear.

Yesterday's violent rise in the cotton market carried the spot price to 23¼ cents a pound, the highest touched since Oct. 9, 1920. It marks an advance of more than 40 per cent. from the year's low figure. A movement of such scope makes it necessary to look more carefully at the effect which abnormally high prices will exert on the consumer's purchase of textiles, and therefore on the demand for the raw material. With all the extravagant spending by the consuming public during 1919 and the early months of 1920, and with all the shortage which then existed in the world's supplies of textiles, the abnormal rise in cotton during that period cut the American spinners' monthly purchase of cotton down from 502,000 bales in Junary, 1920, to 535,000 in July and the exports from 415,000 bales in January to 241,000 in June, the decrease being progressive.

Since that time, moreover, the consumer has learned a good deal about how to resist high prices through wearing his old clothes. That will have to be reckoned with, if the price is carried higher. In the whole list of markets during the three-and-a-half years since the war, none has been subject to such repeated misjudgments on the part of the speculators as cotton—a misjudgment which was no less complete when the 21¼-cent price was reached last September and the 10½-cent price last June than when the speculators and forestallers put it up to 43¾ cents in July, 1920.

Stock Exchange call loans got down to previous record low of the year, established a week ago, at 2¾ per cent. after renewals were arranged at 3. Money was in plentiful supply at lending table, the ease also extending to rates for fixed periods, which dropped ¼ of 1 per cent. all around. 30-day funds ranging 3¼@3¾, 60 days, 3¾ at 4; 90 days at 4, and four to six months 4@4¼. Dealers report very limited amount of new business at these rates, which represent nominal bids of borrowers, with little inclination on part of lenders to meet them except for the more distant maturities. Commercial paper discounted unchanged, also eligible acceptances up to 150 days, but call rate dropped ¼ to 2.

Gold bullion up 1s 9d at 93s 6d. Taking the British Mint standard price of 86s per fine ounce as par the market quotation for gold would represent a price of 110 at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 115⅝, on Jan. 5. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 119⅝, on Feb. 8, 1920; the lowest 107⅝, on June 7, 1922.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Market Collapses—Declines Most Severe of Any in Present Declining Movement.

Foreign exchanges suffered a sharp break yesterday, all leading rates registering losses the most severe of any in the declining movement which had its impetus in the abandonment of an international loan to Germany ten days ago. London checks at $4.35⅛, the day's low, showed a gross loss of 5¾ cents since the close on Saturday. Scandinavians, Spanish, Holland and other Continentals.

In the subjoined table the quotations on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

A Moderately Firm Market.

With the exception of Mexican Petroleum and Studebaker, yesterday's stock market moved within an extremely narrow range and price changes as a whole were fractional. The volatile advance in Mexican Petroleum had the effect of exerting a sympathetic movement in some of the other oil shares, particularly the Standard issues, and as Studebaker moved up some of the other motor stocks became active and advanced moderately. Trading as a whole, however, was on a very small scale and to a large extent professional. The total turnover was 724,206 shares, comprising 375 issues. Recently, the average day's trading has been in something like 425 different securities and no five-hour day since March has had so small a total of transactions. On the whole, the market appeared not entirely recovered from the shock of the drastic liquidation last week. Many stocks which were prominent in the long upturn, evidently under pool control, scarcely stirred yesterday. On the other hand, there appeared to be no pressure to sell stocks, and professional Wall Street was inclined to sit back and wait until Mexican Petroleum and Studebaker had completed their operations before taking a positive stand on the market.

If there is one stock on the entire Exchange list whose actions are admitted by all Wall Street to be perverse and unexpected, that stock is Mexican Petroleum, in which the floating supply is very small, and which generally moves in a mysterious little circle of its own making, oftentimes exhibiting peculiar weakness in a strong market and strength in a weak one. Yesterday, with the undertone of the market generally firm but with trading only moderate, that stock continued in the wild rectors when they meet for action on rampage that had started Saturday, running up to 163⅛ and closed at 164, a gain of 14¼ points. The current move started last Thursday, when the stock sold at 123½. Since that time those who have sold it for the decline had faced increasing losses, and it was undoubtedly urgent repurchasing of "short" stock which accounted for the fact that 75,000 shares were turned over yesterday between 10 and 3 o'clock, at prices which sometimes jumped a full point between sales. Three factors were alleged to be back of the move: first, the settlement of Mexico's financial problems and the coming oil conference; second, the forthcoming annual report; third, the election of a new President. These things, however, merely helped to frighten "the shorts" and the buying power they furnished did the rest. The stock loaned at 1-32, then at 1-16 and finally flat, and at the close was in big demand.

Railroad Strike Talk.

Railroad executives displayed a pronounced apathy yesterday regarding the reports that the country faces a possible strike on the part of shop craft and maintenance of way employes following the Labor Board's reduction of their wage scales. This attitude appeared to be based on the fact that the strike votes are not being taken among those men who man the trains, and that not a word has come from the Big Four train brotherhoods that they would lend any help to the threatened walk-out. The train service men took a strike vote last Autumn, when their leaders chose not to exercise the authority placed in their hands. At the present time the wage scales and working conditions of the brotherhood members are not affected by the Labor Board recent decisions which have given rise to threats of a strike, and railway men agreed that even if the shop craft and other workers were to strike the railways would continue to be operated without difficulty. It is believed that a few local strikes may materialize, but they are not expected to spread or to last long.

Great Northern's Dividend Today.

Yesterday was the final day for traders to place their guesses on the probable action of Great Northern's Directors when they meet for action on the semiannual dividend in St. Paul today. The sentiment in financial circles led to the belief that uncertainty as to the dividend action would continue up to the moment the outcome is announced. Local Directors of the road have explained that they have no preconceived plan, preferring to reserve decision until they talk with President Budd and Western Directors regarding the outlook for the remainder of the year. A canvass of some of the leading brokerage houses yesterday brought forth the expectation that the regular semiannual requirement of $3.50 would be paid and the rate changed at the end of the year if conditions demanded.

The Reaction in Sterling.

The opinion most generally expressed by bankers in connection with the decline in the foreign exchanges, particularly in sterling, is that it is the liquidation of a stale long account which had become overheavy and somewhat vulnerable. The bankers here say that this long account in sterling was started prior to the Genoa conference. It was further increased prior to the Paris conference of bankers and had been increased again in anticipation of The Hague conference. These accounts, starting several months ago and reaching present proportions, have brought very good profits to the purchasers. The turnabout in the market has attracted speculative sales for the decline and this, naturally, aided in exerting pressure against quotations.

Sugar Mergers.

In addition to the known developments preparatory to the merger of the National Sugar Refining Company and the Cuban American Sugar Company, reports in Wall Street yesterday held that other plans were being formed which looked toward the union of separate sugar estates in Cuba rather than a combination of refining and producing interests. The name of E. Atkins & Co. was mentioned yesterday as one of the principals in these new negotiations although nothing of official character was obtainable in substantiation of the story. Outside of the Punta Alegre Sugar Company, with whose management the Atkins concern is closely identified, this company has several sugar producing properties in Cuba, while several banks are known to have Cuban sugar estates as a result of loans made by branches to Cuba. Sugar officials point out that many economies are possible through the merging of sugar estates, especially in competitive cane territory, and that when the situation becomes more stabilized and legal details are worked out there may be public offerings of securities based upon such mergers.

Trade circles on the lookout for signs of increasing business attach unusual significance to the dispatches yesterday showing the railroad tonnage movement of some of the leading Western railroads for the week ended June 10. The reports ranged from an increase of 100 per cent. to a decrease of 80 per cent. as compared with the same period of 1921, but the item of particular interest was the unanimity of gains in miscellaneous freight, a development which is held to be an excellent index as to general industrial expansion. The St. Paul, for example, showed a gain of 25 per cent. in miscellaneous freight hauled during the week ended June 10 as compared with last year; the Burlington showed an increase of 29 per cent., the Atchison a gain of 20 per cent., the Chicago & Northwestern 31 per cent., the Illinois Central 20 per cent. and the Rock Island a gain of 17 per cent.

Wall Street and Commencement Week.

The financial district is particularly deserted of leading bankers and corporation executives because of the fact that many colleges and universities are holding their commencement exercises this week. Most of the bankers plan to take the entire week off and make a short vacation of the affair. The night trains for some of the collegiate centres carried about twenty-five bankers and business men to Boston yesterday. A canvass of college graduates in responsible Wall Street positions today, compared with twenty-five or thirty years ago, would produce some striking contrasts; illustrating the well-known fact, shown by the records, that the great majority of college graduates nowadays go, not into the professions, but into business pursuits.

HUERTA AND OIL MEN BEGIN PARLEY TODAY

PROGRAM NOT ANNOUNCED

Conferences between the officials of some of the leading American oil corporations producing in Mexico and representatives of the Mexican Government will begin at 11 o'clock today in the offices of the Mexican Government's Financial Agency at 120 Broadway. The Mexican representatives include Adolfo de la Huerta, Minister of Finance, and Joaquin Santella, head of the petroleum department of the Treasury. The American oil interests will be represented by the same committee that went to Mexico City in April to confer with Mexican Government officials. This committee, which is headed by Walter C. Teagle, President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, includes Harry F. Sinclair, Chairman of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation; J. W. Van Dyke, President of the Atlantic Refining Company; E. C. Lufkin, Chairman of the Texas Company; Edward L. Doheny, Chairman of the Mexican Petroleum Company, and officials of other companies producing oil in Mexico.

While no official announcement of the program to be followed at the conference has yet been made, it was explained yesterday that one of the most important items to be considered today is the plan to pool all undeveloped Mexican acreage of American companies for development by a corporation to be owned jointly by them. Many officials have expressed the belief that joint operation in "wild-catting" would save much useless expenditure of time and money by individual corporations.

It is expected that the method of payment of the Mexican export tax also will come up for discussion.

According to belief yesterday the conferences will continue for a week or ten days. It was asserted that no official statement would be forthcoming until the end of the negotiations.

May Piggly Wiggly Profits $93,000.

Net profits of the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., in May amounted to $93,000, according to a statement yesterday by Clarence Saunders, President of the company. Mr. Saunders added that the company is not contemplating additional financing at this time.

Brokers Petition for July 3, Too.

A petition to the Governors of the New York Stock Exchange asking that it be closed on Monday, July 3, as well as Tuesday, July 4, is being circulated on the floor of the Exchange and has been signed by many members.

EXCHANGE INSTALLS AUTOMATIC TICKERS

SOON WILL BE EXTENDED

Reports of Transactions Will Go Directly to Operator Instead of Through Others.

The apparatus for the automatic control of the ticker system of the New York Stock Exchange was placed in service on the bond tickers yesterday and gave entire satisfaction to Exchange authorities and experts who watched its operations all day. The speed with which the quotations are being delivered by the ticker instruments has already noticeably increased, and after the various minor defects have been done away with, the Exchange authorities hope to increase the speed of the tickers from 15 to 18 per cent.

The new system will be extended to include the stock tickers in about two weeks. Subsequently, the transmitting keyboards will be transferred to the floor of the Exchange from the separate operating room where they are now placed.

The machine is the invention of Allen B. Caldwell, a prominent electrical engineer. Mr. Caldwell and the Stock Exchange Committee on Quotations have worked two years on the new method, with the object of speeding up quotations and cutting down errors. The new method eliminates two steps in the transaction of getting a report of a sale on the ticker. At present the notice of sales goes from the reporter to the senior, to the receiver, to the keyboard. Under the new system the report of a sale goes directly from the reporter to the keyboard.

Hitherto quotations have been transmitted telegraphically to an operating room where they were transcribed and placed before the so-called keyboard operator, who controlled the ticker system.

As the quotations were being sent simultaneously from four different points on the Exchange trading floor, the one not possibly keep up with the traffic. Furthermore, it has never been possible under manual operation to push the present ticker system to the limit.

Under the new system, instead of one keyboard there will be four, all working simultaneously so far as the operator is concerned but so interlocked electrically that they cannot interfere with each other.

NORTH CAROLINA BONDS ARE OFFERED

$9,000,000 of 4½ Per Cents Marketed to Yield 4.40 and 4.35 Per Cent.

JERSEY CITY ISSUE ON SALE

Priced to Yield 4 to 4.35 Per Cent., According to Maturities—Industrial Offerings.

A new issue of $9,000,000 State of North Carolina 4½ per cent. highway bonds was offered yesterday by the First National Bank of New York, the Bankers Trust Company of New York, B. J. Van Ingen & Co., Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., Eldredge & Co., E. H. Rollins & Sons, Hornblower & Weeks, Redmond & Co., and Blodgett & Co. The bonds are due, $300,000, annually, July 1, 1932 to 1946, inclusive, to yield 4.40 per cent., and $300,000 maturing annually from July 1, 1947, to 1961, inclusive, to yield 4.35 per cent.

A syndicate, including Estabrook & Co., the Guaranty Company, Kountze Bros., Remick, Hodges & Co., and Hornblower & Weeks, has purchased a new issue of $3,073,000 Jersey City, N. J., gold coupon 4½ per cent. bonds, maturing serially from 1922 to 1957, inclusive. The bonds are being offered as follows: 1933 maturity to yield 4 per cent.; 1924 maturity to yield 4.20 per cent.; 1925 to 1931 maturities to yield 4.35 per cent.; 1932 to 1936 maturities to yield 4.30 per cent.; 1937 to 1957 maturities to yield 4.25 per cent.

Stone & Webster are offering a new issue of $1,500,000 Columbus Electric & Power Company first and refunding mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, series "A," at 97 to yield 6.25 per cent. The issue is non-callable for ten years. After June 1, 1932, to June 1, 1937, the bonds are callable at 105 and thereafter, decreasing ½ to 1 per cent. each year, to 101 for the year ending June 1, 1945, and at par thereafter.

Jelke, Hood & Co. are offering $300,000 Racine Horseshoe Tire Company first closed mortgage fifteen-year 7 per cent. bonds, due June 1, 1937, at 97 to yield, if redeemed in 1928, 8.30 per cent.; in 1937, 7.50 per cent. The average yield of all bonds is about 7.80 per cent. The entire issue is to be retired at 105 by maturities, beginning June 1, 1928, through a sinking fund.

An issue of $57,000 6 per cent. water bonds and sewer bonds of Hobart, Okla., is offered by Prudden & Co. at a price to yield 5.40 per cent. Of the issue $2,000 are sewer bonds, maturing Nov. 8, 1948, and $55,000 are water bonds, due Feb. 1, 1947.

A syndicate, including the Bankers Trust Company, the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, William R. Compton Co, Detroit Trust Company, Hannahs, Ballin & Lee, the Tillotson & Wolcott Company, E. H. Rollins & Sons, the First National Company of Detroit, Battles & Co. and Otis & Co. is offering a new issue of $3,335,000 San Juan, P. R., 5 per cent. gold bonds, at prices to yield 4.50 per cent. The bonds are dated July 1, 1922, and mature in various amounts from July 1, 1923, to July 1, 1947.

Canada Cuts Freight Surcharge.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 19.—The surcharge on international freight for the remainder of the month of June will be one-half of 1 per cent., according to an announcement issued today by the Board of Railway Commissioners. The former rate was 1 per cent.

TWO NEW ISSUES OF STOCK.

Commercial Solvents Corporation Is Offering 40,000 Shares.

Huntington, Jackson & Co. are offering today 40,000 shares of cumulative convertible Class A stock, no par value, of the Commercial Solvents Corporation, at $45 per share, to yield about 9 per cent. The stock is entitled to cumulative dividends at the rate of $4 per share a year, and is convertible on any dividend date into Class B stock share for share. With the issue of the new stock the company will have outstanding 40,000 shares of the cumulative convertible A stock and 40,000 shares of no par value Class B stock. It has no funded debt. The corporation is a producer of alcohol solvents. In a letter to the bankers, P. J. Mumford, President of the corporation, states that net profits before Federal taxes for the quarter ending June 30, 1922, six weeks estimated, will aggregate $140,181, compared with $120,195 in the preceding quarter.

John Nickerson Jr. of New York is offering $1,200,000 Newport News and Hampton Railway, Gas and Electric Company 7 per cent. cumulative convertible preferred stock at $93 and accrued dividends. The company was organized in 1914 by the consolidation of three existing companies, and supplies the electricity and power for the Virginia peninsula, serving a population estimated at 60,000.

EXPECT NO RAIL STRIKE.

Executives Sure Wage Cut Will Be Accepted.

Little fear is felt by local railway executives that a strike will be called among the maintenance of way workers, shop crafts and clerks as a result of the Railway Labor Board's recent 10 per cent. wage cut. In a statement yesterday, signed by B. M. Jewell, President of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, and other union heads, the Labor Board was informed that there would be a nation-wide strike if the workers voted to reject the reductions ordered to become effective July 1.

Executives point out that the strike vote now being taken includes the shop forces, maintenance of way workers and clerks, while the Big Four brotherhoods—the workers who really man the trains—have given no intimation of backing up the threatened walk-out. Even if the other workers do walk out, the train service men can be counted on, the officials say, a condition which would practically guarantee uninterrupted transportation service.

The enginemen, firemen, conductors and trainmen took a strike vote last Fall, when they had issues of their own at stake; but their leaders chose not to exercise the strike authority put into their hands.

SHEET STEEL IN DEMAND.

All but 3 of 113 Mills in Youngstown District Busy.

YOUNGSTOWN, June 19.—With automobile makers and other factories clamoring for sheet steel, that branch of the steel industry in the Youngstown district today began a schedule of operations more nearly approaching 100 per cent. than at any time since the war boom.

Good Prices at London Wool Sale.

LONDON, June 19.—A miscellaneous selection amounting to 12,308 bales was offered at the wool auction sales today. It met with a ready sale at firm prices. Several parcels of superior greasy merinos were taken for America.

All of the bonds are to be retired at 105 by maturity through operation of a Sinking Fund by which one-tenth of the issue will be called June 1, 1928, and annually thereafter, according to the terms of the Indenture.

BUSINESS: The Racine Horseshoe Tire Company owns and operates a modern well-equipped plant, used for the manufacture of automobile tires and located in the business district of Racine, Wisconsin. Racine Horseshoe Tires have been produced since 1913.

SECURITY: The bonds are secured by a first mortgage covering all real estate, buildings and machinery, including future acquired property except as subject to purchase money liens. The mortgage provides that the Company shall maintain quick assets to an amount of 150% of the total liabilities, including the outstanding bonds.

The reproduction value of the property less depreciation on May 1st, 1922 (as appraised by the Coats & Burchard Company), was equal to more than 2¾ times the amount of this First Mortgage Bonds. Total assets (adjusted to include current financing) were equal to over five times the amount of these bonds.

EARNINGS: It is estimated that the Company's net annual sales should be at the rate of at least $2,000,000 (the net sales of Racine Horseshoe Tires by the predecessor company for the years 1918-21 inclusive averaged over $3,000,000). It is also estimated that the annual earnings available for interest on the First Mortgage Bonds should equal at least 10% of such net sales, or $200,000. This amount is equivalent to nearly 10 times the total interest requirements.

The corporate proceedings in connection with the issue of these bonds have been approved by Messrs. White & Case and Messrs. Earle & Hoar, Attorneys, of New York City.

We offer the above bonds for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us,

Mr. J. N. Shannahan, President of the Company, has summarized his letter descriptive of the Company and its business as follows:

Business — The Company was organized in 1914 by the consolidation of three existing companies and furnishes, without competition, the entire electrical supply for power and lighting, the entire gas supply, the electric railway transportation service, and manufactures substantially all the ice used on the Virginia Peninsula, serving a population estimated at 60,000 including Newport News, Hilton, Hampton, Phoebus and Fortress Monroe.

Consolidated Earnings — During the past five years earnings * have averaged 3.53 times the dividend requirement on preferred stock outstanding from time to time. The earnings * in 1921, adjusted to correspond to the elimination of fixed charges due to new financing, were equal to over four times the dividend requirement on all preferred stock, including that to be presently outstanding.

* The earnings are before that part of depreciation charges actually used and not that part credited to the reserve account. For example, in 1921 $77,042 of depreciation charges were actually used and $147,393 were credited to reserve account.

Equity — The value of the equity in the property, based on the average reproduction cost, during the years 1917 to 1921 inclusive, less depreciation, is equal to $338 per share of the preferred stock.

Preferred Stock Provisions — The preferred stockholders have full voting rights, the privilege of converting the preferred stock into common stock share for share and other important rights and preferences which are described in the President's letter.

Franchises and Management — The franchise situation is favorable, the principal franchises being unlimited as to time. The present management has been in charge of operations since 1912 and since that time the rebuilding and improvement has been extensive. The property is all in excellent condition.

Reinvest Your Bond Interest

BOND interest coming in odd amounts is easily spent. It would multiply in a surprising way if reinvested promptly in more bonds. For instance—at compound interest, money doubles in 10 years at 7%; in 12 years at 6%; in 14 years at 5%.

A Convenient Way to Buy More Bonds is to apply your bond interest as the first 10% payment on an additional bond purchase under the Halsey, Stuart & Co. Investment Plan; the balance may be paid in ten equal amounts monthly.

Besides the means which it affords to keep interest money productively employed, the outstanding merit of the Halsey, Stuart & Co. Investment Plan is that it promotes the habit of steady accumulation. It enables investors to determine the amount of bonds they would like to buy during a year or a period of years—and accomplish their goal.

This plan is useful to small and large buyers alike. Its details—told in our booklet "A Sure Road to Financial Independence"—are worth reading. Mail the coupon and a copy will be sent to you without obligation.

BANK OF NEW YORK AND TRUST CO. JOIN

MERRILL TO BE PRESIDENT

New Institution to Have $4,000,000 Capital Stock and $50,000,000 in Net Deposits.

The Trustees of the New York Life Insurance & Trust Company and the Directors of the Bank of New York, two of the oldest financial institutions in the United States, at meetings held yesterday, approved of merging the two companies under the name of the Bank of New York & Trust Company. The two companies are arranging for special stockholders' meetings in the near future to ratify the plan.

Edwin G. Merrill, President of the New York Life Insurance & Trust Company, will be President of the consolidated company, while Herbert L. Griggs, President of the Bank of New York, will become Chairman of the Board of Trustees. The new institution will have a capital stock of $4,000,000, surplus and undivided profits of approximately $12,000,000 and net deposits in excess of $50,000,000. The board of the Bank of New York & Trust Company will consist of thirty members, virtually all of the present Trustees and Directors of the two institutions being on the new board.

The Bank of New York at present has $2,000,000 of capital stock outstanding, while that of the New York Life Insurance & Trust Company amounts to $1,000,000. The terms of the merger provide that each institution shall declare a $500,000 stock dividend, the shareholders of the Bank of New York receiving one and one-quarter shares of stock of the new company for each share now held—a total of $2,500,000; the shareholders of the New York Life Insurance & Trust Company receiving one and one-half shares of stock of the consolidated company for each share now held—a total of $1,500,000.

For the immediate future the business of the trust company will be conducted in its own building at 52 Wall Street and the business of the Bank of New York will be carried on in its own building at 48 Wall Street.

The Bank of New York is the oldest bank in New York City and was organized in 1784 by Alexander Hamilton, first Secretary of the Treasury of the United States and father of the early banking laws of this country. It was founded as a State bank, but in 1865, after the close of the civil war, it was converted into a national bank.

The New York Life Insurance and Trust Company was the first financial institution in this country to start business with "trust company" as a part of its title, it having been organized under a special charter granted by the State Legislature in 1830. It has always made a specialty of personal trusts.

AIRPLANE FALLS ON SHIP.

Passengers on Cherbourg Lighter Escape, but Two Fliers Are Hurt.

CHERBOURG, France, June 19 (Associated Press).—A French naval hydro-airplane, zigzagging over tugs and lighters which were taking passengers and freight to and from steamers in the harbor, suddenly fell onto the bridge of a large Royal Mail lighter this afternoon without injuring any of the scores of passengers aboard. Two of the airship crew were injured.

The plane broke off the masts of the lighter, tipped over the funnels and piled up in a heap of twisted steel and kindling.

MONTREAL, June 19.—The regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. has been declared on Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated. In circles close to the company, this is said to be the last declaration under a 6 per cent. basis for the company. It has just made application for power to reduce its gas rates and that action usually precedes dividend increases.

LEE HOPEFUL OF DIVIDEND.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 19.—"Our railroads are owned by the people, both through the wide dissemination of their stocks and bonds in the hands of individual holders and through ownership brought about by the wide-spread holding of these securities by great fiduciary institutions—banks, saving funds and insurance companies—in whose welfare practically every citizen is directly or indirectly interested."

This statement was made today by Elisha Lee of New York, Vice President of the Eastern Region of the Pennsylvania System, in an address before the Purchases and Stores Division of the American Railway Association convening here. Several thousand delegates are present.

Mr. Lee said the 6 per cent. dividend on Pennsylvania Railroad stock would be restored as soon as possible.

"We have genuine public ownership of the railroads in our country, that is, ownership by the public, a far better thing than ownership by the Government, which in the end means by and for politics," he continued.

Mr. Lee stressed the importance of keeping material stocks at a level that would keep little money lying idle.

"On the Pennsylvania," he said, "supplies on hand at any given time may be worth $60,000,000. The minimum interest charge on $60,000,000 is equal to two years' dividends on our stock at the old rate of 6 per cent., which we paid for so many years and which we feel morally obligated to restore as soon as conditions permit."

DAVISON CHEMICAL DEFICIT.

Company Weathered Depression Without Large Losses, Says President.

The Davison Chemical Company and the Davison Sulphur and Phosphate Company in their consolidated statement for the year ended Dec. 31, 1921, show a deficit of $411,938 after interest, depreciation and reserves. This compares with a net income of $822,902 reported in 1920.

Gross income	$530,969	$2,016,022

Deficit	$411,938	*$822,902
Dividends		400,000

Commenting on the agricultural fertiliser situation, which affects the most important part of the company's business, President Miller said in part:

"The enormous losses shown by other companies explain why the earnings statement is not more satisfactory, but we feel confident of our future position when we consider we have weather the storm without these large losses and have our surplus account practically intact, with inventories and operating costs back to normal.

Announce New Car Orders.

The General American Tank Car Corporation announced yesterday the receipt of thirty new tank cars for the Florida East Coast Railway. The General American Car Company, a subsidiary of the General American Tank Car Corporation, announced the following orders: 3,050 new fifty-ton composite gondola cars for the Wabash Railway and 200 forty-ton refrigerator cars for the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway.

Zinc Surplus Further Reduced.

Surplus stocks of zinc were reduced 11,312 tons during May, an even greater reduction than in the preceding month. Surplus on June 1 amounted to 46,409 tons, which is about a month's supply. Shipments in May were 38,738 tons. Heavier exports and the great building revival, coupled with a growing demand for galvanizing, are primarily responsible for the improvement.

Newton Steel's Common Dividend.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 19.—Directors of the Newton Steel Company authorized today the first common dividend to be paid since its organization three years ago. The dividend is $1.50 per share or at the rate of 6 per cent. a year on the $1,500,000 of common stock. The usual preferred dividend of 1¾ per cent. was authorized.

WESTERN COLLECTION CONCERN UNDER FIRE

Soon after representatives of the Merchants' Association of this city and the New York County Lawyers' Association called on District Attorney Joab A. Banton yesterday the prosecutor issued a statement in which he said he had requested the local representative of the Merchants' Association, Inc., of Minnesota, to furnish him with information about the activities of the corporation in this city.

Mr. Banton said that Mr. Bramhall and Mr. Thomas, counsel for the Merchants' Association of this city, and Julius Henry Cohen, George B. Adams and Edwin M. Ottenbourg of the Committee on Unlawful Practice of the Law of the local Bar Association, had complained that the Minnesota corporation was violating Section 551 of the Penal law.

They explained, according to the prosecutor, that the corporation was selling to corporations in this city a book of forms for collecting money from bad debtors, which, it further was contended, made the Minnesota corporation liable to punishment under the law, but also made an offender of each corporation or person who complied with the instructions contained on two of the four different debt-collecting forms included in the book.

"The whole complaint has been referred to Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora for investigation and disposition," the District Attorney's statement read. "The New York agents of the Minnesota corporation has been sent for and a number of merchants who have used the forms will be brought to the District Attorney's office under subpoena.

"No doubt the merchants who have used these forms have done so in ignorance of our penal law, and the District Attorney invites their assistance in prosecuting the persons who are responsible for this violation."

Asked whether the matter would be placed before the Grand Jury the Prosecutor said it depended on the attitude of the officials of the Minnesota Corporation. He displayed a copy of one of the contract form books which showed that the local office was at 27 Warren Street. In the introductory page of the book the statement is made that "the system has 108 money-pulling collection letters," and will collect at least 75 per cent. of old bills.

COTTON PRICES SOAR IN EXCITED MARKET

After a week's clear weather, general rains occurred over a large area of the belt throwing the cotton market into a state of feverish excitement. Speculative buying that began on Friday continued on a large scale, broadening out until the general upward movement was resumed. The moment prices went new high figures, demand became urgent. All three contract markets rose with an unusual degree of unanimity. Strength of spot cotton continued a feature of the situation and even after a rise of three-quarters of a cent in contracts yesterday, Southern prices were still in the lead. A gain of 72 to 75 points was shown at the close.

A return of showery weather in many sections and a sharp advance abroad started quotations a quarter of a cent higher at new high levels for the season. Liverpool sales of spot cotton increased to 15,000 bales and the contract market reflected the first real excitement in foreign circles this year. Hitherto apprehension has been confined to domestic interests. Each advancing movement has started on this side and been followed slowly by Liverpool. But reports of supply and demand conditions, as influenced by moderate crop prospects, have at last impressed foreign trading.

Liverpool not only met the local advance in the latter part of the week but gained about .40 American points in addition. While this was in part attributable to the sharp break in sterling, other factors operated to produce an advance. Southern spot markets have risen steadily with very little cotton offered. As a certain amount of American cotton will be needed to carry Manchester through until the new crop is available in the Fall, trade buying of contracts has become active abroad as well as here. British export figures show an enormous increase over last year ago, necessitating larger purchases of American cotton. This condition is reflected not only in increased spot sales but in liberal exports from America.

After starting a quarter of a cent up, prices gained steadily. New Orleans led the rise, indicating a resumption of a general buying movement in all three markets. After last week's reaction on good weather, the first rain reports caused active demand from speculative and trade quarters. Buying gained in volume as the day wore on, wire houses taking thousands of bales from the ring. A peculiar feature of the day's rise was found in the absence of large selling orders. From time to time blocks of a few thousand bales appeared, but at no set figure was there a lot of 5,000 or 10,000 bales offered. A rush of buying soon after the opening ran October over 27½ cents. Here a temporary halt occurred, but when predictions of general showers were posted prices gained another quarter of a cent, October selling over 22.70.

Buying orders poured into the ring from all sections of the country. Wall Street and Western interests, after liquidating considerable cotton recently, became active buyers, replacing lines as soon as prices worked into new high ground. Reactions proved unimportant, new buyers appearing the moment quotations were reduced 10 points. New Orleans continued to lead each advance and it required a spurt in prices to enable brokers to execute orders.

During the early afternoon a setback of 15 points took place, but this only served to bring in new business. When weather details showed general rain over a large section of the Atlantic States, at many points from one to two inches, another upward rush carried October above 23.35 or nearly 90 points from yesterday's close. All positions moved upward with equal rapidity, demand being well distributed throughout the list. The major portion of speculative operations was centred in October and December, but trade demand for late months continued unabated. Fear of continued rains prevented selling pressure. Strength of spot markets left July so far out of line that a steady demand existed for that month despite approaching notice day. Profit-taking by early buyers started a 20-point reaction in the last half hour with fluctuations becoming erratic. But more cotton was wanted on the setback than appeared for sale and the list closed at a uniform advance of about .70 of a cent.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.

Seaboard Call Seems Slack, but Sales Are Believed to Be Larger Than Reported.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Saturday's bulge in wheat cut down the local and Eastern short interest materially and left the market in a position where it was easily influenced by selling pressure. That pressure was not large but the demand was slow, and prices dropped 1¼@2 cents and closed well toward the bottom, with net losses of 1⅝@1¾ cents, the latter on the July. There was some spreading between the July and the September at 1 cent difference, one cash house buying July and selling September, while another did the reverse.

Sentiment generally was decidedly bearish, with many of the pit element looking for a considerable increase in hedging pressure shortly, as harvesting operations are progressing rapidly.

St. Louis had in today a car of new wheat which graded No. 1 red, testing 60 pounds per bushel and 10.6 per cent. moisture. It came from Southwestern Missouri but the price was not given, a mill there being the buyer. Threshing is under way in Illinois and some new grain is expected to be loaded for Chicago within a week.

The lack of export demand is counting heavily against the market, and, while there is a disposition to believe, from the quantities of futures taken by exporters, that sales are much larger than reported, the trade is not disposed to pay much attention to this, and, on all the bulges, offerings have increased considerably.

Reports from Kansas, Nebraska and other States indicate that the belief that threshing returns will not confirm the yields suggested by conditional figures, will be found to be right, a decrease of 1,194,000 bushels in the visible supply brought the total down to 24,614,000, against 25,808,000 the previous week and 11,280,000 last year.

A local man who returned from New York today says what export business is passing in wheat and is being done practically at cost. Sales for the day were estimated at 200,000 to 300,000 bushels, the break in sterling having some effect.

Forecast for showers over the entire grain belt, with prospects that cool weather would prevail for several days, caused a little change in sentiment in corn, and the local buying, which has been so much in evidence of late, was not as aggressive. So the close was one-quarter to three-eighths of a cent lower. Cash houses were after corn, and yellow and white on track sold at the July price to one-quarter over, with mixed at one-quarter to half a cent under the future.

Oats closed one-eighth to one-quarter of a cent higher, after averaging lower a good part of the day, scattered buying making a bulge in the last few minutes of trading. Crop reports on oats from the States of largest production are distinctly poor.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,209,000 bushels; a week ago, 1,007,000; last year, 2,034,000. Shipments were 505,000 bushels; a week ago, 582,000; last year, 699,000.

Corn receipts were 1,071,000 bushels; a week ago, 1,639,000; last year, 1,292,000, and shipments 949,000 bushels; a week ago, 676,000; last year, 721,000.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Cash Cotton Advance 70 Points to 23.25 Cents—Other Staples Firm.

An advance of 70 points, to 23.25 cents, in spot cotton, the highest in almost two years, was the outstanding change reported in yesterday's cash markets. Heartening crop news and strong foreign cables influenced the futures market to higher levels for the day. Other changes included a fractional advance in oats, eggs and lard, while wheat receded slightly. The groceries, other provisions and metals held steady.

Elevated Valuation Hearings Resumed—Service on Brooklyn Lines Discussed.

The Transit Commission sent yesterday to Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien the report of an audit made by its chief accountant of the expenses of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company incurred in the strike of 1920. The audit, which was made at Mr. O'Brien's request, showed that the company's total strike expenses were $2,483,483.48. Mr. O'Brien charged that huge sums were paid to various agencies to break the strike.

The report showed that the strike began on Aug. 29, 1920, and was considered as having ended on Sept. 15, although many strikebreakers were employed for some time after the latter date until operation again became normal. The audit covered the period from Aug. 29, 1920, to March 31, 1922.

Employes for strike service were employed through eleven different agencies and included gatemen, guards, motormen, conductors, operatives, instructors, detectives, special guards and commissary help. Other expenses were for commissary supplies, tents and automobile service.

Total payments to the eleven agencies amounted to $1,577,153.12 or 63.5 per cent. of the total strike expenses.

Expert on Valuation.

Non-operative property of the Manhattan Railway Company, owner of the elevated lines operated by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was valued on a cost to reproduce basis at $6,-067,341 by Sig Cederstrom, real estate expert retained by the company and formerly real estate expert for the old Public Service Commission. Mr. Cederstrom used an "additional cost" factor in making this estimate, which he said he distributed as 15 per cent. as the additional sum to be paid property owners to avoid litigation and 5 per cent. to cover legal expenses.

Under cross-examination by ex-Justice Clarence J. Shearn, special counsel for the commission, Mr. Cederstrom admitted that if appraised would have been $4,226,801 with the 20-per cent. "additional cost" charge excluded. He conceded that he was in substantial agreement with the valuation recommended by the commission's Valuation Bureau, except for the 20 per cent. he had added.

Daniel L. Turner, the commission's consulting engineer, was examined by A. E. Olney, counsel for the Brooklyn City Railroad Company regarding his suggestions for "ideal service." Mr. Turner said such service included headways as close as consistent with safety and regularity, speed and cars designed to enhance capacity and comfort. He admitted that his ideals had not been realized in any American city, but added that New York should take the lead in this respect.

Harry S. Fischer, a statistician of the commission, testified that the company's finances had improved, and that in the ten months ended April 30, 1922, the net corporate income had increased $2,105,-038.53 over the corresponding period a year before. The net corporate income for the ten months ended April 30, 1922, was $1,378,061.58. A year before for a similar period the company had a deficit of $726,974.95.

Tells of Traffic Shifts.

Clinton E. Morgan, general manager of the company, described furnishing transportation to the public as a problem of "following them around and outguessing them." He said local conditions made frequent changes in schedules necessary, and mentioned as some of the particular causes of fluctuations in passenger traffic shopping sales, baseball games, the weather, sewer construction or paving and any change in traffic regulations. During the last year, he added, schedules were changed 456 times on the Brooklyn surface lines.

Only eighty-two of the 157 cars owned by the Richmond Light and Railroad Company, which operates surface lines on Staten Island, were found to be in service recently, according to testimony of William H. Freeman, an inspecting engineer of the commission. The cars were described as maintained in good condition and the track as fair except for stretches with low joints.

Testimony showed that there was usually an excess of seats in non-rush hours. Rush hour crowding was described as not particularly acute except on the Castleton Avenue line, where it was agreed some relief was necessary. Receiver John J. Kuhn promised to cooperate with the commission. The receiver said he had tried to bring about better service by installing a double track system by use of existing streets to those on which the single track lines now run, but had not been able to get a franchise.

HOUSE CLERK A RIVAL OF FRANCE FOR SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 19.—William Tyler Page, Clerk of the House of Representatives, announced tonight his candidacy for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Maryland in opposition to Senator France. Mr. Page, who has been in the service of the House for forty-one years, is likely to have two competitors besides France. Representative John P. Hill will be in the race and Brainard H. Warner, a Washington lawyer, whose home is in Maryland, is expected to announce himself also.

Mr. Page attracted notice during the World War when he won a $10,000 prize for "The American's Creed." He was appointed a page in the Clerk's office of the House Dec. 10, 1881, and was elected Clerk May 19, 1919. He is President of the League of Republican State Clubs.

"I am a man of modest means," said Mr. Page in announcing his candidacy. "My availability has been suggested possibly because of my long and varied experience in connection with Congress.

"I am American. I believe in our representative system of government and in party responsibility. I am a Republican. The only platform I recognize as authoritative is that of my party, adopted in national convention at Chicago in 1920, upon which President Harding was elected."

While there has been considerable dissatisfaction with Senator France in Maryland, the visit of President Harding to the Senator's home last week, while he was in Baltimore dedicating the Francis Scott Key memorial, was thought to amount to the stamp of Administration approval. But no matter who wins the Republican nomination, it looks as if there might be a chance for the Democratic candidate to be elected.

THEATRE BOX FALL FATAL.

John F. Donahue, of 969 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, who on Saturday night fell from a box in Keeney's Theatre, 896 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, to the orchestra, a distance of fifty feet, died yesterday in the Holy Family Hospital from a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Miss Minnie Duffy, of 617 Fifty-first Street, who was badly injured when Donahue's body fell on him in the orchestra, is in the same hospital recovering from several broken ribs.

RIO GRANDE IS NEAR RECORD FLOOD STAGE

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 19.—Possibility of the worst flood in the history of the lower Rio Grande Valley is seen in an unconfirmed report that the San Juan River in Mexico is on a third rampage, and that its flood water may enter the Rio Grande at the same time that the flood waters which passed Eagle City Sunday night reach Rio Grande City.

If the report is true and the water of the San Juan joins that of the crest of the Rio Grande flood, Federal weather observers here believe it would produce a flood unparalleled in the history of the valley.

The flood in the Rio Grande, which carried away the wagon and the railroad bridges at Eagle Pass Sunday night, has passed that town, and high water is beginning to be recorded at Laredo.

As far as can be learned there has been no loss of life in the Rio Grande flood, unless it is on the Mexican side.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 19.—Reports reaching here from Rio Grande City stated that the levee at Mission broke this afternoon, flooding many acres of the lower Rio Grande Valley's best farming lands. No loss of life was reported, and no estimate of the damage to crops was given.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Both international bridges connecting Eagle Pass, Texas, with Piedras Negras, Mexico, were swept away last night by the highest flood in the history of the Rio Grande River.

The torrent ruptured communication between the American and Mexican sides of the river, marooned a number of persons on the American side, including the force of the American Consulate, and official advices stated that there possibly has been heavy loss of life and great damage to property in the two cities and in the lowlands along both sides of the river.

First news of the catastrophe was reported to the State Department this afternoon by William P. Blocker, the American Consul at Piedras Negras, who was unable to reopen his consulate, as his entire force has been marooned on the American side of the river. Consul Blocker's dispatch, dated at 12:21 o'clock this afternoon, stated that Piedras Negras and Eagle Pass are completely isolated, all means of communication between the two cities having been swept away by the torrent of water that rushed down the Rio Grande almost without warning last night. He recommended that communication be established by the use of pontoon bridges.

In accordance with Consul Blocker's suggestion, the State Department at once requested the War Department to rush a pontoon bridge to Eagle Pass. Quartermaster Harry L. Rogers is making inquiries to find which military post in Texas can comply with the request made by the State Department and put the desired pontoon bridges at the stricken points in the quickest time.

NEW DISAGREEMENTS IN TACNA-ARICA CASE

But They Are Not Expected to Deter Hughes From Suggesting Compromise.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (Associated Press).—Although various elements of uncertainty continued to becloud the Chilean-Peruvian Conference situation tonight, they were not expected by the delegates to deter Secretary Hughes from suggesting in the very near future a concrete plan for a compromise.

To some of these in close touch with the negotiations it would be no surprise if a compromise formula were laid before the two delegations by the Secretary tomorrow or Wednesday. It is known that some State Department officials believe they already can see the way to an agreement, and that Mr. Hughes is anxious that the conference move forward as rapidly as possible.

Despite the fact that the Secretary has been absent from Washington since Saturday he has given some thought to the situation during this period, and in addition his assistants here have made a complete canvass of the considerations involved in proposing a compromise.

Intimations have reached conference circles that a suggestion may actually be ready within a few hours after Mr. Hughes returns tomorrow.

The latest incident to befog the outlook was a disagreement coming to light today between Chileans and Peruvians as to just what was said during the formal stage of the conference, which ended nearly two weeks ago. A review of the formal exchanges as made public recently by the Chilean delegation was questioned in Peruvian circles. Gonzalo Aramburu, Secretary of the Peruvian delegation, declaring that Peru's position had not been accurately set forth.

Secretary Aramburu took particular exception to the assertion made in the Chilean statement that Dr. Melfton Porras, head of the Peruvian delegation, had told the conference his Government desired to see a settlement "through fulfillment of the Treaty of Ancon."

Although the Peruvian delegation does not agree with the assertions made in the Chilean statement," said Mr. Aramburu, "and especially the part in which Dr. Porras appears as expressing the purpose of seeking agreement through fulfillment of the treaty, comment will be reserved until the moment of publication of the records of the conference, soon to be published."

As to what the two delegations have done unofficially, during the informal conversations of the past two weeks, nothing has been learned tonight of a difference of opinion. Although Dr. Porras recently said publicly that the Chileans had agreed to arbitrate whether a plebiscite should be held in Tacna-Arica, Chilean spokesmen declared that if any one advanced such a suggestion he did so without the sanction of the Santiago Foreign Office.

Despite these and other apparent points of misunderstanding among the delegates, Secretary Hughes is understood to feel that a direct and simply worded compromise formula, providing for reference of the Tacna-Arica dispute to arbitration will be found acceptable to both groups.

NAMES $25,000 A YEAR MEN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Four of the six officials of the Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation who are to receive annual salaries of $25,000 each beginning July 1 have been designated by Chairman Lasker. They are J. Barstow Smull, Vice President in charge of allocations and charters; Harry Kimball, Vice President in charge of financial operations; William J. Love, Vice President in charge of traffic, and A. F. Mack, manager of the New York office of the board.

Messrs. Smull and Love are now receiving $25,000 annually. Mr. Kimball's present salary is $20,000 and Mr. Mack is receiving $22,000 a year.

The readjustment in the salaries of high officials of the board has been forced by recent legislation by Congress, where the majority sentiment was opposed to the payment of $25,000 salaries, although willing to allow the board to pay $15,000 annually to each of six officials beginning July 1.

As to the two other officials who may receive $25,000 a year, Chairman Lasker is not ready to make any announcement. The late A. J. Frey, who was Vice President in charge of shipping operations, was receiving $25,000 a year, and if he had lived he would have been asked to take a cut to $15,000 similar to that given his colleagues, Messrs. Smull and Love.

SAYS CITY IS LIABLE IN RELETTING BIDS

O'CONNOR OPPOSES STAY

Craig Also Says Injunction Would Prevent Saving of Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars.

Supreme Court Justice Dennelly heard argument yesterday and reserved decision on the application by John A. Grace of the Herman & Grace Company for an injunction restraining the Board of Estimate from reletting the bids for the steel framework, superstructure and roofing of the new County Court House, on the ground that the acceptance of the bids should stand.

Frank M. Avery, attorney for Mr. Grace, who sued as a taxpayer, said that Mr. Grace's firm got the contract for superstructure and roofing for $218,-300 and the Bethlehem Steel Bridge Corporation was successful in its bid of $1,377,000 for the framework. The Board of Estimate voted a few weeks ago to rescind the contracts and readvertise. When the bids were opened they were found to be lower than those received previously, on which the successful awards were based.

Mr. Avery argued that the Board of Estimate acted illegally in asking for new bids after the contracts had been awarded, and made the city liable to the contractors in question. He insisted that there was no collusion in the previous bids and that the new bids contained specifications making them illegal. The Board of Estimate intended to act on the new bids this week.

Assistant Corporation Counsel O'Connor, appearing for the city, pointed out that the action was based on the ground of waste of the property of the taxpayers, and said that if the bids were relet there would be a great saving. He insisted that although contracts had been signed with the two concerns named the city was justified in having the work done cheaper if possible. He said the city would save money even if it was held liable in a suit for damages.

Controller Craig attended the hearing and submitted an affidavit as Chairman of the new Court House Committee in which he declared that if the injunction were granted there would be a great public injury. He said: "If the application be denied the defendants (the Board of Estimate) intend to proceed with the awarding of contracts for the construction of the new Court House upon bids received June 2, 1922, at figures many hundreds of thousands of dollars less than would have to be paid upon bids received in 1920 for like work."

SAYS RADIO CURES CANCER.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Some forms of cancer, considered incurable for years, have at last surrendered to science, according to Dr. T. Howard Plank of Chicago. Its external manifestations can be cured by radio, he asserts.

Before the National Society of Physical Therapeutics, at the annual convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy, Dr. Plank promised to demonstrate his contention at a clinic on Wednesday. Two sufferers from cancer have already been healed, he maintained, the last two weeks ago.

"The electric scalpel is run by radio," he explained. "The machine uses the same current that is used in sending radio messages. The treatment is an absolute and permanent cure for cancer when it can be reached on the surface."

"There is no actual contact between the diseased tissues and the knife," Dr. Plank went on. "As soon as the instrument approaches the flesh the infected part withers up and disappears."

The patient is placed under twilight sleep, the surgeon said. In four or five days he is out of bed and in ten or twelve days is on the street again.

FOUNDS SCHOLARSHIPS.

Harvard Club Here Invites Latin Americans.

Two Harvard scholarships for Latin America, one to be given through the Harvard Club of Mexico City and the other through the Harvard Club of Buenos Aires, were pledged at a meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs in Boston last week. Bruno Newman, an American who has lived in Mexico for the last fifteen years suggested to the American Financial Mission which visited Mexico in October that the scholarships be offered the members of the mission. Thomas W. Lamont, Jeremiah Smith and John Corbin, are members of the class of 1902.

The New York Harvard Club is the donor of the scholarships, which are similar in nature to the Rhodes scholarships, and designed to foster understanding and good-will between the United States and the Latin-American republics.

BRAZIL BOARD ASKS OUSTER OF MEMBER

APPEAL TO WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 19.—President Harding was requested today by the majority membership of the Brazilian Commission named on Jan. 11 to arrange for American participation in the Brazilian Exposition this Fall, to remove Commissioner Frank A. Harrison of Lincoln, Neb., "for falsifying the records of the commission."

This petition was presented to the President by Commissioner General D. C. Collier and three other members after they had adopted resolutions of censure at a meeting in the headquarters in the interior Building. While Mr. Collier would not go into details, it is understood that the commission charges Mr. Harrison with carrying on a campaign of defamation and with entering upon the records statements which are alleged to be unfounded in fact.

Mr. Harrison has long been a picturesque figure in the politics of Nebraska and was manager of Senator Hiram Johnson's primary campaign in that State in 1920. He carried on at that time what he termed a "shoe string" canvass from the office of a little newspaper which he conducted with the aid of his wife at Lincoln, Neb. Johnson carried the State by a substantial vote and Mr. Harrison was generally given much of the credit.

Made Charges Against Collier.

There have been rumors of strife between Mr. Harrison and other members of the Brazilian commission for some weeks. Mr. Harrison, it is said, took charge of the affairs of the commission while the other members were in Brazil and began to make arrangements for American exhibits at the exposition which did not fit with the plans of the majority.

He is reported to have circulated a few hundred copies of a letter in which he made charges against Mr. Collier, some of these charges, it is said, having to do with concessions at the exposition. Mr. Collier returned to this country last Saturday with the majority membership of the commission and began to investigate the source of stories which he heard about the attacks which Mr. Harrison had made upon him. An inspection of the records, it also is understood, caused a good deal of bitterness.

A meeting of the commission was held today and then the three members, headed by Mr. Collier, went to the White House and had a conference of more than an hour with President Harding. Mr. Collier refused to discuss details on leaving the White House, but early this evening the following statement was given by him to the press:

"At today's session of the Brazilian Commission at their headquarters in the Interior Building, a resolution was unanimously passed to censure Commissioner Frank A. Harrison of Nebraska for falsifying the records of the commission. Those present were Commissioner General D. C. Collier, Commissioner Stevens of Rio de Janeiro, Commissioner Vanderlip of New York, Commissioner Kirby of Texas and Secretary to the Commission George T. Mills.

"In the afternoon the commission called in a body on the President and Secretary Hughes and there presented this resolution to President Harding and requested that Mr. Harrison be removed from the commission."

Mr. Harrison in a statement said there had been dissension in the commission and declared himself ready to present all the facts whenever the President asked for them.

"There has been a wide division within the Brazilian commission's membership for some months over the expenditure of funds," Mr. Harrison said. "I and I have been working closely with the President in an effort to conserve public money and lop off useless employes and officials. When he is ready for me to make a complete statement, I shall do so.

"I asked the President more than two months ago to relieve me from duty as a commissioner, and have remained up to this time because of his urgent request"

Issue May Go to the Senate.

Friends of Mr. Collier hinted tonight that Mr. Harrison wanted to obtain the position of Commissioner General now held by Collier and that his activities were frankly open to rebuke. On the other hand, it was asserted that Mr. Harrison has prepared a detailed case and will present it to President Harding in the event his removal appears imminent. The controversy gave promise of ending in another row which might rival in interest the fight which was made upon E. Mont Reily, President Harding's appointee as Governor General of Porto Rico.

It was said tonight that Senators Oddie of Nevada and Bursum of New Mexico were interested in the present rumpus and there was a possibility of its being taken up in the Senate. Mr. Collier, who formerly lived in San Diego, Cal., and conducted the exposition there, is now a resident of Santa Fé, N. M., Senator Bursum's State, it was said. All of these phases of the mix-up Mr. Collier refused to discuss. The fact that Mr. Harrison is a strong adherent of Senator Johnson of California has added no little zest to the affair.

There was no word from the White House today concerning President Harding's attitude. It was reported that Mr. Collier and some of the other members of the commission would sail for South America on June 24. Whether they will be accompanied by Mr. Harrison was left in doubt.

Congress appropriated $1,000,000 for American participation in the exposition after a long debate concerning the advisability of the expenditure. Mr. Harrison, it was said tonight, might seek to obtain a Congressional investigation of his charges, in the event the President removes him.

MOROSCO SUES FOR $57,000.

Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer, filed an answer in the Supreme Court yesterday to a suit by Anne Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose," to recover on notes. He counterclaimed for $57,000.

He wants $50,000 damages because, he says, the playwright took the play away from him and produced it personally in the East after he had obtained the rights to the play and had organized two road companies, one for the West and one for the East.

Morosco also wants $6,000 as the value of the scenery which the author refused to return to him, $2,000 for money loaned Miss Nichols and $1,000 for clothing furnished to her by Miss Selma Paley at Los Angeles.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4½ to 4¾% for the best names. Saturday—4¼ to 4½% for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

A Variance in Shirt Orders.

A falling off has taken place lately in the volume of shirt orders being taken for the Fall. Some manufacturers have not felt this as yet, but others say it has been notable. While some smaller retailers have been disposed to increase the volume of their respective orders, it has been hard work convincing others of the immediate advisability of contracting ahead. The latter insist there still is plenty of time and that their orders will come along considerably before the season opens. Some of the larger buyers are also said to be buying lightly in advance. With all a factory considered, however, manufacturers say the ratio of orders thus far received compares favorably with this time last year.

For Women's Wear Fabrics.

Orders being placed by garment manufacturers for women's wear fabrics are better than was at first expected, say important tastors. Some of the mills are approaching a sold up condition for some portions of their lines, Reorders, while not large in volume as yet, are slowly increasing. The demand for high pile fabrics for use in the higher grade garments is described as particularly good, and mill men look for increasing business in these cloths. Staple items are moving fairly well. An improvement in the call for these would help improve the situation very greatly from the mill standpoint and would also indicate a better outlook for the garment manufacturers.

Orders for Coats and Suits.

Manufacturers of women's coats and suits continue to report a good Fall business. While the road men have been out only a short time the volume of advance orders has shown up very well. A further impetus will be given when the out-of-town trade begins to come to the local market. This generally takes place after July 4, and it is expected that the number of buyers this year will be considerably larger than was the case last season. Makers of the higher grade garments and the so called "style" types have had particularly good advance orders.

Trade in Women's Neckwear.

Business being taken by women's neckwear manufacturers is moderate. Guimpes and vestees, in lace and organdy, were pushed by a number of makers, and their efforts were rewarded by some increase in sales. The sleeve guimpe, in particular, has enjoyed a good degree of popularity. But stocks on hand are somewhat large. Some jobbers are beginning to take inventory, and they have offered portions of their stocks at attractive prices in order to move them from their shelves. Department and specialty stores are offering this merchandise at the present time. Fall lines are being prepared by some manufacturers and will be shown shortly.

Gray Goods Buying Better.

More snap was apparent in the demand for gray goods here yesterday than has been the case for quite some time. Quick deliveries of 39½-inch 64-60s and 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 5⅝ and 5¾ cents respectively, with 5⅞ cents asked for July shipments. For delivery during this month and next, business was done at 7⅛ cents in 39½-inch 60-48s. Ten cents was paid for prompt deliveries of 72-60 pajama checks. In the sheetings buyers paid 7¼ cents for 5.50s, while for 36-inch five-yard cloths they paid 5¼ cents.

Burlaps Start Slowly.

Burlaps got away to a slow start in this market yesterday, despite the higher prices reported at Calcutta for nearby and future shipments. Spot prices in the local market were based on 6.05 to 6.10 cents for eight-ounce, 40-inch burlaps, with 9.10 to 9.15 cents quoted for 10½-ounce cloths of the same width. The cables from Calcutta said that June deliveries were held there at 6 to 6.10 and 9.05 to 9.10 cents, respectively, with July-September deliveries of light weights quoted at 6.25 cents. Heavy burlaps for the same deliveries were priced at 9.30 cents. The cables also told of the continuance of the dock strike at Calcutta, which is holding up shipments and which may, if it lasts much longer, create a shortage here. This, of course, would mean higher prices.

New England Buyers More Active.

Increasing optimism concerning the probability of early ending of the various textile workers' strikes, coupled with the recent hot weather, has brought about an improvement in the demand from New England merchants for several lines of merchandise. Until recently, this had been one of the dullest sections in the country. Outside of Boston, according to a hosiery sales executive who just returned from an extended New England trip, the best demand for that merchandise at present comes from Hartford, Conn. All things considered, the poorest demand for high-class hosiery from any of the large cities in that region comes from New Haven, the reason given for this being that many women who buy that kind of goods travel on railroad employes' passes and do their trading in this city. As for advance Fall buying, it was said that about 65 per cent. of a normal season's business in hosiery has been placed to date.

"Slip-On" Sweaters Selling.

"Slip-on" sweaters made of a combination of mohair and fibre silk yarns, very sheer in weight and dainty in colorings, top the demand for women's novelty knit goods at the moment. White leads the color demand, with pink second and orchid third. An increasing call for canary yellow is reported of late. The best sellers in this type of goods retail at $5 and up. Artificial silk and mohair Tuxedo sweaters also are active, though not so much so as the slip-ons. The popular sweater in the latter style is the one that can be retailed at $10. In the all-fibre goods smocks are not as active as they were, but the better fibre sweaters, in Tuxedo effects, are selling well in qualities that can be retailed at $10 and up. Cheap goods in fibres was said yesterday to be "dead." For all kinds of wanted merchandise the call for rush deliveries is notable.

Floor Coverings Trade Prospers.

Not even in the boom days of the war was there less reason to find fault with conditions in the floor coverings trade, particularly in the carpet and rug end of it, than at the present time. The industry's entire production of all kinds of rugs for the Fall season was said yesterday to be practically under order, and the only business being done now is in the odds and ends that always come up in some way or other. The production of 9x12 carpets by the largest factories in the trade is understood to be under order well into December, with other concerns also well covered. Department stores are said to be heavy buyers of special carpets for their own use, one such store having bought about 10,000 yards of this merchandise yesterday. One of the interesting things about the season to date is the way the demand has shifted. First the chief call was for axminsters, especially the better grades, to fill in for wiltons, then very scarce. Then the demand reverted to tapestries, with the instalment houses buying heavily. Now the call is very largely for velvets, with all three grades difficult to get.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

ELDER STEEL STEAMSHIP COMPANY, INC.—Judge Manton yesterday appointed John L. Johnston and Arthur E. Mittnacht receivers in equity for the Elder Steel Steamship Company, Inc., under a bond of $5,000. The corporation owns two coastwise vessels, the Deerfield and West Catanace, on which the Guaranty Trust Company holds a mortgage for $2,150,000 and the New York Trust Company a mortgage for $1,200,000, and operates one, the Mohawk, under charter from the United States Government. BRITISH IN MOSUL OIL FIELD.

Former Sultan's Heirs Sell Concessions There for $5,000,000.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 19 (Associated Press).—The heirs of the late Sultan Abdul Hamid, with the consent of the Sublime Porte, have sold extensive property in the Mosul oil fields to a British syndicate for $5,00,000, according to the Anatolian press.

The Angora newspapers declare the transaction illegal and urge the Nationalist Government not to recognize it. The reported deal is unconfirmed here, but there has been great activity among the representatives of the oil interest for the last two weeks, and a prominent Standard Oil man left this city for Angora Saturday. Special significance is attached to this trip, as the Kemalists have not granted permission to any Americans to travel into the interior for the last month.

ASKS REINSTATEMENT ON COTTON EXCHANGE

Court Reserves Decision on Application of Arthur H. Lamborn, Now Under Suspension.

Supreme Court Justice Donnelly reserved decision yesterday on the application by Arthur H. Lamborn of Lamborn & Co., who was suspended for six months by the New York Cotton Exchange on June 5, to compel the exchange to reinstate him on the ground that the disciplinary action against him was unjustified. The charges against Mr. Lamborn grew out of the trial of the American Cotton Exchange for bucketing, in which it was charged that a telephone operator in the employ of Lamborn & Co. had been supplying the American Cotton Exchange with quotations from the New York Cotton Exchange.

Louis O. Van Doren, attorney for Mr. Lamborn, argued that the information was supplied by a 17-year-old telephone operator who was not known personally to Mr. Lamborn, who sent the quotations to another boy representing himself to be in the office of one of the cotton customers of Lamborn & Co. Mr. Van Doren thought the exchange should not put a stigma on Mr. Lamborn's name, since he is a member of the leading exchanges of the country.

Henry W. Taft, for the New York Cotton Exchange, submitted that Mr. Lamborn personally committed no overt act against the Exchange, but pointed out that he had been warned that one of his customers, Rosh & Co., had been suspected of bucketing in connection with the American Cotton Exchange. Mr. Taft contended that the fault of Mr. Lamborn lay in not making an investigation, which would have stopped the leak in the quotations to Rosh & Co. He pointed out that the courts have upheld the actions

STONEHAM IN COURT ON CLIENT'S CHARGE

COUNSEL TO SUBMIT BRIEFS

The hearing on the complaint against Charles A. Stoneham, former head of Stoneham & Co., stock brokers, made by F. R. Wilson, a lumber merchant of McLeansboro, Ill., was concluded in Jefferson Market Court yesterday, and counsel were requested to file memoranda on the testimony. Magistrate Simpson said he would then decide whether or not Stoneham violated section 957 of the penal laws, under which a broker must give each customer details of the execution of his order.

Under cross-examination by Leo F. Bondy, Stoneham's attorney, Wilson admitted dealing with E. D. Dier & Co., after his account, in which there were 800 shares of Studebaker stock, purchased through Stoneham, had been transferred to the Dier firm. He was shown a statement from Hughes & Dier, predecessor of E. D. Dier & Co., showing that 800 Studebaker shares had been bought in March, 1921, and 400 in April.

Wilson testified that he communicated with Stoneham's manager, objecting to the transfer of his account to E. D. Dier & Co., saying that he would rather liquidate than deal with a firm he did not know. He admitted that after writing this letter he opened an account with Dier & Co.

"Yes."

"The very 800 shares you are complaining about you yourself sold through Dier & Co. a month or two later?" Mr. Bondy asked.

Wilson admitted this was so and said that he had told Mr. Blumenfeld, his lawyer, about the transaction.

When Mr. Stoneham was called to the stand to be cross-examined by Mr. Blumenfeld, the first question he was asked was "Will you now furnish to the people on behalf of this complainant the names of the Stock Exchange house or houses who purchased for Stoneham & Co., on account of F. R. Wilson, on March 29, 400 shares of Studebaker stock?"

Mr. Bondy interposed that his client was not obliged to reply to this question and his objection was sustained.

At one point Mr. Blumenfeld said he was anxious to show that Stoneham was "still in business," and he also charged that Stoneham "kept back $2,400,000 in customers' accounts."

Magistrate Simpson said he did not think it necessary to go into Diers affairs and requested that both sides file memoranda by next Monday.

At the request of Assistant District Attorney Benjamin Schrieber, the Grand Jury yesterday did not resume its investigation into the affairs of E. D. Dier & Co., the brokerage house which failed in November last with liabilities of more than $4,000,000. District Attorney Banton explained that Mr. Schrieber and Assistant District Attorneys Geraty and McKenna were collaborating with Joseph McLaughlin, the expert accountant employed by the prosecutor, in the examination of the firm's books.

"We are proceeding with our inquiry as rapidly as possible," the District Attorney said. "We are sifting the best cases out of the many complaints we have received from former customers of the brokerage establishment. When this evidence has been carefully collected and collated, it will be laid before the Grand Jury."

CAN'T GET RUSKAY BOOKS.

Court Restrains District Attorney in Brokerage Inquiry.

Judge Knox in the Federal Court yesterday approved the report of William M. Parkin, special master in the proceedings instituted by District Attorney Banton, through Assistant District Attorney John Caldwell Myers, to obtain possession of the books of S. . Ruskay & Co., the brokerage firm which failed several months ago.

Mr. Parkin reported that the receiver appointed when the firm failed obtained only technical possession of the offices at first, and before he could get the books members of the firm asserted their constitutional rights and prevented the receiver from turning the books over to anybody except for perusal in the bankruptcy proceeding. Therefore, Mr. Parkin reported, the receiver could not deliver the books to the District Attorney.

In sustaining Mr. Parkin's contention the Court restrained the prosecutor from attempting to use the books in the Grand Jury inquiry which, it was reported, the District Attorney intended to make into the failure of Ruskay & Co.

GIRL KILLED, CROWD MOBS TRUCK DRIVER

3-YEAR-OLD BOY ALSO DIES

Crushed by Automobile in Front of His Home—A Man Loses Life in Brooklyn.

Policemen with drawn pistols saved a chauffeur from a menacing crowd after his automobile had killed a child near its home at 188 Henry Street last night. The death of the little one, at the side of her mother, so enraged hundreds that they tried to drag the driver from his seat, while some cried, "lynch him!"

Patrolman Ruppel, swinging his club, cleared a way to the truck, snatched up the child, Minnie Rosenberg, 4, and carried her into a drug store. After telling the clerk to telephone for an ambulance, the policeman hurried back and forced a way for the driver, Reuben Katz of 84 Essex Street, who, with his two helpers, was locked in the drug store until reinforcements arrived from the Clinton Street Station. Then the policemen, holding their weapons ready, escorted Katz to the station. He was charged with homicide.

Mrs. Fannie Rosenberg and her son, Jacob, were crossing the street with the child, when Jacob, spying something shiny, loosed his sister's hand to pick it up. An instant later she was under the wheels of the four-ton truck. The mother fainted.

While playing in the street in front of his home at 340 East Thirty-third Street, Henry Werner, 3-year-old, was killed by an automobile driven by Peter Proenzio of Inwood, L. I. Proenzio took the boy to Bellevue, where he was pronounced dead.

Frank Rotala, a workman at the New York Navy Yard, Brooklyn, was getting off a Fulshing Avenue surface car at Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday when he was struck and killed by an automobile truck operated by Frank Ketcham of 18 Vanderbilt Avenue, Brooklyn.

Ketcham did not stop, but later he surrendered to the police of the Classon Avenue Station, saying he had not known that his truck had struck a man until he was told of the accident afterward. He was held on a charge of homicide.

Several persons were severely shaken up in two almost simultaneous automobile accidents at Grand Concourse and 167th Street, the Bronx, last night.

In the first accident one of the three eight-seating buses struck an automobile owned by Eugene Santini, who was driving three members of the 111th Club of 224 East 116th Street. The bus was carrying members of the Fire Department Band on their way to give a concert. Santini's passengers were shaken up but not injured.

In the second accident an automobile driven by William Bodie of 207 Alexander Avenue, the Bronx, collided with one driven by William Bradley of 272 West Twenty-seventh Street. The latter's wife was thrown against the side of the car and received slight bruises.

TWO MEN DROWNED AS ROWBOAT UPSETS

HUNTINGTON HARBOR, L. I., June 19.—Two Brooklyn men were drowned and four others narrowly escaped yesterday afternoon when a rowboat which they had hired for the afternoon overturned in shallow water in the harbor here.

The dead are Joseph Sposapo, 47 years old, a shoemaker, living at 201 Fulton Street, and Pasquale Cirino, 25 years old, a tailor, living at 141 Pearl Street. A third man, Pasquale Cafiro, of 235 Crescent Street, was dragged to a point of safety in an unconscious condition and revived. None of the six men could swim. Cirino's body was not recovered.

The men had come from Brooklyn for a day's outing. The boat overturned in water which was sufficiently shallow to permit all the men to touch bottom and keep their heads above water. The two dead men, however, in seeking shallower water became confused and walked into the channel. The other members of the party were Joseph Pasqua, 141 Pearl Street, a cousin of Cirino; Joseph Merringola, 101 Fulton Street, and Alfred Sposapo, 79 Cranberry Street.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE IN PARK RESERVOIR

HER WEDDING RING A CLUE

Identity Sought Through Initials—Was About 35 Years Old and Well Dressed.

A well-dressed woman, about 35 years old, jumped into the reservoir, near the East Drive in Central Park, yesterday afternoon and was drowned. The police learned from witnesses that she had been pacing up and down along the low iron fence which borders the the reservoir for several minutes before she stopped, looked over the rail into the water and then, without a word, sprang over the fence and plunged in. She sank at once.

Shouts brought Mounted Policeman Tracy and when he was told what had happened he dived into the water, without even stopping to remove his hat. He quickly recovered the body and immediately applied first aid. Another policeman called Dr. Cohen from Flower Hospital, but he fond that the woman was dead.

"J. M. C. to A. M. C.—6-18-19."

Through her hat label it was learned that she had bought the hat in a Third Avenue millinery shop on Saturday. Clerks and she had a 16-months-old baby with her.

She was about five feet seven inches tall; weighed 150 pounds; had red hair, blue eyes and a fair complexion. She wore a blue dress, a blue hat trimmed with flowers, brown lace shoes, and brown silk stockings. In her purse she had a little over a dollar in change. Her body was taken to the morgue to await identification.

Still better Service

For some time past, Slosson & Smyth had been looking for an organization of western insurance brokers with ideals and purposes similar to their own, and with whom they could consolidate.

Curiously enough, Osborn and Company, with 24 years of brokerage experience in Chicago, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, were looking towards New York for a consolidation with men of their purposes and ideals.

The two groups gravitated towards each other naturally. The principals of each group speak the same language. They found their ideas coincided as to what the public has a right to expect from insurance brokers in return for the commission received.

Chicago Office, Insurance Exchange
Cleveland Office, Kirby Bldg.
Pittsburgh Office, Commonwealth Bldg.

All lines of insurance will be handled by the new company in all its four offices. Particular attention will be paid, as heretofore, to reducing insurance costs on commercial risks and to giving Marine coverage the experienced technical handling it deserves and requires.

Make us the insurance department of your business without a dollar's added cost.
